

CHILD CLINIC TO BE OPENED

Marquette to See Dedication Today of Project Built From Couzens' Fund

Marquette is to be the scene today of one of the most notable events in the history of the Upper Peninsula when state and national figures will gather there for the dedication of the new Northern Michigan Children's Clinic, built from the $10,000 fund set aside by Senator James Couzens for the welfare of Michigan's children.

Senator Couzens himself will be present to take part in the ceremonies, as will Governor Wilber M. Bruker, Dr. Alexander G. Rutaven, president of the University of Michigan, and leaders in the medical profession. Governor Phillip LaFollette of Wisconsin may also be present.

The clinic is one of the fund's most important and largest projects. It is intended to serve a double purpose in furnishing children with facilities for all branches of medical service and of affording doctors an opportunity of practicing post-graduate work in medicine and surgery.

Not For Operations

Upon specified days throughout the year, the University of Michigan will send physicians, trained in various diseases of children, to the clinic. They will treat children brought to the clinic by the nurses from the various counties.

The clinic, a diagnostic institution, will not be equipped for the performance of operations and hospitalization. This work will be done in St. Luke's Hospital, which adjoins the clinic, either by the specialists from the clinic, or by Marquette doctors.

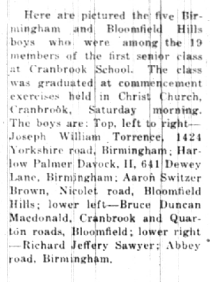

On clinic days, doctors of the Upper Peninsula who wish may gather for diagnostic demonstrations and discussions in the amphitheater of the building, a room characterized by Dr. James D. Bruce, dean of the post-graduate school of medicine, University of Michigan, as "the finest I have ever seen." Cases of unusual interest will be discussed and examined. Should medical treatment be necessary, the child will be removed to the hospital.

Rooms Are Glass

In the clinic are two wards for boys and girls under observation. The beds are in glass rooms, allowing the patients full view of the ward but keeping them from contact with each other.

Five Local Boys Among First Cranbrook Graduates

Here are pictured the five Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills boys who were among the 19 members of the first senior class at Cranbrook School. The class was graduated at commencement exercises held in Christ Church, Cranbrook, Saturday morning. The boys are: Top, left to right—Joseph William Torrence, 1424 Yorkshire road, Birmingham; Harold Palmer Daycock, II, 641 Dewey Lane, Birmingham; Aaron Switzer Brown, Nicolet road, Bloomfield Hills; lower left—Bruce Duncan Macdonald, Cranbrook and Quanton roads, Bloomfield; lower right—Richard Jeffrey Sawyer; Abbey road, Birmingham.

Fund in the peninsula has covered many phases of public health work, including dental care, nursing, examination and treatment by physicians, education among mothers, and health education in the school. The report shows thousands of treatments and examinations. In each county there is a public health nurse, and in some are dentists, all in the employ of the Children's Fund.

Disorderly Charges Bring Jail Terms

Seven men arrested by Bloomfield Hills police Sunday night were given jail sentences Monday morning by Justice Floyd S. Back on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct. Only one of the seven was able to escape the jail sentence by paying a $25 fine.

Victor Recera, address not given and Charles White, Rochester, both of whom were driving cars at the time of their arrest, were given 60-day terms when they were unable to pay fines of $75 each.

The other five were sentenced for 30 days with the alternative of $25 fines. They were: Fred Carrin, 9105 Brockton avenue, Detroit; Basil Griffin, 214 West Second street, Rochester; Alex Stelva, address not given; Steve Poleshuk, Pleasantville, and D. Ortega, 1259 Michigan avenue, Detroit.

Two women were slightly injured when a car driven by Mrs. Alfred J. LaBelle, Sheringham road, Birmingham, swerved off the pavement to avoid hitting a second machine and crashed into a third at the corner of Woodward avenue and Ten Mile road shortly after noon Sunday.

Mrs. LaBelle, who was driving south on Woodward, reported that she was about to cross the intersection when a car which had driven east on Ten Mile road against the red light appeared in front of her, and to avoid a collision she turned off to the left, bounded across the car tracks, ramed into a third machine on the east side of Woodward avenue, and continued on over the curb and into a huge billboard at the edge of the sidewalk.

Mrs. Owen Pohlmann, of Chicago, a friend who had been visiting Mrs. LaBelle and who was riding with her at the time, received a gash on the forehead.

Mrs. Mary Peterson, of Rochester, a passenger in the car which Mrs. LaBelle struck, sustained a cut over the eye and a bruised knee.

The car was driven by Harry Carpenter, also of Rochester. Both he and Mrs. LaBelle were uninjured.
