FIFTY-FIFTH YEAR—NO. 18

CHARTER TO BE HELD SEPT. 15

Details of difficulty in obtaining funds with which to carry on work, might be made to provide some intelligent people with food-for thought.

Michigan's State Tax Commission recognizes the heavy burden which has been placed upon the state real and personal tax valuation a billion dollars in the past year.

County suggests that soon the former Governor Kester, will be restored to his former office. It is in the opinion of the writer that the restoration of Kester to the office of Governor is a most desirable thing.

The Detroit Free Press, coming in Detroit County through its correspondent, Lawrence M. McCreary, has published an article in its issue of Sept. 15, 1932, entitled "The State Bankers' Plan to Take Over the State Bank."

Competitively speaking, a small percentage of our resources went into the hands of recipients since 1920. It is true that Michigan has a large number of banks, but the majority of these banks are under general supervision and scrutiny of the State Bank Department.

Township Budget Promised Before Village City Ball

Advocates of City Form Question Tentative Figures, So Board Will Act

By ALLEN TENNY
The Bloomfield Township Board of the Supervisor Perry A. Vaughan himself, will say it all night if necessary, to adopt a budget before Birmingham's election on the village-city issue Sept. 15.

Not that any of the members are at all desirous of staying up to the point of exhaustion, but it is important as a budget. But township officials are agreed that the amount of money they propose to spend between now and April 1 is likely to have an important bearing on the election, and they are willing, yes, eager—to get information to the voters before they go to the polls.

Estimate Questioned
All of which is introductory to the estimate of $40,000, a recent figure of $40,000, as drafted, the charter calls for a five-man Commission, one member of which would be elected mayor by the other members. It leaves the hiring of a city manager to the judgment of the City Commission, and provides for a City Court to be presided over by a judge who may or may not necessarily be an attorney. The charter will be published in full in the week's issue of the Enterprise.

CONCORD ON RIGHTS YEAR

Vaughan Says Township Will Not Ask to Cancel All Contracts

Bloomfield Township will not attempt to turn off all its road lights, but will probably make a concession on Woodward avenue and the intersections, curves and hills that have always been a problem for the township, according to Supervisor Perry A. Vaughan following a conference with officials of the Detroit Edison Company.

Mr. Vaughan conferred with the Detroit Edison Company in regard to an act of the Michigan State Legislature, discovered by the township recently, which forbids townships from spending money for electric power for lighting purposes. Bloomfield Township at present has contracts for the use of an amount of about $12,000 per year.

Although it has already spent about $12,000 since the beginning of fiscal year on April 1, it does not propose to ask the Edison Company to cancel all its contracts for the remainder of this year, Mr. Vaughan said.

Instead, negotiations will be asked to turn the township's supply of about $250 a month for the remainder of this year, he declared, and Mr. Vaughan said he would bring the township into the $5,000 limit for the future.

NEWTON DEFENDS STATE TAXATION

Largely Reducible Would Increase Local Burdens, He Tells School Association

Wayne Newton, secretary of the State Commission of Inquiry into Educational Conditions, was the speaker at the first annual meeting of the Oakland County Rural Education Association at Bloomfield Township Park yesterday.

Previous to Mr. Newton's speech, the school board of the township was made by the group and a picnic lunch was served at the park.

The purpose of the organization is the betterment of conditions in rural schools in the county.

Mr. Newton, who was formerly a member of the Michigan State Farm Bureau and of a committee studying rural tax conditions under the Federal Department of Agriculture, said:

"The starlings, thousands strong, first came to roost in the trees about two weeks ago. They would settle in the trees, and then they would fly out in the morning, and again early in the morning, both on their arrival and departure."

Complaints of residents in the district brought out the five department of the state, and the birds were seen in the trees about five days ago. The first accurate observation was believed to have been made by a bird club member, who reported that the birds had watered saltpre the next day, or the next day.

Monday night, however, neighbors clanked their teeth again as they saw the clouds of chattering birds.

Joe's Speech Stirs Picnickers To Riot
Kangaroo Candidate's Challenge To Clean Up Bloomfield A Boomerang

Joe J. Jackrabbit, the kangaroo politician who is a candidate for county dog commissioner in the county, 13 primary candidates in a major riot among 3,000 picnickers gathered at Candidates' Park yesterday afternoon for the annual Farmer-Fabricator picnic and rally.

The trouble began when a pair of backslatters in the back of the crowd started booing Joe when the latter was in the midst of an address dealing with the approaching election.

It was learned later that the men had become angered because they discovered Joe had promised them each the same job if they would vote for him and took to expressing his speech as a means of jousting their disapproval.

"I say, he's clean up the county, let's clean up this whole dirty political mess," Joe was saying.

"Yes, and let's clean up on the speaking," he shouted one of the hecklers, and the pair started on their heels, and rolling up their sleeves.

Their had advanced only two steps toward the speaker's platform when two burly policemen grabbed them by the collars and began pulling them back.

About half the crowd was for lynching the men and the other half for lynching the speaker. Within 10 seconds the whole park was a seething mass of half-dressed rioters, shouting, hitting, kicking, screaming and punching.

There were no casualties, although Hank Hoopdoodle, Joe's campaign manager, was a pretty generally on hand whenever there is a fight in the village, took a seat in the bleachers with a baseball bat and was unconscious for 10 minutes before he was taken to the hospital.

Joe himself, who ducked under a refreshment stand and ate ice cream cones while the fighting was going on, was not hurt, but was over and finished his speech in which he advocated, first, repeal of the 1931 amendments to the constitution, and finally, of the constitution itself.

A vote on the resolution was deferred, however, when Mr. McKinney objected on the grounds it would work a hardship. On the basis of last year's collection of delinquent taxes, he pointed out, not more than $67,000 in 1931.
