Brucker Fails Oakland County

The next time you hear Governor Wilber M. Brucker rave about his desire to "keep up the morale and partiotic loyalty of the splendid (citizens of the great commonwealth of Michigan," just remember this: in the face of a tra delinquency that has resulted in the practical confusation of many Oakland County properties, and after 12 banks had closed their doors in Oakland County, the State Tax Commission came within our county borders and doubled, trebled, and in some cases quadrupled, existing withing the control of the control

Okaland County properties, and after 12 banks had closed their doors in Okaland County, the State Tax Commission came within our county borders and doubled, trebled, and in some cases quadrupled, existing viluations.

The Tax Commission admitted that it made no difference if, the new valuations were not placed on difference if, the new valuations were not placed on the various township rolls for another year, especially since Pontiac and Royal Oak cities would not receive the new figures until 1922. So petitions and delegations of pleading citizens were sent to Lamsing to confer with Governor Brucker, requesting that he withdraw the Tax Commission's activities until nexty year. Eventually, Governor Brucker, thought the stornery-general's department, arranged to make the wingures strick.

Oakland County citizens, in the face of the Grant's refusal to help "keep up their morale and patriotic loyalty," will do well to remember the tax Commission's right to come into Oakland County at the state of the country and make tex a revisions; but we do question the Tax Commission's right to come into Oakland County at the pleading of an already tax-burdened populace to perform an official duty which would only serve to restore their confidence and trust.

Governor Brucker, in his refusal to help Dakland County in the tax stutation, has, in our opinion, forfeit of the country and the strict country and the strict country and the strict country and the strict of the country and the strict country and the strict of the country and the strict of the country and the strict of the country and the country and the country and the country of Governor Brucker when he fails to recognize the pleading of an
