Hoover Has Hard Time Trying To Please All In Regard To Marines

Nicaraguan Policy Creates Differences of Opinion In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART... Central Press Staff Writer... WASHINGTON, May 14.—Charges of looting by United States marines in Managua following last March's earthquake are unlikely to hold water, according to the best information obtainable from Latin American sources in Washington, sources not at all friendly to the leathernecks' presence in Nicaragua.

Henry W. Temple... SENATOR BORAH'S views already are well known. Congressman Temple, as a comparatively new committee chairman, the only one elected in his present post last year, has not been heard from.

Northwestern's Queen

That it would be impossible if the marines had not been there... PRESIDENT HOOVER'S announcement is to get them out of the little republic as soon as he can, to be sure, and that also raises a howl from the Latin Americans but from a formidable element among the president's own countrymen.

THE WASHINGTON administration now assumes the attitude, continued the congressman, "that the Nicaraguan guard is equal to the required duty and wants to withdraw our marines."

BY INVITATION though it was that President Coolidge originally sent the leathernecks to the Caribbean, the remainder of the western hemisphere widely resented it, and it hurts today if nothing more. Some Americans declare there ought to be an all-around organization of the new world republics to decide on intervention when they seem unavoidable, taking the responsibility and amplying it for them from Uncle Sam's lone shoulders.

A BEAUTIFUL IDEAL—but hopeless of attainment. Hopes for Uncle Sam to attain; hopes of acceptance by Latin America as a reality, if it attained it.

A Presbyterian clergyman once, later a college professor of history and political science, and one of the foremost authorities on international law in America, with a fine record of progressive Republicanism, Representative Temple has an equipment few men can equal for his foreign relations acquaintance. Nevertheless I was sorry he sidestepped the new world's most threatening prospect of the near future.

Detroit Pastor To Preach Here Rev. Hugh Chamberlain Burr, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Detroit, in exchange of pulpits with Rev. D. J. Woodward, will preach Sunday night at 7:30 in the First Baptist Church of Birmingham on the theme, "Would You Believe It?" Dawes, "Where I'd Judea Stretches Far" by Stoughton, and "Arioso" by Rogers. Mrs. Herbert Gardner will sing a solo, "Evening and Morning" by Spicker. The public is invited.
