RE-OPENING PLAN PASSES 60% MARK

Meritorious Committee Says New Law Describes Status Of Discontented Depositors

Harry Allen, Williams C. Harris and Stanley Peabody, members of the committee which is attempting to secure signatures representing 84 percent of the depositors of the closed First State Savings Bank as an agreement for a moratorium plan for reopening the bank, stated yesterday that more than 60 percent of the required amount has been pledged.

In answer to inquiries as to the status of depositors who have not signed the agreement when the plan goes into effect, the committee revealed that the situation is fully covered by House Bill 17, enacted at the recent special session of the State Legislature.
