generate comfort and blassing? Wasn't your answer something like this: by helping others, I can do to most good which merely bring! us to this conviction that a which merely bring! us to this conviction that the state of the past 17 years a member of the Baldwine Public Library board, of Birmingham, 16 of which were spent as its president, insist have within her own consciousness of deep and satisfying sense of having performed her civic obligation long and well. To give of your time to a community project as long as Mrs. Barr has done, merits real gratitude.

From the less spacious quarters in the old library building, that stood for many vara where the Briggs Building now stands at the southeast corner of Woodward and Maple avenues, to the present beautiful Baldwin Public Library, is a great step. From a comparatively few shelves of books to the many, many rows now obtainable, is also a mark of progress—and how fine must be Mrs. Barr's recollection of the part she has played in the growth of Birming hars library.

Mrs. Barr submitted her resignation to the Library board, due to ill health. Many local citi-ensar are mindful off the uniting efforts to make the library a helpful part of our community life. To them we suggest the formation of some plan that will reveal to Mrs. Barr how grateful we all are for a witable plaque in the Library, or a picture. Whatever it may be, we herewith offer pur support, financial and otherwise; and may we suggest that some member, or all, of the Library board project the plan? and otherwise; and may we suggest that mber, or all, of the Library board project

Who Loves Whiskey . . .

Verne J. Brown, p iblisher of the Ingham County News, at Mason, is also a member of the House of Representatives in Laning. He is recognized among the newspaper frasternity as one of the serious mind-ed editors in the state—and Mr. Brown generally expresser fully and completely, with a real desire te tell the truth, his thoughts upon any subject. Al-though The Eccentric disagrees with some of Mr. Brown's ideas, we have never questioned his sin-certity.

Our Juvenile Home

Dan A. McGaffey, Oakland County Judge of Probate, is a real disciple of the truthful warch for a solution to the modern crime problem. He is severe in his denunciation of the present senal system, which he labels as dominated with politics and barren of a serious desire to reform wrong-doors. Judge McGaffey believes that the adult criminal could have been assed when his first buysh mistake was discovered. That is the principle upon which he seeks to conduct the Oakland County Juvenile Homes, with the able assistance of Ross Tenny, superintendent of that institution. The Eccentric feels strongly with Judge McGaffey in his views of the crime problem. We wish to congratulate the Judge for his strady heart and loyal courage—and we know that more than one Oakland County erring youth of Goday will have cause, fater in life, to bless the hand and heart that now guides his reformation in the Lound.

1881—Fifty years ago women wore hoop-skirts, bustles, petitionis, corest, cotton stockings, high buttoned shore, ruffled cotton drawers, flamed night-gowns, puffs in their hair—did their own cooking, shing, examing, washing, ironing—raised big families—went to church Sunday—were too busy to be sick.

AIMEE SEMPLE MCPHERSON, the Los Angeles escorter of souls to lofty places, recently required her audience to pin their collection offerings to lines strung about the Angelus Temple, where she presides as proprietor. It was a brilliant stroke of finances or should have been, if the irreligious human desire to "keep up with the Juneses" was manifest at the organ pealed off the notes from each member's bankroll.

OAKLAND COUNT'S GRAND JUNY met one day last week, and then adjourned until September 21. This was because Phil Robinson and A. I. Capizzi, of the state's attorney-general's office, are investigating corruption in another section of Michigan. In the meantime, bowever, Oakland County citizens are cultivaring the pentle art of patience.
