A Citizen Of Eternity.

Whatever may befall us, we pray that there will abude with as the willing desire to stoop over and pick up the broken fragments of any shattered dream, and smilingly, hopefully, patiently, seek to rebuild it. May we ever be tolerant of unavoidable, the children of any single moment—but the citizens of Eternity. When one lives for a long time in one community, one is inclined to be very desirous of retaining his good name: when one moves about, major intilligence restavishin the stockyards area; from place to place, staying but a little while, the furner of Eternity, whose good name must be kept good forever.

Whith THE AVERAGE MAN enters politics for a career, he forthwith starts upon a series of almost upon most of any single mould be accountery side of the most impose and pick and provided, where God's sunlight still permeates the children of any single moment—but the citizens of Eternity, one is inclined to be very devisions of retaining his good name: when one moves about, major intelligence restavishin the stockyards area; from place to place, staying but a little while, the urge to keep his name unblemished is not always so strong; that's why we suggest that you recognize your life as an eternal verity—that you are a cityer of the stocky with the stocky and a sugapher.

Creed

Dear God of sil, I did not know
How beautiful and fair
And sweet life was, until I found
That in the source of prayer
Great peace and Joy and comfort dwels.
I felt them surging as I knelt
Through all my body, through my life
Dimming the war of sin and strife.

I dist not know, or so it seems
That somehow one might find
Suh solace as a prayer con bring
To body, soul and mind.
A voice had whispered long to me,
None hears your prayers, flow could you must fight is in and greed and pelf
To win or lose, just you yourself.

I have been blind and very dull
And soul sick of i and sad
Since childhood faith went far astray.
Now I feel blest and glad.
Low of the blest and glad.
For what is good had be be right.
It, matters little when brushers
Ot how God is; He answers prayer.
