From A WOMAN'S ANGLE

If you have a good personality, you can thank your thyroid gland. For, says Dr. Ronald A. Laird, professor of psychology at Colgate College, high pressure personality at an early age burns out the activity of this gland.

And so, counsels the good doctor, young men who like animation in a woman should not be misled into marrying the lively little girl who seems to be the life of every party at the doubtful age of 18.

She is just "overworking her thyroid gland, and the first thing she knows it will go blotto.

Then, after 10 years of married life, according to Dr. Laird, she will spend the evening with her darling basket, wearing a placid smile and her hair carefully parted in the middle.

When hubby suggests a show or a party with a little whoopee like the good old days, she will yawn and say, "Oh, I thought I'd go to bed early. I did such a big ironing today."

We don't contradict Dr. Laird, but from observation we have learned that sometimes when a guy botterly becomes a dull drudge after marriage it is just as likely to be because her husband has fallen down the job.

But the thyroid gland gets the blame.

Maude Adams is coming back at the age of 58.

Whenever I see Maude Adams' name I recall a little story told me by Mrs. Percy V. Pennybaker of Texas, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, a friend of the actress.

Miss Adams confided to her, Mrs. Pennybaker said, that one of her reasons for leaving the stage was because she suffered acutely from stage fright. She could not conquer it, and it so threatened her nerves, that she was forced to retire.

This was as much of a revelation to me as if someone confided that Mussolini suffered from stage-fright. It seemed unaccountable to think of an actress possessing Miss Adams' gift not to be sure of herself before an idolizing public.

Imagine the flapper of a few years ago making her debut at an afternoon musicale! But the deb of this season who makes her bow in New York is doing just that.

The reason is, a matinee performance can usually be put on at bargain prices. So strategic Mamas are beginning swank for gentility, and saving Pappas' pennies.

When they plan a presentation of the family hopeful nowadays, they dicker for bargains in entertainers to get name and fame at low figures.

Once upon a time, however, one little girl required the entire floor of a big Manhattan Hotel just to "come out" socially.

Now while the quartet sings "Just A Song At Twilight," the debutante stands beside Mamma and bows like the sweet Victorian her grandmas was.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Parker were honor guests Tuesday evening at a house-warming in their new home on Kennewick drive, which was planned as a surprise by members of their bridge club, including Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Neerken, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Boynton, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Hadley and Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Mixer.

Mrs. Robert F. Tilton of Hazelwood avenue entertained a foursome for luncheon and bridge at her home Friday. The guests were Mrs. B. William Mitchell of Detroit, Mrs. Herbert Royal and Mrs. F. W. Halladay of Bloomfield Hills.

Barnum Bridge Teas Are Well Attended

Guests who attended the first of a series of bridge teas held at the Community House Thursday under auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Barnum School, numbered 52.

Mrs. R. H. Harnack and Mrs. E. W. Allen won the two first prizes, Mrs. Wilford Russell and Mrs. Charles Rfidall were awarded the two second prizes and Mrs. O. D. Hillman won the bunco prize.

Hostesses included Mrs. Arthur Peck, Mrs. Raymond Peck, Mrs. L. H. Willard, Mrs. George W. Forester and Mrs. Earl H. Cunningham.

Mrs. Frank Smith of Lincoln avenue was hostess at the second affair in the series at her home Friday, when five tables of guests were entertained. Prizes were awarded at the close of the evening.

Mrs. D. L. Tate and Mrs. J. H. Rosso are entertaining, jointly to-day at the home of Mrs. Tate on Westchester Way.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller of Windsor, Ont. who were formerly residents of Birmingham, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington B. Duncanson of Bannville avenue, Sunday.

Mrs. Catesby Jones of New Orleans, who is on her way to the coast to sail for Europe was the guest in Birmingham last week of her sister, Mrs. J. G. Donaldson of Yorkshire road.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wilding of Fort Wayne, Ind., were guests last week of Dr. and Mrs. Carleton Fox of Riverside and Kensington drives.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Tilton of Hazelwood avenue will be hosts at a buffet supper Saturday evening for eight guests preceding the Village Players' presentation of "Journey's End." Those invited are Mrs. Frederick Shipman of Detroit and Gordon Barnum of Traverse City, Dr. and Mrs. John Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. J. Z. Landey and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mack. Mrs. Shipman and Mr. Barnum will be house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tilton over the week-end.
