Birmingham Singers Take Part In Radio Program

Familiar voices floated through the ether to Birmingham's radio audience Wednesday evening when, at the twilight hour, a group of members of the Thursday Musicale Chorus sang the "Slumber Song of the Madonnas," by May Strong, a Michigan composer.

The program was broadcast from station WWJ through the courtesy of the departments of music and literature of the University of Detroit. Frederick A. Prothero directed the group.

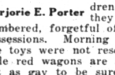

Members of the chorus taking part in the broadcast were Mrs. M. A. Tyson, soloist; Mrs. Orville H. Foster, Jr., Mrs. Herbert E. Moore and Mrs. William E. Hoier, first sopranos; Mrs. Donald T. Stanton and Mrs. H. H. Gardner, second sopranos; Mrs. Indira Kane Davis, Mrs. Karel Rickerzon and Mrs. Ward Cruickshank, altos; Mrs. Howard E. Tuggey was the pianist.

From A WOMAN'S ANGLE

Rain fell, and snow—and all night long in the cold and dark, a little red dump-truck lay deserted. Not far from it was another refuge from Toyland, a one-eyed, resplendent first truck.

In a field, upside down, was a nice little doll carriage, a doll beside it lay the diminutive face upon a n t t, face buried in the mud.

And all the while the children to whom they belonged slumbered, forgetful of their toy possessions. Morning came, and the toys were not rescued. The little red wagons are still there, not as gay to be sure as when

Plans Complete For First Dance In New Series

The co-operation of all mothers interested is invited by members of the committee arranging for a new series of dances for young people between the ages of 12 and 15 years, the first of which will be held at the Community House Saturday evening.

The committee in charge includes Mrs. E. D. Baker, chairwoman; Mrs. H. E. Whalen, Mrs. W. B. Brown and Mrs. James White. The party will be held from 8 to 9:30 P. M. with the same orchestra that plays for the regular Saturday night dances at the Community House.

But looking at the matter from the child's point of view, isn't there something back of this which can be used in connection with his own training?

If parents only realized it, toys could prove very useful in driving home to the child's understanding some of the important lessons and principles of life.

What is economy if it is not the mental habit of preservation? To save what one has, so that it may be of prolonged usefulness, is certainly a thrifty virtue.

To the child, toys take the place of the worldly goods of his elders. They are his possessions, his riches to save or squander, to have or to lose.

And through the care of these possessions, he may be trained in the habits of economy. It is easy to appeal to the normally intelligent child in this way.

When he finds the once loved red truck which he prized so much at Christmas time rusty and unable to turn its wheels, he is unable to have some pangs of regret, if he isn't thoroughly spoiled.

And that is the opportunity for Mother or Dad to point out gently what it does to a toy to be left in the rain or snow, and that the way to keep it and be able to play with it much longer is to bring it indoors every night.

The little girl will usually react to an emotional appeal. Just say

County Federation To Sponsor Joint Recital

The Thursday Musicale Chorus of Birmingham will go to Pontiac Monday to take part in a program of unusual interest to musical circles throughout Oakland County.

Under auspices of the Oakland County Federation of Women's Clubs a joint recital will be given in the auditorium of Pontiac High School Monday by groups representing musical organizations from various towns in the county.

In addition to Birmingham seven other cities and villages will participate in the program. The Thursday Musicale Chorus will be given a group of songs under the direction of Frederick A. Prothero. The chorus of the Morning Musicale of Royal Oak, under the direction of Federal Whittlesey, will also sing a group of songs.

Miss Florence Riding of Farmdale will sing solos from the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Sorcerer," in costume. The Farmdale program will also include a piano solo by Miss Mae LaRue, and two interpretive dances, "The Awakening of Persephone," and "An Impression of Strauss," by Miss Mary Gillian.

Musical clubs from Holly, Oxford and Lake Orion will present operatic selections in costume. Scenes from "Madame Butterfly" will be given by the group from Holly. Miss Anne Findley of Oxford is arranging a costume presentation of scenes from the opera, "Carmen," and the music group from Lake Orion will sing selections from "Il Trovatore."

Miss Edith Facer of Oak Park will play a group of piano solos, and the violin ensemble of the Tuesday Musicale of Pontiac will also contribute to the program.

Mrs. C. A. Bowling of Bates street, president of the Women's Literary Club, is distributing tickets for the recital in Birmingham.

Missionary Juniors To Present Playlet

"Coins at Work" is the title of a missionary playlet which will be presented by members of the Light Bearers, a children's group directed by Mrs. Earl G. Potter, at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday evening.

This will be the second performance of the play, as it is presented the first time before members of the Detroit Presbyterian Tuesday night.

The Light Bearers is a junior missionary organization composed of girls ranging from eight to 12 years of age.

The service, which will cover the period of an hour, will also include a brief sermon by Rev. W. Clarence Wright.

other day upon the subject of it is not our personal opinion that counts but rather proper presentation before the court.

Personally it was my feeling that the last plan under consideration for re-opening the bank did have much to commend it, as I understand the proposal for levying the assessment against the stockholders would bring little cash into the bank in that some of the larger depositors were being asked to assign enough of their deposits to make up the assessments for the stockholders. This would provide little working capital.

Ex nudo pacto non oritur actio.

It seems that our depositors' committee is somewhat derelict in their duties. It is reported that a local firm has been granted and paid a preferred claim of $62,000 against the bank assets. It is possible that the depositor's committee could have obtained an injunction to restrain the receiver from paying this preferred claim until such a time as the Supreme Court issued an opinion as to what constituted a preferred claim. Perhaps this money can be recovered through the process law. In the Berkeley and Tecumseh cases it is my understanding it was ruled that public monies such as school funds or other municipal, township or county deposits did not constitute a preferred claim. Optimus interpres regum esse.

While the state makes every effort to properly protect depositors in state banks, it must be remembered that the many existing strained financial situations have thrown a great burden upon state and judicial officers and each individual is expected to give consideration to the protection of his own rights. Acta exteriora indicant interiora secreta.

Inasmuch as our bank closed on June 16, 1931, we can only expect our receiver to conform with the Michigan state banking regulations and call upon all depositors who have claims against the bank to make legal proof of their claims. Sales populi suprema lex.

Act 66, P. A. 1929, section 11945, Liability of Stockholders; enforcement reads as follows: "The stockholders of every bank shall be individually liable, equally and severally, and not one for another, to satisfy the obligations of said bank to the amount of their stock in the par value thereof, in addition to the said stockholders. Such liability may be enforced in a suit at law or in equity by any such bank in process of liquidation, or by any receiver, or other officer succeeding to the legal rights of the bank." In view of the foregoing we may presume that the receiver will make an effort to collect from the stockholders of the closed bank in Birmingham.

Respondent superior legis exsultat ipse lex. Ignorantia facti excusat, ignorantia juris non excusat. PRO BONO PUBLICO.
