Al Capone, America's greatest racketeer, has pleaded guilty to 5,000 federal counts of violating the prohibition laws and evading taxes, and may at last be obliged to spend part of his earthly time in prison. The country will await with much interest the final disposition of his case. His sentence, scheduled for June 30, will do more to restore respect for law and order in this country than 10 years' work on the part of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals.

Once Miss Bina West lived in Port Huron, and as a Michigan citizen she was placed on the Republican National Committee, representing this state. She got married, took up residence in Chicago, but wanted to remain on the National Committee. So some interested friends obtained the passage of a special bill during the last legislature which allowed a woman to retain her political residence in Michigan, even though she spent most of her time with her husband in another state. Governor Brucker signed the bill, and so Mrs. Bina West Miller, of Chicago, Ill., is Michigan's representative on the Republican National Committee. Now, if they'd only make the King of Siam chairman of the State Public Utilities Commission, and cause the mantle of the state superintendent of public instruction to fall upon the sunburned shoulders of some Fiji Islander . . . .

Chet M. Howell, State Senator and publisher of the Chesaning Argus, has figured out that if the legislature had passed every tax bill that was presented to it, and Governor Brucker had signed them, a total of $265,000,000 would have been collected (or let us say not collected) to be severely levied during the next two years, for state government. Whereupon Mr. Howell ends up with the howl: "Then maybe it was just as well a good legislature after all."

A scarby wag says, "The other day I went to an Irish wedding and the people who attended were very ill mannered. Why, I never saw such impolite people. We were all seated around the dinner table and when they brought the turkey in to serve, everybody made an uncouth rush for it. The two legs I got tasted very good, though."

I keep an envelope handy, within which I file suggestions labelled "self improvement." Some of the suggestions come from hearing and reading other people's thoughts, some from introspection. Here's one for this week: be more deliberate, less hasty; more thorough, less ruffled. A few, at least, of my thoughts within the envelope I hope to fit into this bundle of habits and attitudes that I know as myself.

A few weeks ago that splendid bulletin board next to the "Y" on West Maple avenue offered this inspiring suggestion: "We need the will to make the brave decision, and faith to leave results with God." That's sound logic, isn't it? After all, in our everyday living, each of us seldom merely the opportunity to live just one day at a time; we seem to leave all the other days to come with Another —call Him what we will.

Auditor general Oramel B. Fuller the other day refused to okay the purchase of six bugle bowls for the table of an unrevealed state institutional head. While the frugal intentions of the auditor general are deserving of praise, another question is raised: Why discourage the willingness of an official who seeks to keep his hands clean?

You don't have to be very much better than the one next to you to be acclaimed a champion. Recently Tommy Armour, Tam O'Shanter's professional, won the British Open championship simply because he took one stroke less than Jacobo Argento the Argentine star. Armour's name went into big headline type—which again shows that he who enters a competitive race, whether it be golf, business, professions, art, or just being kind, can make the first position by using the narrowest of margins. So never quit driving until you've left the last tee, and keep right on putting until the last green has been conquered. Perhaps you'll be the winner.

Wine-making in France greatly interested 21 American mayors visiting abroad as the guests of the French government. If those mayors are so interested in how alcoholic beverages are manufactured, we suggest that they do a little private investigating in their own cities when they get back home. # CLUBS PLEDGE AID IN G. T. CELEBRATION

Committee Plans To Be Submitted At General Meeting Friday

LAND OWNERS UNITE

Definite programs for each of the various events in connection with the gigantic celebration to be held in Birmingham next month for the opening of the new Grand Trunk station and the inauguration of Michigan's first commuter service will be submitted Friday night at a meeting of committees to be held in the Municipal Building at 8 o'clock.

Each of the individual groups which have been assigned to preparing for separate functions of the celebration have already held special conferences and drawn up temporary plans which will be submitted for approval at the general meeting tomorrow.

Practically every organization in the village has been enlisted to make the celebration the most gala event in the history of the community, and outside centers which will be affected by the new service have pledged their support as well.

Land Owners Pledge Aid

These include not only all Woodward avenue communities between Detroit and Pontiac, but others both east and west throughout the entire territory. A movement is also on foot to make the celebration an occasion for service clubs in Detroit and other centers to declare a general district gathering here on that date.

Land owners in and around Birmingham have pledged their unqualified support to the celebration. Banded together by Mrs. Zelner Dowling of East Long Lake road, who has offered her 300-acre estate as a picnic grounds for the day, the property owners have come forward voluntarily with an offer of their assistance in making the event the most important occasion in the history of this entire section.

Meanwhile, detailed arrangements for the celebration are progressing rapidly under the supervision of David H. Ladd, general chairman, and an advisory staff of representatives from each of the outside communities which will participate in the event.

Club Committee Formed

Among the most impressive features of the entire celebration will

FIRST STATE BANK CLOSES

Officers Believe Public Will Get 100 Cents On Dollar

Birmingham was startled Tuesday morning when it learned that the First State Savings Bank, for 23 years located on the northwest corner of Woodward and Maple avenues, had closed its doors. The following statement was pinned on the bank's front door:

"This bank has been closed by order of it's Board of Directors in order to conserve assets for the benefit of creditors. Further announcement will be made at a later date." It was signed "Board of Directors."

Tuesday morning the bank's officers issued the following statement:

"Situated as we are between Pontiac and Detroit, where of late a few banks have failed to meet the demands of their depositors, we have become the victim of a panicky public frame of mind. Under ordinary conditions the situation could have been met ably However, due to the senseless created by the suicide of a Pontiac banker, and the subsequent closing of the bank with which he was connected, other banks in the district began to feel the uneasiness of the public.

"Yesterday we had a mild run on our bank, foretelling, we thought, of a greater one. We consulted with the State Banking Department, and our board of directors agreed late last night to voluntarily close the bank, in order to conserve the assets for the benefit of the creditors. The State Banking Department will be in charge. We believe that we will be able to pay the depositors 100 cents on every dollar."

H. D. Taylor, state bank examiner from the Detroit office of the State Banking Department, said yesterday that to his knowledge no definite policy has been adopted for re-organization of the First State Savings Bank, but said the customary course would probably be pursued. This includes the appointment of a receiver and re-organization along lines which give first consideration to depositors and second to stock holders. A. J. Benge, connected with the State Banking Department, is in charge of the bank at present.

POSTOFFICE TO CLOSE SATURDAYS AT NOON

After July 1, the Birmingham postoffice will close Saturdays at noon, it was announced yesterday by Postmaster James W. Cobb. The action was taken at the recommendation of the Postmasters' Association in conform with the new 44-hour week law regulating postal employes, Mr. Cobb said.

"Special delivery mail and perishable mail will be delivered Saturday afternoons as usual," he stated, "and no curtailment of first class mailings will be made except that registered mail must be deposited before noon."

HOPE OF POOL OPENING DIMS

Only "Small Amount" Given For Summer Swimming At Barnum

Only "a very small amount of money" has been donated towards the fund for keeping Barnum School swimming pool open during the summer, according to Mrs. Fred D. Farrar, chairman of the Barnum Summer Swimming Committee which is attempting to raise $2000 to defray expenses of operating the pool during July and August. The School Board announced last week that it is unable to maintain the pool this summer at its own expense.

Mrs. Farrar declined to reveal the exact amount that has been contributed to date, but indicated that donations have been coming in so slowly that the committee may be forced to abandon its intention of raising the full $2000. Instead, the goal may be limited to enough to open the pool for only one or two weeks, she said.

Meanwhile, Louis Randall, business manager of the Birmingham schools, announced Tuesday that the pool would close Saturday as scheduled. It will be opened for the full summer or for any part thereof as soon as the money for operating expenses is forthcoming from any outside source, he said. He estimated the cost of maintaining the pool for a single week at between $400 and $500.

The Barnum Summer Swimming Committee, composed of several local women who had been in the pool in adult swimming classes, is attempting to raise the fund principally through the medium of letters addressed to the parents of Birmingham school children, asking each for a small contribution.

"We are mainly interested in having the pool open for children," Mrs. Farrar said. "This summer fewer children than usual will have opportunity of attending out-door camps, and the swimming pool should be kept open especially for those who must remain in town."

If the money is raised, the pool will be open to everyone free of

VILLAGE CHEERED BY CHECK FROM STATE

The countenances of village officials brightened considerably Saturday morning when the Municipal Building mail-bag was found to contain a check for $15,769.54 from the state highway department, representing the state's share of the cost of widening Woodward avenue through the village limits in 1928.

Receipt of the check brought to an end a long period of negotiations between village and state officials, including numerous conferences in Lansing at which the village was represented by Charles E. Plumstead, village treasurer, and Village Manager James W. Parry.

FATHER OF 8 ENDS OWN LIFE

Troy Township Man Carries Out Suicide Threat By Drinking Poison

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon for Leo M. Swindler, 40 years old, the father of eight children, who committed suicide Thursday night by drinking a half pint of disinfectant at his home in Troy Township a short distance east of White Chapel Memorial Park.

Coroner G. Dewey Kimball, who investigated the death, said that neighbors and members of the family told him the man had been despondent for the past month and had several times threatened to take his own life.

The cause of the despondency was not definitely known, however, according to the coroner, who said that Swindler apparently had no domestic or financial troubles and was in good health.

Warns Wife Of Act

About 9 o'clock Monday night, Mrs. Kimball said, Swindler, after first returning to his home from work, appeared at the door of the home of J. Howard Wendorph, superintendent of White Chapel Memorial Park, who had employed Swindler as a laborer for the past three years.

Mrs. Swindler was employed by the Wendorphs as a housekeeper, and was working upstairs in the home when her husband came to the door. Mr. Wendorph answered the man's knock.

"I'm all through at White Chapel," Swindler announced to his employer when the latter opened the door. "I'm going home and commit suicide."

Then, according to the coroner, he called to his wife at an upstairs window and repeated his declaration, after which he set out immediately for home.

Lives Until 1 A. M.

Mrs. Swindler followed him soon after, but when she arrived at the house she found her husband had already carried out his threat by drinking the poison.

The effects of the liquid, according to the coroner, caused the man to run in agony to the yard out-

COUNTY DOG LAW BARRED

State Rule Exempts Village From Licensing Act, Ogden Finds

Provisions which will allow the Village of Birmingham to ignore county requirements for licensing dogs and install licensing machinery of its own, which it intends to do beginning July 1, are contained in a state statute as amended in 1929 which Village Attorney Clare H. Ogden and Commissioner Charles E. Lewis discovered in the course of their investigations as a special committee appointed by the Village Commission to make recommendations for a new ordinance regulating dogs.

The new ordinance itself is still in elementary form and probably will not be ready for presentation to the Commission before Monday, June 29, just in time to make possible its adoption before the present ordinance goes out of effect on July 1.

However, the proposed measure was discussed at some length at the meeting of the Commission last Monday, and the members appeared to be generally agreed on at least the broad outlines of the regulation.

Law Exempts Village

The statute which will make possible the licensing of dogs under the village's own supervision is one which, according to Mr. Ogden, exempts villages which lie within a radius of 20 miles from a city with 250,000 inhabitants from all county dog regulations.

Mr. Ogden stated at the meeting Monday that this statute had been called to the attention of George A. Cram, civil counsel for Oakland County, and that Mr. Cram had agreed to its applicability in Birmingham's case.

County dog officers have already relinquished their former duties in the village, and Village Manager Parry has requested local citizens not to purchase county licenses for their dogs unless they have already done so.

May Ask Refund

At Monday night's discussion it was indicated that some attempt might be made to secure a refund from the county of license money already paid in by villagers, but Mr. Ogden expressed the opinion that this might be impossible in view of the fact that the present village ordinance requires dog owners to license their pets through the county.

If this refund cannot be secured, the probability is that dog owners in the village who have already bought county licenses will not be required to secure village licenses until Jan. 1, 1932, although all

Build On Faith, Pastor Tells Baldwin Seniors

"Build your life on a firm foundation of faith in Jesus Christ," Rev. D. L. Woodward, pastor of the Birmingham Baptist Church, told the 75 members of the Baldwin High School graduating class at baccalaureate exercises held in Baldwin auditorium Sunday night.

The service was presided over by Rev. R. M. Atkins of the first Methodist Episcopal Church. Others who took part were Rev. W. Clarence Wright of the Presbyterian Church, Rev. Warner L. Forsyth of St. James Episcopal Church, and Rev. Leigh H. Hagle of the Embury Methodist Church.

The Baldwin High School mixed chorus, under the direction of Miss Mae E. Brumsted, sang three selections, and Mrs. Frances Stephenson played the entrance march for the graduating class.

Advises Careful Planning

Reverend Woodward compared the task of building a life to that of building a house, and warned that careful attention to plans, foundations and materials was as necessary in one as in the other.

"No house is ever built well unless it is first planned well," he said, "and the life structure that is not planned well topples down in ruins before it is completed."

The Bible furnishes the blueprints for the best lives, he declared. "A life planned on the teachings of the Bible is eternally safe," he said. "The best lives of all times have been built upon and inspired by the simple teachings of this book."

He warned against the use of wealth and education as foundations for life. "While wealth may offer great conveniences, it is not in itself a safe foundation," he declared, "and although we cannot get too much education, a secular education is not enough.

Recommends Hard Work

"If you would make your life worth while, build it deep in a foundation of Christian teachings and faith in Jesus Christ."

Sincerity and endeavor are the

SEES COUNTRY RULED BY VETS IN 10 YEARS

Congressman Person Cites Importance of Soldiers' Legislation

ADDRESSES CONVENTION

Within 10 years the United States will be a country dominated in all fields of life, especially the political, by ex-soldiers or by people who are interested in soldiers through inter-marital relationships, it was predicted here Thursday night by Congressman Seymour H. Person from the sixth Michigan district.

Congressman Person was one of the principal speakers at the banquet held in the Community House in conjunction with the annual sixth district convention of the American Legion and its auxiliary.

Other speakers included Judge Frank L. Doty of the Oakland County Circuit Court; Mrs. F. M. Alger, state chairman of the Woman's Organization for Prohibition Reform and wife of the chairman of the 1931 national American Legion convention; Charles Schultz, state Legion commander; James F. Barton, of Indianapolis, national adjutant, and others. Paul Eger of Lansing, assistant attorney-general, was the toastmaster.

Outlines Vets' Bills

The fact that practically every family in the country will before long be linked either directly or indirectly to a veteran of the World War gives promise that the American Legion will become one of the most influential organizations in the nation, Congressman Person said, and makes the question of veterans' legislation one of the leading issues in national politics.

He made reference to five bills affecting veterans which he said would undoubtedly be introduced at the next session of congress, and promised to give all of them careful study. These include a bill to reduce the interest on government loans to veterans, another to place World War veterans on the same basis as Spanish War veterans as regards pensions, and a bill to allow hospitalization for all vets whether their ailments can be traced to the service or not.

The visiting Legionnaires and their wives at the convention were welcomed to Birmingham by Harry Allen, village president. "I am happy to welcome this organization here tonight because it is an organization of worthy service, high traditions and high ideals," Mr. Allen said. "It has served its country well in peace as well as in war."

Retiring Commander Responds

The response for the Legion was made by Rev. Willard Brown of Lennon, retiring district commander and committeeman, who traced the development of the organization through the past few years.

"We have suffered a slump, but now we're on the way back and headed for greater things," he said. He characterized the organization as one with "an increasing seriousness of purpose," and complimented the district on its new commander, Raymond C. French, Flint attorney, who had been elected to the post at the business meeting preceding the banquet.

Mr. French responded with an appreciation of his new honor and

At no time was there any danger for the persons whose funds were in our keeping; we have kept our securities in a very solvent condition. Backed by the two strong Detroit banking groups, the Detroit Bankers and the Guardian-Detroit Union group, as well as the Federal Reserve System, we felt confident throughout the entire experience. # $250 PLAY FUND VOTED BY VILLAGE

Recreational Program To Be Concentrated In South Birmingham

The Village Commission Monday night voted an appropriation of $250 to be used for the payment of salaries and the purchase of equipment in a summer program of recreational activities for Birmingham boys and girls.

The program will be directed by the Birmingham Y. M. C. A., and will be concentrated in the south end of the village, Robert D. Lynd, executive secretary of the Birmingham "Y," and G. A. # 2 MORE ENTER SCHOOL BOARD ELECTION RACE

F. F. McKinney, John E. Martz Get Backing Of Parents' Group

DAVOCK NOT TO RUN

Francis F. McKinney, 587 Greenwood avenue, and John E. Martz, 761 Lakeview road, yesterday announced they will be candidates for the Birmingham School Board in the July election. Mr. McKinney will run for one of the three-year terms, and Mr. Martz for the one-year term.

Although they were not presented as the candidates of any official group or organization, the two men entered the race together at the request of a group of villagers who had banded together especially for the purpose of selecting suitable candidates. This group, it was learned, is headed by Bryant. 280 Aspen road, one of its members, is composed of about 25 parents of school children residing in all sections of the village.

Entrance of Mr. McKinney and Mr. Martz in the race followed shortly after the announcement of Harlow W. Davock, one of the present members of the board, that he will not be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Davock had been mentioned frequently as a probable candidate, but stated definitely Tuesday that he has decided not to run.

With the announcement of the candidacies of Mr. McKinney and Mr. Martz, the list of entrants in the election was swelled to four. Earl G. Potter, who is now sitting on the board in the vacancy caused by the death of Fred F. Quarton last month, and Joseph C. Huston, 661 Pierce street, were the first to enter the field, announcing their intentions to run several weeks ago.

Mr. Potter, like Mr. McKinney and Mr. Martz, is an independent candidate, while Mr. Huston's candidacy is being sponsored by the Barnum School Parent-Teacher Association. Both Mr. Potter and Mr. Huston are candidates for three-year terms.

Neither Mr. McKinney nor Mr. Martz have ever held public office in Birmingham, although Mr. Martz who has lived in the village for the past seven years, is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, and is now engaged in the advertising business in Detroit. He is the father of two children, both of school age.

Mr. Martz, who is a practicing attorney in Detroit, has made Birmingham his home for the past six years. He is a graduate of Manlius Military Academy, Ohio Wesleyan University and Detroit College of Law. He is the father of two small boys, one of whom will enter school next fall.

The election is scheduled for Monday, July 13. Three places are to be filled, two for three-year terms and one for a one-year term. Petitions bearing the names of 25 qualified signers must be filed by all candidates before July 3 with the secretary of the board.

REVIEWERS STILL IN SESSION

The Bloomfield Township Board of Review was still in session yesterday after more than two weeks of work in reviewing and adjusting the assessment rolls. Complaints of property owners have all been heard, and the final check of assessed valuations is practically completed, according to Parry A. Vaughan, township supervisor. The total valuation, estimated at $33,000,000, will be computed as soon as the board ends its session.

District Legion Names Stanley Vice-Commander

Lloyd L. Stanley, who served three years as commander of the Birmingham post of the American Legion from 1927 to 1930, was elected vice-commander and assistant committeeman of the Legion for the sixth state district at the annual district convention here Thursday. Raymond C. French, Flint attorney, was named commander, succeeding Rev. Willard Brown of Lennon.

Mrs. Joseph F. MacGregor of Birmingham was nominated to succeed herself as district committee woman of the American Legion auxiliary, a position she has held for the past year. Her nomination was the first of the sixth district auxiliary caucas in Pontiac Thursday, July 2, preceding the opening of the state Legion convention.

Mr. French was chosen district commander over Ernest Ogden, Pontiac, by three votes. Mr. Ogden, who was former vice-commander, was elected with Mr. Brown to represent the district as delegates to the national American Legion convention to be held in Detroit next September.
