Vagrants and Village $675,000 OF DAYLIGHT BURGLAR

By THE WANDERER

Forty-four years ago, Brown Cannon left the old farm on Southfield avenue at Twelve Mile road, following the line of the village's famous advice, "went west to Denver, Col. Since that time, Mr. Cannon has been in the business world, and now owns the Windsor Dairy Company, in Denver, and is a director of the Atlas Creamery Company of Chicago. Mr. Cannon dropped into The Eccentric office last week to re-new his subscription, he has taken it for 84 years, too!

Not many persons are more civic-minded than Russell Gore, 2325 Lakeside road, member of the Baldwin Public Library Board. Last Friday night, when he attended the village meeting for Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vliet, Mr. Gore explained it myself, except that I guess I just never got around to it.

Thirty-five local business and professional men, under the chairmanship of Ralph Wilson, local exchange and druggist, journeyed to Navin Park Tuesday afternoon and witnessed the Tigers lose an alleged baseball game to the New York Yankees, 9 to 4.

Harold H. Corson, village engineer, and his family, moved Friday from his former home on Chesterfield road to Maple road. "I am glad to see Mr. Corson," said this Wanderer, "that my family has moved only six miles in the last 96 years, and I am sure Friday that we still have considerable of the original belongings of our ancestors' possession 90 years ago. How stuff does accumulate!"

Next year's Yard and Garden Contest will probably make provisions for a special display of entries in the business district. Although there was no such division this year, a lot of business men entered the contest, and some of them have such striking entries that they are already busy figuring out a list of special prizes for them.

One such entry is that of the Quanton Lake Service Station at Quanton road and Woodward avenue. There, R. H. Barnack, the manager, has a fine area on either side of the building with scores of different varieties of flowers, shrubs and plants, and designs which promise to make the site off as one of the most colorful corners on Woodward avenue when the flowers bloom next fall. A small rock garden in front of the station provides the artistic finishing touch.

"But on the other hand, if the law of averages operates normally, there will be of your number those who will hope to become much, but who will temper that hope with the thought: 'I am more than creature, I am a son, a daughter of God, who will help to better the world but who will regulate the fruition of that hope by the principle: 'and a collaborator with Christ; who will hope to be worthy because one must live with self and live with the Father through the way made open by the resurrection of Christ upon the dead.'"

"And having embraced these hopes that make us men, that make us saved to a fuller life, that law of averages is not omnipotent, it does not operate by necessity. Culture, therefore, will encourage hopes that you may become that for which God has created you."

"But when viewed from the vantage point of distance, even so hope is seen to have been prostituted toward the level of the animal because of the elimination of the world because one is a co-worker with God has caused the world and the men and women therein to rise high."

"Immortality Most Important. The third hope, the hope for immortality, the most sacred, the most important of all. 'It has been stated that youth is the future in the life,' he said. 'If I do not believe I think that of whatever age one is, without the hope of continued consciousness after death that man would be reduced to the level of the animal. I have never, that once again, the hope of immortality can have no power apart from partnership with God.' 'The question is not: 'Is there an

Walter Connelly, member of a special committee of the Property Owners' Division of the Real Estate Board which has studied the village-city issue extensively and recommended a change, quoted figures to show that Birmingham's supposed share of assets was practically of the same value as its supposed share of liabilities, and that therefore the change would make little monetary difference.

The Eccentric's feeling of ownership employee, was inclined to contest the figure, arguing that the assets might be significantly greater than the liabilities.

"I believe almost any set of figures presented in a matter of this kind can be disproved," he said.

District Police Court with other's health officer for a time on the matter of the police court Birmingham would be obliged to establish it if became a city, replacing the present justice courts.

The Property Owners' Committee has declared the court will be almost self-supporting from the beginning, but both A. B. D. Van Zandt, 477½ West street, and N. Hadjisky, 744 Bates street, expressed fears that it might prove a heavy burden of expense.

In answer to a request by Mr. Van Zandt, the committee agreed to hear the experience Royal Oak has had with its municipal court.

Nevelt was health officer. She is a former Russian countess and had lived in Royal Oak until a few months ago when she moved to 4174 Arlington drive, Beverly Hills. Her husband, Dr. C. H. Reutling, a health officer for southern Oakland County.

Dr. and Mrs. William Lloyd Kemp of Yorkshire road and Dr. and Mrs. Edward B. Spalding of West Maple avenue were guests of Dr. Frederick Alexander, director of the Conservatory of Music of Ypsilanti, State Normal College, Ann Arbor. In the afternoon, he attended a matinee performance at the Henderson Theater in Ann Arbor, and in the evening returned to Ypsilanti for a concert at the conservatory.

"One of the most satisfying results I obtain in doing business with others is the feeling of personal responsibility that is shown," a well known Birmingham man stated recently in a representative 44 The Eccentric. He was referring, at the time, to a specific case of sending Royal Oak The Eccentric had done for him. The Eccentric ever seeks to fulfill its responsibility to those it serves at.
