"Don't make the same mistake I did!"
Dad was giving me the proverbial "last words" before I hopped the train for school. Usually he spoke about studies or fast living, but this time only one thing was preying on his mind.
"Jack, I was not assisted with your report last year. You let your bills slide."
"Aw, Dad, all the fellows let their bills slide."
"That may be all right for you but not for me. You're on your own now, and I want you to come out on top. Don't make the same mistake I did."
"When I was your age I had no idea of the meaning of credit... and my own particular responsibility. No one could talk to me about the honor of debts and all that sort of thing. I thought it was smart to let my bills drag on a couple of months before I paid them. Well, like the rest of 'the fellows,' I got a bad name and it was years before I could get the good credit standing that means so much to me now."
"But, Dad, creditors don't really lose anything! They always get the money some time!"
"Don't lose anything, my boy? He looked at me in silence for a moment, and I knew I had said the wrong thing.
"Son, I'll tell you something... Each of credit causes more failures than lack of funds."
"When you fail to keep your promise to pay within a certain time, your name goes black. And after you've got your credit standing, your brains are good for only one thing -- to make you pay promptly!"
