THIS and THAT

Somewhat varied are the beliefs of people toward their duty as patriotic, law-abiding citizens. Take the case of the chap who operated a blind pig up in the northern part of the lower peninsula of Michigan. Among his customers was a Detroiter who bought copiously of the liquid refreshment, adding to the monetary profit of the owner of the sty, pen, or whatever other name you think easy to speak. It was the fall of the year, and the Detroiter had had no luck in getting a deer. "Why not sell me that fine, big buck you killed the other day," asked the Detroiter. "I should say not!" replied the northerner. "Do you think I want to get into trouble with the law?"

Robert K. (Bob) McClellan, who sells flour and feed, and also rock salt for the use of making soft water systems work, is not bothered much because Mahatma Ghandi, India's great salt maker, is going to visit this country. "Just as long as he confines his salt distribution to India, I won't object to his coming to the United States," said Mr. McClellan.

Up at Flint the other day, while attending the annual 23rd District Conference of Kiwanis International, we met a jovial Father Moran, of Ridgetown, Ont., who made a brief talk during one of the luncheon meetings at the Durant Hotel. He made it necessary for the editor of The Eccentric to acknowledge attendance, and then said: "Once The Eccentric published the pictures of all Birmingham Rotarians. Finding it necessary to wrap an article up, preparatory for putting away in the basement, a Birmingham housewife used the edition of The Eccentric that contained the pictures of the Rotarians. Immediately, all the rats left the basement. This is the one time on record when a human's actions were formally ratified by a newspaper." Everybody chuckled over the eccentricity of the joke.

We have in mind the clever plan of a Birmingham young man who, somewhat taken up with the pleasant manners of the waitress who was serving him his noonday food, continuously asked for alphabet soup. Although we never openly asked him why he started his meal with that form of appetizer, we suspect that it was his way of receiving letters from the sweet young thing.

There is a very real streak of actor in most people. It is surprising to witness the ability of many members of the Birmingham Village Players to typify this or that character in tragedy or comedy. It is true, don't you think, that there is one or more "other lives" in most of this earth's beings? Amateur playacting affords an opportunity for the revealing of "the other self."

* * *

We wonder why more Birmingham men do not "wear canes." There was a time when we agreed with the majority that to carry a cane was inappropriate except upon the stage. But the trend today is for people to carry something besides their clothing, and since golf has brought the club back into style, we believe that a cane is a good companion. For further information on canes, Thir and That suggests that you see Robert R. Allen who, although he never "carries a cane," owns more than a hundred of them.

Little seven-year-old Susan Charlotte Averill patted her mother's hand the other day at the breakfast table and remarked: "I love you—you enjoy living with me, too, don't you?" That is what we call a real compliment, with no flattery.

Do you all know that one of Birmingham's residents is reputed to be America's foremost graphologist? graphologist is one expertly versed in the science of determining character by one's handwriting. The man we refer to is Orwitt B. Lucas, of North Woodward avenue, who possesses an uncanny ability to tell who and what you are by your penmanship.

We stepped into the court room, attracted by the Demosthenes-like appeal in the voice of the defense attorney, who was arguing his client's case before the jury. One might, in fancy, paraphrase the brilliant lawyer's line of attack in this manner: "Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, just as this white blackboard—which you see before you blends its beautiful green pigments into the sky-blue emerald of the carmine texture as, reflecting the golden brown tints of a pink bordered cornfield, you are able to ascertain that beneath the crime-lined face of this poor, helpless man on trial, there lurks the unimpeachable honesty of a white soul—a soul so tortured that its sable hue cries out into the cold, warm world these terrifying words: 'give me liberty—or else give me life,' which judge from an copy of the saturday evening post will do." Lawyers do like to make appeals, don't they?

TOWNSHIP GOLF COURSE FEES ARE BOOSTED

Bloomfield Park Board Moves to Bar Outsiders, Relieve Overcrowding

NEW PARTY RATES SET

A new schedule of greens fees, established with the express purpose of discouraging outsiders from using the Bloomfield Township Park golf course and thus relieving crowded conditions there, was adopted at an open meeting of the Park Board of the Municipal Building Thursday night.

The fee for nine holes of play for residents and property owners of the township was left at 35 cents, but for non-residents and non-property owners it was raised to 50 cents on week-days and $1 on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Club House Rates Set

Use of the club house and kitchen equipment was placed on a flat-rate basis of $10 for each party, $5 of which will be returned if the dishes are washed and the kitchen cleaned by members of the party. An extra charge of $2 an hour will be made for parties after 11 A. M. Formerly only $2 was charged for party use of the club house.

The schedules for both green fees and club house use were adopted only after long discussions in which vigorous objections were raised to some of the board's proposals by interested citizens who attended the meeting.

The board first proposed, in a motion by R. J. Correll to charge $7 for the use of the club house without kitchen equipment, $12 for club house and equipment for parties of less than 75 persons and $14 for parties of more than 75 persons.

Protest High Fees

Jimmy Dolan, club house manager, expressed the opinion that these fees would be prohibitive in many of the parties which have been in the habit of using the club house, and Robert Y. Moore, chairman of the board of auditors and former township supervisor, who was one of the leaders in the township park project when it was begun a few years ago, claimed that these rates would defeat the purpose for which the park was established.

"I believe when you ask such high prices for the use of your club house you're getting away from the purpose for which it was [illegible]

ASK STREET IMPROVEMENTS

Bloomfield Hills Property Owners Petition Village Commission

Two petitions for street improvements, one of which will be approved, result in a bond issue estimated now at $25,000, were presented to the Bloomfield Hills Village Commission at its regular May meeting Tuesday night.

The most important petition asked that Lone Pine road from Cranbrook Orchard Lake road for a distance of approximately 3060 feet—be paved with concrete, and that an estimate also be submitted on the cost of covering the concrete with tarvia and stone chips.

The second petition asked for the improvement of Cranbrook road from Woodberry drive to the existing pavement, with macadam. Both petitions were presented by property owners who objected principally to the dusty conditions of the road in question.

Resolutions on both petitions were adopted by the Commission

6 Arrested, Rum Seized In Giant Liquor Raids

What officers described as the most important series of liquor raids conducted in Oakland County in the past year resulted in the seizure of more than 2000 bottles of home brew and quantities of alleged moonshine, gin and alcohol in four different speakeasies in Royal Oak Township and Hazel Park Village last Friday night.

Six persons, including two women, were arrested in the raids, which were conducted by state police officers under Sheriff Frank[illegible] Grennan, Chief Deputies Bernard F. Shrader and Harvey Tedder and 19 other deputies. All six defendants were arraigned before Judge Floyd S. Buck in Birmingham and were held for examinations at a later date.

At 1632 Helen street, Royal Oak Township, the raiders arrested John Matson and seized 1375 bottles of home brew, 1000 empty bottles, 67 gallons of mash, a barrel of wine and small quantities of alleged liquor, gin and moonshine.

Two other raids in the same neighborhood resulted in the arrest of James Freed, Myrtle Freed, William Galloway and Edith Galloway. About 500 bottles of beer and two five-gallon cans of beer with pumps attached, and quantities of alleged gin and moonshine were discovered at the Freed home, the officers report, and 200 bottles and several crocks of beer, a half gallon of alleged alcohol and a quantity of moonshine at Galloway's place.

John H. Anderson was arrested in a fourth raid at 350 West Evelyn avenue, Hazel Park Village. About 200 bottles of beer, two 10-gallon cans of mash and a pint of moonshine were found.

The six defendants all stood mute when arraigned before Judge Buck. Freed posted bail for $1000 and Myrtle Freed for $500. Their hearings were set for Friday, May 15, at 2 p. m.

Anderson, Matson and Galloway all entered bail for $1000 and Mrs. Galloway was released on her personal recognizance. They will all be examined at 2 p. m. Tuesday, May 12.

Abandoned E. M. R. Tracks Raise Removal Problem

HIGHWAY TAX PLAN OPPOSED

Commission Joins Fight On Senate Bill Favoring Townships

Woodward Communities and Railway Both Defer Action On Rails

The question of what steps will be taken, if any, to remove the trolley rails of the Eastern Michigan Railway system from Detroit to Pontiac, now of no use since the abandonment of the line a week ago Saturday, is still unsolved and promises to remain so for at least several days to come.

Several incorporated communities along the line, including Birmingham and Royal Oak, have brought attachments against the Eastern Michigan property, including the rails, in consideration of sums due them for unpaid personal taxes.

General opinion is, however, that removal of the rails would put the communities to more expense than they are worth, and that as a result, providing the Eastern Michigan Company itself makes no attempt to take them up, they will remain, until covered over by concrete at the expense of the communities.

Owe $216 Here

In the opinion of Village Manager James W. Parry, the only E. M. R. property of any value in Birmingham is the copper feeder wires. He would be obliged to cover the rails with concrete than to take them up, he believes. The village is owed $210.60 by the E. M. R. for unpaid personal tax, for which all of the abandoned railway

The Village Commission went on record Monday night as being strenuously opposed to a bill which has been introduced in the state senate relieving townships of the necessity of returning to villages one-half of the township highway improvement tax paid on village property, as has been required by state law since 1925.

The matter was brought to the attention of the Commission through a letter received by Village Manager Robert W. Parry from the Michigan Municipal League, in which the league asks the help of the whole-hearted support of villages throughout the state in fighting the bill.

According to the letter, the measure has been introduced by Senator Norman B. Horton of the Lenawee-Monroe district. "Many townships," the letter states, "have willingly paid villages this money since 1925, but others did not return the funds as provided by laws until the matter was exposed by the Municipal League about a year ago, and now they would change the law so that they can continue to take everything from the villages and return nothing."

Ask Legislators' Aid

Following a long discussion over the proposed bill, the Commission adopted a resolution drawn up by Commissioner C. E. Lewis carrying out a suggestion made by the Municipal League that letters be sent to the representative and senator in the state legislature from this district and to members of the state highway committee asking their consideration in fighting the measure.

The resolution, as adopted, sets forth that the Village Commission "seriously objects to the bill," and believes that it should be amended to give a village in any township permission to obtain a release from the obligations of further property assessments for the highway improvement tax on

Pair Charged With Dry Law Offenses Faces Judge Buck

Two alleged liquor law violators arrested by Pontiac authorities in Pontiac were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Floyd S. Buck here Saturday morning.

Bertha Morris, charged with specific sale of intoxicating liquor on April 26, waived examination and was bound over to Circuit Court. Fred Rice, 605 Highland avenue, Pontiac, arrested for keeping a place where liquors are sold, stood mute and demanded an examination, date for which was set for 2 p. m., Thursday, May 14.

Both defendants were committed to Oakland County jail in default of bail.

DELINQUENT TAXES UPSET SCHOOL FUND

Board Forced To Seek Loan To Meet Next Payroll

ASKS TOWNSHIP AID

Among important matters discussed by the Birmingham Board of Education meeting, held Monday night at Baldwin High School, was the problem of obtaining sufficient funds with which to meet the next school payroll, due in two weeks. The problem has been raised at this time because of the delinquency in taxes, resulting in a shortage of funds available for school purposes.

Pending negotiations for a permanent loan to enable board over the balance of the school year, Louis M. Randall, business manager of the board, was instructed to investigate the possibility of making a temporary loan through a local bank with which to pay the teachers and others on the payroll of the board.

The financial difficulty has come about this year because of the fact that the 1931 tax delinquency totals $168,941.10, and that this sum of money, with allowance for normal delinquency, had been anticipated by the school board in the making of its budget last year. Due to a new state law governing school funds, the board is forced to borrow money through its own machinery, instead of relying upon the township, funds as in the past.

Need $101,250

The sum of money desired by the local board of education to carry on its work during the remainder of the school year is $101,250, or about 60 per cent of its delinquent taxes for this year. It is this amount the board seeks to borrow. If it is successful in doing so it will still have a delinquency credit balance of $67,576.14 on July 1.

On suggestion of Dr. W. G. Hutchinson, the board agreed to ask Bloomfield Township to assume notes outstanding from last year to the extent of $75,000. This sum was explained was loaned to the board by the banks of Birmingham last July when Bloomfield Township refused to borrow on delinquent taxes that the board might receive the full amount of the budget then due.

Same Person Believed Guilty Of Stealing Blanks From Two Realtors

The same person or persons who stole 27 blank checks from two check books of Louis Hascall, local realtor, on April 25, and later cashed 11 of them for $823, are believed to be guilty of the theft of 12 blank checks from Milton Parks, also a realtor, from his office in the McBride building sometime Tuesday between the hours of 10 A. M. and 2 P. M.

The checks were stolen from a desk while no one was in the office, Mr. Parks reported to police. Two of the checks had been made out and signed, one to an investment company and the other to an insurance company. None of the checks had been reported cashed up to late last night.

The checks stolen from Mr. Hascall were taken in much the same manner. Eleven of them have been reported cashed, each for $75. All were made out to and endorsed with the name "G. C. Mitchell." Mr. Hascall's signature was forged to each, police report.

They are believed to have been typed on the address written in the [illegible] office of Mr. Hascall stolen April 21 from the offices of Emerson C. Brown, landscape gardener in the Levinson building. Detective Joseph MacGregor is investigating both cases.

Failing To Save Girl's Life, Men Raise Burial Fund

A collection of approximately $75 to help pay the expenses of the burial of Lulu Leona Jackson, 45 years old, who was found dead from gas fumes last Wednesday in the kitchen of her home at 419 Birwood avenue where she was keeping house for her father and three smaller children, has been raised by firemen among village employees at the Municipal Building.

Collection of the fund was begun by members of the fire department who became interested in the case through their unsuccessful efforts at reviving the girl after working over her for nearly two hours with an oxygen pulmotor.

The Police Benefit Fund contributed $10 to the cause, and the rest was raised by firemen, under Chief Vernon Griffith, in a canvass of other village departments at the Municipal Building. The money has been turned over to the Community House for final settlement.

The funeral services were held at the Kimball-Bailey Funeral home Friday, Rev. R. M. Atkins of the Methodist Episcopal Church read the prayer service. Burial was at Kingston, Mich.

VILLAGE INCOME EXCEEDS EXPENSE

Plumstead Reports Surplus Of $1,086.36 For First Quarter

Revenue from village operations for the first three months of the current year were in excess of the expenses for the same period by $1,086.36, according to the financial report and current account as of April 1 presented to the Village Commission Monday night by Village Treasurer Charles E. Plumstead.

Total expenditures for the period, the report showed, amounted to $95,831.41, or 24.23 percent of the $395,400 budget allowance for the year. Of this, however, $5000 represented reserve for contingencies and was not an actual expenditure. The total revenue was $96,917.77 or 24.35 percent of the $398,104.03 expected income for the year.

Only one item—that of equipment under the department of general administration—was far in excess of the budget allowance for the period, figuring 25 percent as the proper allowance for the quarter. This amounted to $428.42, or 56.75 percent of the total budget allowance of $755 for the year. Total expenditures for the entire department, however, amounted to only $66,541.90, or 25.02 percent of the full budget allowance.

The police department expenditure during the re-monthly period amounted to 24.48 percent of the budget allowance for the

The more or less customary placidity of the Municipal Building was interrupted for several hours Friday by a succession of disturbances new to the regular routine of the building. The solemnity of village and township governmental offices was ruthlessly violated by sounds which carried throughout the building—sounds of frightened cries, gleeful laughter, surprised exclamations and a few plain bawls as they emanated from the lusty throats of infant patients at Birmingham's first child health clinic.

Sponsored by the Village Health Department in conjunction with county, state and national health day, the clinic assisted [illegible] ance of May Day [illegible] Health Day, the clinic examined 171 infants and pre-school children free of charge and will report defects to the family physicians of the youthful patients.

The clinic was directed by Dr. L. K. Kemp, village health officer, and Mrs. Olga Benning, health nurse. Birmingham physicians who assisted with the examinations included Dr. H. R. Roehm, Dr. J. B. Of the 171 children examined, 63 had no defects. Defects in the remaining 108 included 31 with bad teeth, 36 with defective tonsils or adenoids, 814 who were underweight and 27 with minor ailments. Fourteen children were found in need of glasses, and 80 who required toxin anti-toxin.

In the majority of the cases reported at the clinic had never before received a complete physical examination. All defects found were carefully noted and a copy of the report will be forwarded to the family physicians for their information and necessary action. Mrs. Benning made 120 home

Fred V. Quarton, In Ill Health For Year, Ends Life

Suicide Victim

Fred V. Quarton

Despondent because of a complete mental and physical breakdown which overtook him nearly a year ago, Fred V. Quarton, 55 years old, one of Birmingham's oldest and most respected citizens, committed suicide by hanging himself Monday afternoon in the attic of his home at 1158 West Maple avenue.

He was discovered by his wife, who had returned shortly after 5 o'clock from a visit to the Detroit office of Dr. Joseph A. Maunders, where she went for a medical examination for a throat infection. Dr. Maunders, who lives next door to the Quarton home, had been attending Mr. Quarton for the past 10 months. Sunday, according to members of the family, had been one of Mr. Quarton's best days for many weeks.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the late home, with burial in Greenwood Cemetery, Birmingham. Rev. R. M. Atkins, of the local First Methodist Episcopal church, of which Mr. Quarton was a member of long standing, will officiate.

Three Daughters Survive

Besides his widow, Mr. Quarton is survived by three daughters, Marion Irene, 22 years old; Frances Winifred, 20 years old, both students at the University of Michigan; and Grace Elizabeth, 17 years old, a student in the Birmingham Baldwin High School; two brothers, John Quarton of Hillsdale, and Albert E. Quarton of Ann Arbor. The two eldest daughters were honor students in the Birmingham schools, and are among the valedictorian of her graduating class.

C. F. Ickes[illegible], a next door neighbor, was the first to respond to Mrs. Quarton's call. Coroner G. Dewey Kimball was immediately summoned, and pronounced death due to strangulation. PAY TRIBUTES TO QUARTON

Friends Mourn, Community Shocked at Passing of Prominent Citizen

The entire community was stunned Monday afternoon by the sudden death of Fred V. Quarton, one of its best known and most highly regarded citizens, and the head of one of its most substantial families.

Expressions of heart-felt regret at his untimely passing were forthcoming readily from all of those who had known him as a friend and who had worked with him in public and private life. Statements from some of the men who knew him most intimately follow:

Rev. R. M. Atkins, pastor of the Birmingham Methodist Episcopal Church—During my pastorate of nearly six years in Birmingham I have known Mr. Quarton intimately both as an official member of the church and as a neighbor. Birmingham has had no kindlier neighbor and no more Christianlike gentleman than Mr. Quarton.

L. M. Randall, business manager of the Birmingham schools—The passing of Fred V. Quarton was certainly a shock to the Board of Education. Mr. Quarton served the Birmingham school district in a very efficient manner as a trustee, treasurer, advisor and faithful worker from 1922. I feel that the district has lost a very valuable member to its board.

Fred Mallender, one of Mr. Quarton's most intimate personal friends—He had always been like a brother to me. He was a wonderful man both to his family and to his community.

Clarence Vliet, superintendent of the Birmingham public schools—Fred V. Quarton was elected a trustee of school district No. 1, fractional, Bloomfield, at the annual meeting in July, 1922. At the organization of the Board of Education that year he was elected treasurer, an office which he held till Nov. 30, 1930. He was faithful in his attendance at all meetings of the Board of Education, was constructive in his criticisms of school policies, and firm in his decisions once made.

His advice and counsel were always sought by other board members and by individual teachers who turned to him for aid and assistance in time of trouble. He will be greatly missed by all who

$13,000 PLEDGED AS DRIVE ENDS

Community House Roll Call Drops $5000 Short Of Quota

A total of $12,895.50 was pledged in the annual Community House roll call which ended Monday night with a final dinner for the score of campaign solicitors, team captains and drive heads. A total of [illegible] the total subscribed represents a falling short slightly more than $5000 in the $18,000 quota set at the beginning of the campaign, Community House officials expressed gratification at the results obtained in the face of unprecedented handicaps imposed on campaign workers by the present business and financial conditions, and were inclined to regard the drive as a whole as a distinct success.
