

As you go about your daily duties, don't forget to read the Birmingham Post-Herald. It is the only newspaper in the city that is read by every one.

S and THAT

By G. R. A.
Represents in the Chicago convention straddled the prohibition question, trying to get both sides of the fence. The Democrats, however, have put forth a "half-brother," "cheerleader" and the best of a regular middle on it they can get. One would suppose that, new and the long time of the political party ought to be able to see in a stand that is understood.

If it takes more than one vote to make a winner, then by the time the process is over, you require more than one presidential election to "beat" the party leader in his line of political side-tracks.

Here is a little gem for memorizing. It is not possible to ascertain the author's name, but he or she must have known a garden.
"A tree may open anywhere; Upon wood or path or lawn Or through a street or road or Where some pass by from dawn But if you'd have a mind at ease, A tree that cannot harden, And a house that that open wide Upon a little garden."

Suggest the name of a high school in Colorado and every person will reply "Pike's Peak." Yet there are schools in Colorado whose names are higher than Pike's Peak. The only reason you think of Pike's Peak is because of its prominence as a public utility—signifying the power of the tremendous power of advertising.

Erwin, the learned German scientist, does not always keep his head to keep the stars; he pauses now and then to observe the ways of humans, and to point out matters that, if pondered, would lead to a more abundant peace and abundance. For instance, what was recently said upon the subject of advertising.
"I begin by stating this conviction: that the state exists for man, not man for the state. The state may be said to exist for the state. This is an old principle, laid down by the ancients. It is a principle that should be constantly restated if it were constantly in danger of being forgotten, especially in this age of materialism and standardization. I believe that the most important mission of the state is to make it possible for him to develop into a creative personality."

Commission May Postpone Voting On City Question

New Figures Show Proposed Change May Bring Added Poor Relief Burden
HEARING SET FOR MONDAY NIGHT
Whether new facts uncovered during the past week, bearing on the proposed adoption by Birmingham of the city form of government, should result in a withdrawal of petitions and temporary postponement of the special election, set for Aug. 3, will be decided at a public meeting to be held at the Municipal Building Monday night directly following the regular Commission meeting.

The new facts, consisting principally of figures tending to show that the additional poor relief burden which would be placed on the village in the event it should become a city would partially, if not entirely, offset the saving to be derived from elimination of township taxes, were discussed by civic leaders at special meetings Thursday and Tuesday nights.

The figures were compiled by E. W. Osborne, member of the Village Commission; Lloyd B. Reid, Bloomfield Township employee, who has been in charge of the township since the township was organized in 1923; and Clarence Vliet, Birmingham city employee, who has been in charge of the city since the city was organized in 1923.

Here Are Latest Figures in City Government Issue
New figures compiled during the past week cast a glimmer of light on the proposed adoption by Birmingham of the city form of government as printed below. The figures were drawn up partly from estimates and partly from known and recently available data. Additions to the figures are shown in parentheses.
