ART and MUSIC

Irvin S. Cobb, Ahmed Abdulla and "Blags" Blair form an odd trio, in the name of art they are united as hosts to pay homage to their literary contemporary "Blags" Blair, author of the recent "Life of O. Henry."

The publication of the book was the occasion for a dinner held in one of the

HAS YOUR KITCHEN STOVE THESE ELECTROCHEF FEATURES?

WHAT AS CLEAN AS SUNLIGHT
Electric heat is as clean as sunlight—without smoke or soot or flame

MODERN DESIGN
Strikingly modern in design, ELECTROCHEF modernizes your kitchen as well as your cooking

EXACT HEAT CONTROL
An exact heat control eliminates guesswork and makes baking and roasting easy

"My ELECTROCHEF electric range LOOKS and IS cool. A double-insulated oven and focused heat for the cooking utensils combine to prevent heat escaping into the kitchen air. In hot weather, it's such a relief to have cool ELECTROCHEF cooking! Even on the warmest days, my ELECTROCHEF never overheats the kitchen. I'm delighted with the coolness and convenience of this modern electric range."

plate. Only those photographed by Davis were privileged to attend the dinner.

Word has been received that Mrs. Mildred Green of Frank street, who recently took the examination for membership in the American Guild of Organists, passed the test with one of the highest credits in the history of the guild. The examination is issued from the office of the parent chapter in New York. Miss Green is a former organ pupil of Dr. Francis H. York.

The Ann Arbor festival production of Shaw's play "Arms and the Man," will be brought to the Civic Theater for one performance the night of June 29 and a matinee June 30. Arrangements with Robert Henderson, the producer, make it possible for the Civic Theater to stage the play here. Violet Fleming, Tom Powers and Ernest Cassart are the principals in the cast.

Five awards were made to Michigan contestants by the Proctor Gamble Company in their annual soap sculpture competition—Vincent S. Tortolani, Jackson Pontiac, honorable mention for "The Cow Puncher"; Alonzo Mitchell Pontiac, honorable mention for "Gyp"; Florence Updenhoff, Pontiac, honorable mention for "The Schiphist"; Dean Stewart, Pontiac, honorable mention for "The Cow Puncher"; Alonzo Mitchell Pontiac, honorable mention for "Gyp"; Florence Updenhoff, Pontiac, honorable mention for "The Schiphist".

The print department of the Detroit Institute of Arts has been enriched through the gift of $500 from Andrew Wineman, which is to be used for purchases during the coming year. Mr. Wineman is a collector of etchings and is much interested in prints, and during this year when the department had no funds for purchase he made a cash gift in order that the growth of the collections might be continued.

From A WOMAN'S ANGLE

By MARJORIE ELAINE PORTER

Try this on your beef steak. A British genius has invented a machine to test the toughness of beef steak. No, not a new model of false teeth. Guess again. It is a sharp instrument with a dial attached to the blade. On the dial is recorded the degree of difficulty encountered by the blade in cutting through the meat tissue.

Then all the housewife has to do is take the instrument to the butcher and show him that the steak registers 10 degrees below zero as far as tenderness is concerned.

We nominator for the Hall of Fame, Miss Carol J. Anger of Evanston, Ill. Mrs. Anger discussed a project of measuring the stars in their orbits by an ultra violet ray. She is a graduate of Radcliffe College, and is now working for her doctor's degree at Harvard.

I feel sure now that I haven't intrigued my curiosity one bit to know it is possible for the stars in their orbits by employing the ultra violet ray. Of course, I'm glad it was a woman who made the discovery. But personally, I prefer to think of "the golden heavens" as one of the great poetic mysteries. And I love to repeat the lines of Joseph Addison's "Spacious Firmament," and Matthew Arnold's "Self-Dependence," as I watch the stars at night. To me, a poet's explanation is more satisfying than the cold conclusion of the scientist.

Have you ever heard of William Horace DeLere Cole? He is neither a movie actor nor a masculine beauty expert. With a name like that he might be expected to write testimonials for Unipy Dump Cold Cream.

By profession, William Horace is a baker. Just one of those playboys who likes to go to a creature who has never been heralded as the heir apparent of his or someone else native land, and let himself invited to a score of gay parties.

Horace is a hard worker and a bit of a joke. He now has 912 jokes on his record. He announced recently he would play only five more jokes and then get married. "What pessimism for a jester!" Assuming, apparently, that matrimony is no joke.

The class of girls graduating from Lidgett School last week was warned under penalty of spinstership not to be "high brow" by the Cornell professor who undertook to give the commencement address.

He even went so far as to say that "educated women are never successful." What he apparently meant, judging from the text of his address, was a success with the men.

He is already to give the little girl who is very dumb and very beautiful a great big hand. "The dumber they are the dearer" or one were jump at his conclusions. And he is a man, speaking from the celebrated masculine viewpoint.

Maybe he's right. But in defense of the men, it is only fair to point out that among the most loved and best loved women of the world were "highbrows," that is they were "educated," some of them even intelligent, and others actually gifted women.

He surely has read at sometime or other the stories of Ninon de L'Enclos, George Sand, Madame de Staël, Marguerite de Valois, and a score of other super-women.

In literature, Hassanio loved his Lake Park drive will take a group Pontiac none the less for the fact that he discovered a point of law Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McDonald at St. Clair, for a house party next week end.

fy, and for which they were loved, in courage. The woman who has the courage to be herself, even in the face of being called "highbrow," is not going to lack friends. Because, after the honeymoon is over, even the Cornell professor must admit, it requires some education to read a cook-book.

Why Learn Touch Typewriting?

A Pontiac dentist says that all of his children will learn both shorthand and typewriting before they go to college as they can use them so extensively there. And of course for a stenographer, bookkeeper, or secretary, typewriting is a necessity.
