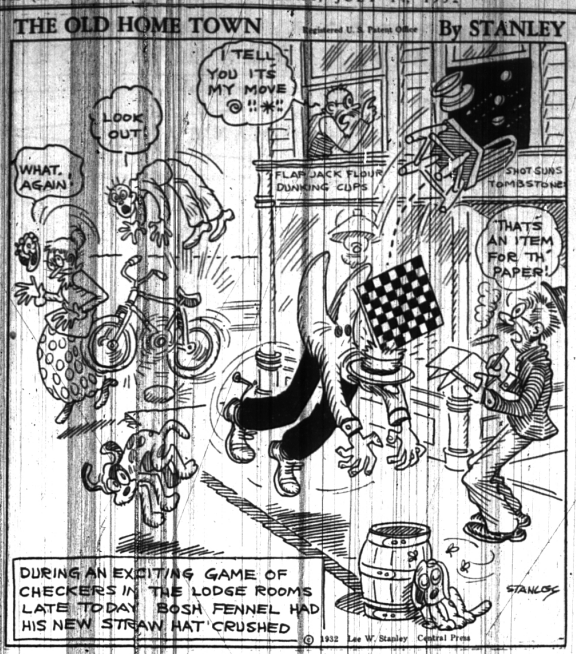
THE OLD HOME TOWN

Registered U. S. Patent Office By STANLEY



My New York

by JAMES ASWELL

By Central Press

NEW YORK—Wild-eyed Wanderings:

Bumped into Joseph J. "Two-Gun" Murphy, the former narcotic squad sleuth, whose exploits have periodically made headlines along Broadway the other night, and he told me he was sad about the continued flourishing of the dope traffic. While he scowled in the glow of a mid-town marquee, he pointed out to me a number of big shots in Manhattan's underworld. I was astonished to note that all of them were dressed conservatively, even somberly—the newest fashion among racketeers who mortally hate and fear the spot-light of publicity. . .

James Aswell

The old penchant of gunmen for striped vest and diamond stickpins has given way to an effort to resemble stockholders or even college boys in the more fashionable schools.

A jaunt to the country the other evening, to take a squint at some of the roadhouses and cabarets which invite city dwellers with cars on hot evenings. El Casa and the Pavilion Royal, in Valley Stream Long Island, the former featuring the antics of Joe Lewis, a loonily amusing monologist, and the latter offering patrons the postures of Gene Malin, a female impersonator who doesn't bother to put on dresses. . .

Albert, the former head waiter at Rector's of glamorous memory for old-timers, presided over El Casa. . .He told me that the girls in the floor show all lived in the neighborhood, some of them coming out with their families for the summer. . .Many displayed healthy coats of tan, and the whiter areas covered by bathing-suit straps. . .

IN THE STREAM

Economy has dimmed the lights of Broadway in the small hours. . .Hucksters now offer cherries and plums to stage-door fans, and competition among newsies has driven the price of predated morning newspapers down to 2 cents everywhere except in the suburbs. . .Bread lines seem smaller than formerly, and I hope the impression is correct. . .

Tallulah Bankhead makes the dentist play a gramaphone to drown out the hum of the drill while she's in the chair. . .My scout for utterly useless information reports that taxidermists never stuff specimens any more, but make plaster casts and put the feathers or fur on these models. . .

What's happened to the lady taxi drivers? . . .There used to be two on the streets, but neither has passed my way in months. . . One of these, a hard-working mother with muscular biceps, encountered a fresh fare one night late and sent him bowling from the cab, nursing a black eye. . . There are, by the way, three feminine cab pilots on the streets of Paris, and two in London. . . Moscow has scores. . .

Millions of letters are still dropped into boxes with the old 2-cent stamps affixed, despite the wide publicity given to the current three-cent rate. . .I am told that some observers fear an increase in pay roll hold-ups, due to the tax on checks and the invitation thus extended to disburse wages in cash. . .Shine boys cluster around the central and branch postoffices here, perhaps because passers-by hall from the stamp windows and frequently have lots of loose change in their pockets. . .

SALESTALK

One bootblack in the Grand Central district has developed a cry something on the order of the characteristic "Ahh-h!" uttered by Nils T. Granlund, the night club master of ceremonies when he introduces a cutie on the floor. . .But the shine lad points to the shoes of pedestrians and shakes his head chidingly as if to say, "You ought to be ashamed—going around with unpolished kickers like that."

He gets the bulk of the corner's trade. . .

THIS LOONY TOWN

After Paris, New York always reminds me of a plump and intensely conservative rural justice of the peace. . .But the truth is, as old-timers will tell you, Paris is at heart twice as provincial and strait-laced as Gotham. . .But this rock-ribbed asylum does have a clean, wide, solemn sweep to it that no foreign strand possesses with the possible exception of Berlin, where the tallest skysnubber is 14 stories. . .

And standing, for a moment on the top deck of the Empire State edifice, eighty-odd tiers in the air, I can't help remembering the Frenchman who looked out of the top, eighth-story window of a downtown Paris office building and murmured: "Doesn't it give you a kick to be so high above a town?"

CHILDREN BLAMED FOR PORCH BLAZE

Children playing with matches were believed to be the cause of a blaze which did slight damage to a vacant house at 771 Bird street Monday evening. The fire started in paper and rubbish under the back porch, and spread to the porch floor above before firemen could be called.

Nation Wide Drive Urged To Curb Traffic Mishaps

By GIFFORD PINCHOT

DURING the past year Pennsylvania had a reduction of 2.7 percent in highway accidents. The country at large had an increase. But we had an increase of 5.4 percent in fatalities, an increase of 2.5 percent in injured persons, and an economic loss of at least $200,000,000 due directly or indirectly to motor vehicle transportation, and all this in the face of a 1 percent decrease in motor vehicle registrations.

Gifford Pinchot

In Pennsylvania we have not been hitting them so often. But it is very evident, from the increase in fatalities, that we have been hitting them harder. This means that our motor vehicle operators are driving too fast—I mean driving too fast at the wrong time.

I see no good reason why on a clear, open road without curves or grades a driver should not make as much speed as is reasonable and safe under the circumstances. But there is simply no reason at all for the speed fiends whose minimum speed at all times is the car's maximum.

I think automobile manufacturers are in part responsible for unreasonable speeding. Their advertising writers soar down on the projectile-like qualities of their machines. I have read advertisements that claim a speed of 100 miles an hour. Others modestly allege a maximum of 80 or 90.

Unfortunately, the cars get in the hands of judgementless drivers who try to reach the maximum. Then there is trouble. In 1931, 21 percent of our highway accidents was with pedestrians, 47 percent of the fatalities were pedestrians, and nine times as many pedestrians were injured as were killed. This is a statewide, yes, nation-wide question, and deserves a lot of consideration.

The state can properly assist in securing the spread of information and ideas and co-ordination of activities, but the fact remains that state and local authorities, with the co-operation of the public, must be responsible for the practical application of remedial measures.

State Fair To Have Huge Cattle Show

DETROIT.—The greatest total of dairy and beef cattle ever exhibited at the Michigan State Fair and Exposition is expected to be entered in competition at the 1932 Fair, Sept. 4 to 10.

At the rate at which entries are being received, 2,000 head of cattle will be entered in this year's cattle department, a figure which, if reached, will mark a new high point for this department, rapidly becoming one of the finest among all state fairs.

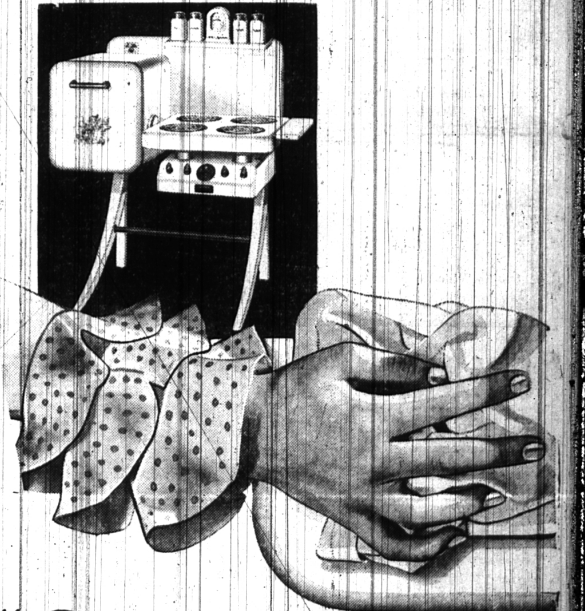
In 1931 this department established the Fair's all-time record with a 100 percent increase in exhibitors and a 70 percent increase in exhibits over 1930. Another record was the preponderance of Michigan-owned cattle over non-state displays and the number of Michigan "dirt farmers" who entered the competition.

As is customary, the greatest individual group of cash awards, trophies and ribbons at the Fair will be in the cattle department, a total of $16,369.25. For beef breeds the awards total $6,532.85; commercial breeds, $135; Michigan Beef Producers' Special, $320; dual purpose breeds, $1,717.40; dairy breeds, $7,684.

2 COWS IN ENDICOTT HERD MAKE RECORDS

Entrance in the Advanced Registration of the American Guernsey Cattle Club has been accorded two cows in the herd of John Endicott, Bloomfield Hills, following their completion of new official records of production.

The animals are Maple Crest Lorna 216272, four years old, which produced 11,452 pounds of milk and 605.8 pounds of butter fat in Class B; and three-year-old Langwater Queen's Fancy 284560 with a production of 11,132.1 pounds of milk and 465.8 pounds of fat in Class D.



"CLEAN!

The snow-white porcelain of my ELECTRO-CHEF is as easily cleaned as a china dish"

"All my friends admire the snow-white porcelain and sparkling chromeplate of my new Electrochef. My new range is really lovely, and it is practical as well as attractive. Cleaning the smooth, polished surfaces is as easy as cleaning a china dish. Simply wiping with a damp cloth instantly restores the original luster.

"There's another reason why my Electrochef is easier to clean than other stoves. All corners are rounded, inside and out, and there are no cracks or crevices anywhere to collect dirt. Even the oven can be stripped completely, leaving only the round-cornered inner shell to be washed out. Scouring does not injure the bright chromeplate finish. I'm certainly proud of my modern, snow-white range"
