From A WOMAN'S ANGLE

By MARJORIE ELAINE PORTER

Good evening everybody! This is station F-O-O-B-Y. Our edition story this evening is about a little girl and her grandmother.

And the little girl's name was well, well, well, back in 1929 she bought a new red hat and coat and paid so much for both of them even then, so people call her "Red Riding Hood."

Red Riding Hood was going down to her grandma's one day to give her a beauty treatment. She carried a basket on her arm, and in it were all sorts of lovely scented creams to rub on and make a grandma look like her own grandchild.

down town and although I jumped into a cab, he got here first, and this he was right on your front porch taking a nap, when I came.

Grandmother threw herself back on the chaise longue and laughed and laughed, "that wolf has been at my door off and on for so many years, that when he comes back now, I just say, 'Hello, Fido, oo's a nice wolfie.'"

"But he isn't at my door any more than he's at my neighbor's doors these days. We're really getting used to him around here. Yes, there he is. Well, I expect he'll be around for some time."

"Afraid of him were you? That's the trouble with young people nowadays. They have too much faith in the Fairy God-mother's Prosperity. Tell them the wolf's at the door, and they go flying."

"But he spoke to me when I was in a store looking at a—that is just looking," Red Riding Hood declared.

"Glad he did," her grandmother commented. "When you go 'just looking' it takes a wolf to make you remember that your papa's name isn't King W. Midas."

"Now, my dear, let's get going. I'm all ready for my treatment."

All of a sudden, she heard someone say, "Who's that?"

Not recognizing any of her acquaintances, she must have had a walk-out at the zoo!"

"For crying out loud!" she exclaimed in her quaint Shakespearean English, "they must have had a walk-out at the zoo!"

"Pray don't be alarmed," en-treated the wolf, with a broad smile and a broad "a."

But as her Mamma had told her that as the way wolves always talked, Little Red Riding Hood shook her heels into a taxi.

But when she got to her grandmother's there was the wolf, stretched out on the porch taking a nap.

Dimly recalling somebody's advice about letting sleeping wolves be, and not wishing to disturb him, Red Riding Hood went around to the back door.

She found her grandma comfortably cuddled on the chaise longue reading "College Humor."

"Good morning, grandmother," she said, "I came to give you a beauty treatment. But you don't look as if you needed one."

"Why, grandmother, you have wrinkles!" HOW do you keep so young!"

"Cold cream," and common sense, my child." The grandmother replied.

"Yes, yes, I brought you a new supply of cold cream," Red Riding Hood said, remembering the basket, and placing 10 little white jars on the table, "but I don't know where to buy common-sense, grandmother."

"It's a thing you can't buy, my child," sagely remarked the grandmother. "Anyway even if you could, I don't need any more. I've got plenty. I don't worry, and that's where the common sense does its work."

"But grandmother, how can you help worrying when there's a wolf at your door?" poor Red Riding Hood exclaimed in distress.

"Wolf? Wolf?" asked her grandmother absent mindedly.

"Yes, a wolf. I saw him myself," Red Riding Hood continued excitedly. In fact he met me

Like Old English Grilling—this ELECTROCHEF 20-MINUTE OVEN BREAKFAST!

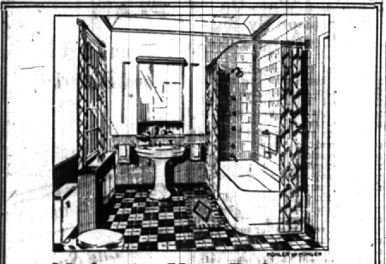

PREPARE a whole breakfast—A MAN'S BREAKFAST—in the ELECTROCHEF oven within twenty minutes! Muffins, broiled bacon and eggs can all be prepared at the same time, and served together, deliciously hot and appetizing. Enhanced flavor, like old English grilled bacon, results from ELECTROCHEF broiling. The bacon is evenly browned and keeps its shape—it does not shrivel into unmanageable curls. Even the eggs taste better than when fried, thanks to the "flavor conserving" heat of the ELECTROCHEF oven, which does not cook to toughness but cooks thoroughly and gently. Finally, ELECTROCHEF-baked muffins are delightfully flaky and tempting—a treat to top-off any breakfast! Here is a meal after a man's heart—and with the ELECTROCHEF range, it takes only 20 minutes to prepare!

"If You Do As Well By Me As You Have Done For My Sisters I Shall Be Entirely Satisfied" was the statement made by a recent graduate of the Secretarial Course. About six years ago one sister was placed in a Pontiac office where she is earning about $40.00 a week. About two years ago another sister was placed at a beginning salary of $22.50 a week, and she is now earning $30.00 a week.

The fourth member of this family expects to enroll soon.
