

COUNTY WARNS OF MAD DOGS

Issues List of Precautionary Measures Against Spread of Rabies

Warnings against mad dogs and a list of preventative measures against the spread of rabies are contained in the following statement issued by the Oakland County Health Department through Dr. William Lloyd Kemp, village health officer:

"In view of the fact that many persons in Oakland County have recently been bitten by mad dogs, it seems advisable to direct the public attention to the following points in the prevention of rabies.

"As rabies is always fatal when once developed protection against it must be by prevention.

Precautions Listed

- "1. Beware of stray dogs. Certain precautions should be taken to avoid exposure to rabies. One is to beware of stray dogs. Rabid dogs wander away from home, sometimes going long distances during the excited stage of the disease. A stray dog in the neighborhood may be rabid in the stage when it is most dangerous.
- "2. Do not pet sick animals. When it is necessary to handle sick dogs or other animals where there is the remotest suspicion of rabies rubber gloves should be worn to protect the hands from the animal's saliva. Many persons are exposed to rabies without being bitten by getting the saliva on the hands. The virus is present in the saliva and may enter the system through a cut or abrasion.
- "3. Pen up sick animals. A sick dog or one suspected of rabies should be penned up, not killed, and closely watched for further symptoms. If the dog really has rabies it will die in from 10 to 15 days. When a dog is killed at once upon suspicion of the disease, it may be too early to find laboratory evidence of rabies. In such a case a negative report would give a false sense of security. When a dog is killed great care should be taken of the head of the animal to be sure it is not mutilated in any way.

Treatments Necessary

- "4. Children should not be permitted to annoy dogs, particularly in hot weather.
- "5. Take anti-rabic treatment. Any person bitten by a rabid animal should take the Pasteur treatment. Nearly every one knows what a terrible death is caused by rabies, and that it is a disease for which there is no cure once it develops. If the animal is a dog or other animal, the animal is about the face or head, Pasteur treatment should be commenced at once in case there is the least suspicion of rabies."

by the outlet bounded roughly by the following streets and extensions: Madison, avenue, Clanton, Clawson road, that part of Woodward avenue, Humphrey, and Bates street.

The purpose of the village in pushing the project, according to Mr. Corson, is to insure adequate sewerage and drainage facilities along the new highway to care for all future needs. If the entire project were left to the state, only the minimum requirements for surface drainage would be met, and the village would be forced eventually to install its own system without outside aid. He claims, declaring that the present proposed plans, if carried through, will save the village more than $30,000.

Plans May Vary

Final agreement with the state is now in the course of settlement, although it is not expected to be week at the earliest. The state's contemplated donation to the project, now placed at about 40 percent of the cost of the entire project, is only tentative and may vary, Mr. Barry pointed out in his report.

Although the present plan provides only for the drainage system of the new highway south of Maple avenue, a similar plan may be adopted later for the system north of Maple avenue, it was indicated.

If the plans are finally adopted and a special assessment district is declared following the hearing on July 27, work on the sewer will proceed at once, Mr. Barry announced yesterday.

Since it is not proposed to construct the new wider Woodward street from Lincoln avenue to ever, that portion of the sewer though will save the village may be considerably delayed.

100 Years of Progress in Lowell To Be Marked By Three-Day Celebration

In 1831 a trader penetrated the tepee covered shores at the fork of the Grand and Flat rivers to establish a post. It was the first spot, affording river navigation to the then already settled community.

The settlement became a widely known trading post where the Indians bartered with the post and furs were the main objective. Then followed an influx of other settlers and in a short time a crude village of sod shanties and log cabins sprung up.

Lowell was the name decided upon by the settlers for this spot, which, with the advent of the railroad two score years later, waddled its way up from a well-known trading post to a hamlet where thrift and progress were the motives.

With good transportation facilities on water and rail, good power and water, and a wide knowledge of its progressive spirit, a hundred years have passed in a march of progress established by the pioneer. Lowell has grown to an up-to-date community in that hundred years and this year on August 6, 7 and 8 will gratefully celebrate this century of progress with pageantry, parades, carnivals, sports, barbecues, music and song. An especial welcome awaits those who at one time or other called Lowell their home.
