Don't Give Up Lady

"Commence each day with a smile," they say,
But take it from me it does not pay.
I greet the morn with a joyous song
And my neighbor called, "Is something wrong?"
When the bacon burned I merrily laughed
And my husband said: "Have you gone daft?"
I told a caller I liked her hat—
And she told me I was getting fat.
I started the day with a glad good will—
I finished up with a will to kill.

Lincoln Eulogized In Talk To Local Fathers And Sons

The character and achievements of Abraham Lincoln were the theme of an address by Judge E. J. Millington of Cadillac, Mich., at the Father and Son banquet held at the First Baptist Church Monday evening.

"Lincoln is significant because he demonstrated that democracy is a practical, going concern, which can endure", Judge Millington pointed out.

Lincoln's integrity and habits of clean living, his capacity for work, and his insight into human nature were named as attributes of his success by Judge Millington.

Leland Bunyan, who presided, introduced Raymond Peck, who served as master of ceremonies. The program also included instrumental numbers by Walnie and Peter Kliewer, and sleight-of-hand tricks by Clarence Cummings.

Seth Perkins and his "Plain Folks" of Pontiac will give a concert of old fashioned hymns at the Baptist Church at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

Through a Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

Fooling the Bees

An apiarist in Canada is trying the experiment of shipping his bees to Australia in the fall. The idea is to eliminate their long winter rest and make them produce all the year round. After they have worked all summer in the North, and just as they would begin to think of going to hibernate into winter quarters, they are to find themselves in a new field of activity, where summer has just begun. So, by chasing summer around the globe, their owner expects to get double duty out of his bees.

Then our modern rush is to reach even the bees. That perfect model of industry, that most efficient and indefatigable producer known to man is to be made to work overtime! One wonders whether the apiarist from Canada can get away with it!

In their display of intelligence and common sense, in organization and constructive ability, the bees present an example that might well be emulated by humans. They have a well-organized society system, each of their three classes having a distinct purpose in life from which they never for a moment depart.

The queen has her flight and then settles down to constant increase of the population. The males, or drones, play their part in the propagation of the species, after which they are systematically massacred by the workers. These, with a deliberateness and a singleness of purpose which would do credit to any human, fulfill their purpose of preparing the comb, rearing the young, and producing honey, always producing, not merely what is needed for sustenance, but a plentiful supply for the long winter season when there are no flowers to yield their nectar. A "rainy day" never finds the bees unprepared!

When a hive has become too large for efficient management, or when a second queen is maturing, the bees do not revolt or dispute or fight or contest with each other for a place. They simply gather under their chosen leader and swarm — colonizing a new hive, where business goes on "as usual."

Bees never "rush," never try to overdo. They are calm, deliberate, sure of themselves. One cannot imagine a bee, for instance, having the clock set ahead in order to get him out of bed on time, and insisting that in this way he could cheat himself of sleep and not be tired. That's a human stunt, not the bee's.

And so one wonders whether the trick of mowing the bees to follow summer will work, whether these very superior beings can be fooled into burning the candle at both ends! I'm just unpractical enough to hope they strike. What do you say?

Give Him Time

They had new neighbors and the wife was much interested in them. In a few days she reported: "They seem a most devoted couple, John. He kisses her every time he goes out and even waves kisses to her from the sidewalk. Why don't you do that?"

"Why don't I?" replied John, "Good heavens, I don't even know her yet."

KITCHEN CUPBOARD

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Food for the Family

FOR those who like the filling but do not eat pastry try the filling in cups.

Pumpkin Pie in Cups.—Put a rim of pastry around custard cups after filling them with pumpkin pulp and bake as usual.

Cranberry Ice.—Cook cranberries as for sauce and strain them, add an equal amount of sugar sirup and freeze. Make the sirup by boiling two cupfuls of sugar with one-half cupful of water. Cool and add to the juice. Freeze and serve in cups.

Turkey Giblet Soup.—Chop the cooked giblets fine, then put through a coarse sieve. Thicken the liquor in which the giblets were cooked with a little butter and flour cooked together, then add cream to the giblets and brown stock to make the quantity desired.

Chestnut Stuffing. — Blanch a pound of Italian chestnuts, boil until tender and put through the sieve. Add one cupful of bread crumbs, one-half cupful of shortening, one tablespoonful of poultry seasoning, a half cupful of raisins, salt, celery, pepper and cayenne to taste.

Cabbage Salad.—Shred a firm white head of cabbage and dress with cream, add a dash of vinegar and sugar to taste with a bit of salt.

Eggs Marchesa.—Butter muffin tins and set upon the stove to warm. In the bottom of each put a teaspoonful of soft bread crumbs, add a dessert spoonful of milk, then a fresh egg carefully broken, season with salt, paprika and pepper. Over this drop a lump of butter, more bread crumbs and a little grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven for ten minutes. They should be a golden brown and when a knife is run around the edge and they are turned out on a hot platter, they look like brown puff balls.

A hot egg sandwich is most appetizing for a quick lunch. Fry a little onion in butter until the onion is light yellow, then drop in an egg. Cook until done, put onto a piece of hot buttered bread, cover with another and serve.
