A Letter For You

Dear friend:

I am facing the world with much more confidence in myself, as if I could! What do you think? Birmingham had its first "ice cream" party in the hills. A good time was had by all in the hills instead of sitting at the last minute, when it is so likely to be one's only chance.

Of course, these are just household hints. But it certainly helps to know them. We were so interested, we followed Miss Phillips step by step as she made one grand in that time.

What helped me most were the little suggestions given by Miss Phillips, the instructor in the course of the lessons. I'm sure it's knowing these little secrets that help to make a big success.

Now for instance—you have eaten my cookies—don't laugh! I thought it was my particular recipe that made my cookies hard. But now I know the real reason. It didn't occur to me, and nobody had ever thought to tell me, to save my flour before measuring, because it clashed right home and made cookies that were simply delicious!

When Jim came in and sampled one of my cookies, he said, "These cookies?" I told him I made them, and his very uncomplimentary remark was the first I met.

Well, then I also learned how to get a jellied dessert out of the oven.
