

B. H. S. June Graduates Hark To Call Of Many Campuses

When the college season, now fast approaching, gets under way for the 1931-32 term, Baldwin High School's June graduating class will be well represented with a large delegation of freshmen distributed widely over more than a dozen different campuses in various parts of the country.

At least 21 members of the latest class to issue from Baldwin will attend institutions of higher learning this fall, according to transcripts compiled in the office of the Board of Education.

A wide variety marks the choices of the students in selecting institutions for pursuing their academic training, and although Michigan schools lead the list, several others, both in the Middle West and in the East, are listed.

Following is the complete roster to date of the students and the schools which they plan to enter this fall:

Margaret E. Arnold, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Nurses' Training School, Pontiac; Grace Louise

Boyer, Harper Hospital Nurses' Training School, Detroit; Marian B. Fawar, National Kindergarten School, Evanston, Ill.; Virginia Helms, Albion College; Betty Jane Johns, Michigan State College; Mary Q. Johnson, Albion College.

Nancy E. Johnson, Albion College; Julia Kane, Sweet Briar College; Cara Mae Keller, Frances Shimer School for Girls; Ruth C. Love, Oak College Normal, Pontiac; Betty Neal and Doris Odessa Root, University of Michigan.

Donald W. Blow, University of Detroit; William M. Bowler, College of Mines, Houghton; Edwin W. Deer, University of Michigan; Theodor F. Etter and Joseph C. Huston, Michigan State College.

Charles G. Kimmon, Jr., Ohio State University; Dumont C. Mills, Dartmouth College; Morris Knight Winborn, Amherst College, Amherst, Mich.

False Predictions Of Prosperity Return Are Harmful, Lawyer Says

Samuel Utermeyer Says Nation Must Face Facts Of Long, Tedious Pull Back To Business Recovery

By SAMUEL UTERMAYER
New York Lawyer

[Samuel Utermeyer says here City of New York, Va., Mar. 2, 1858. He studied at the College of the City of New York and was later graduated from Columbia University. Since 1879 he has practiced law in New York City. He has acted as counsel for two hundred and thirty known persons, in one case receiving a lawyer's fee of $75,000. In 1904, '08, '12 and '15 he was a delegate to the Democratic national convention, and in 1920 a delegate-at-large from New York.]

The endless false alarms that are being and have been for the past two years ground out by the false prophets and fortune tellers again and again proclaiming the beginning of that triumphant march of prosperity that persistently refuses to respond to the waving of the magic administration wand, is making our government the laughing stock of the well-informed men of Europe with whom I came in contact on my brief visit to England, France and Germany.

Its effects are vicious in that it tends to delude us into a false sense of security and thus to prolong the long dark months of reckoning and readjustment through which we must yet travel on our return journey to normalcy and the prosperity that is bound to come if we can but avoid the pitfalls, blunders and missteps with which incompetent government is ever ready to clutter our path.

There is no "royal road" and no short back cut to our goal. It is going to be a long and tedious pull, which is being made longer and more arduous by these false prophecies that obstruct our progress. The sooner we realize that neither this generation, nor perhaps the next, is likely to witness a return to the abnormal demands to meet which we expanded our industries, nor the inflated values of our post-war times when the rest of the world lay prostrate, the better it will be for us.

There are, however, in my humble view, many things which we can do to help pull ourselves out of our present morass, and I accordingly venture to add my faint voice to those of the many hundreds of public-spirited men who have been discussing this subject in the hope that some constructive thought and action may come out of this combined effort.

1. Spend less, and save more.
2. Readjust production to reduced demands.
3. Revision of the anti-trust laws.
4. Tariff revision on certain articles.
5. Encourage restriction of production to demand under regulation of the Interstate Commerce Commission.
6. Wise regulation of a legalized liquor traffic.
7. Economy in local, state and national government.

Couzens Urges More Even Distribution Of Profits

"Without This We Cannot Maintain Stability of Prices," Senator Says, Declaring For More Action

By JAMES COUZENS
WHAT WE need most in this country to prevent these periods of depression is better distribution of profits between capital and the workers. Without that we cannot maintain stability of prices.

In this present situation we need more action and less talk. We are not just going to have it made through.

I cannot understand how anyone can consider cutting wages, for it is only through payment of high wages that the workers are given a buying power that helps to make the market for all our manufactured goods. These industries that have maintained high wage schedules are best off today.

When we recover from this depression our job will be to provide forms of insurance to working men against unemployment, so that they will feel safe from that peril and assured that they do not need to hoard against long periods of unemployment without income.

James Couzens

about ambulances and ambulance service? About all the average individual knows is that ambulances have sirens, and are mighty important when one is ill or injured.

But one should know more than that. One should know, for example, that our ambulances are modern throughout, and available every minute of the twenty-four hours, and that it is used only for ambulance work.
