To Curb Hoarding, Offer Values, Motor Chief Says

Bargains Are Best Magnets For Hidden Dollars, Judd Declares

"Extracting money from teapots and tinpans is only a matter of showing people values," declares Walter Judd, Lone Pine road, Bloomfield Hills, who, as distributor of Nash motor cars for the state of Michigan, has been in a position to observe what he terms a distinct improvement in general business conditions over the past few weeks.

Walter Judd

"People still have money—there's no doubt about that," Mr. Judd says, "and the way to get them to spend it is to offer them their money's worth in return. Merchandising bargains are the best antidote for hoarding."

That business generally is beginning to realize this fact is one of Mr. Judd's firm beliefs. Bargains were never so plentiful as they are today in practically every line, he claims, turning to the automobile industry, which he knows most about, for proof.

"Automobile manufacturers are confident in the consumer's ability to buy in 1932," he says. "Our own company, by spending $2,700,000 in changing models, has expressed its evidence of this confidence, and has already found its faith justified.

"Our showings of new cars this year provoked more interest and resulted in more real business than any similar showing since 1929.

"This is typical, I believe, of conditions everywhere. All business needs is a little confidence in its public, displayed in the production of genuine values. As soon as that occurs, hidden dollars are bound to return to circulation."

NEGROES FINED

Two Negroes were fined by Justice Floyd S. Buck Monday after they had been arrested in an intoxicated condition Friday night by Bloomfield Hills police who reported they found a long-bladed knife in a pocket of their car.

Lester Haley, 300 East Kenilworth drive, Flint, the driver, paid $75, and John Cavette, 2021 Crocker avenue, Flint, paid $15. Both pleaded not guilty when arraigned Saturday morning.

SECOND PROBATE JUDGESHIP OPPOSED

A resolution opposing the proposed establishment of a second probate judgeship in Oakland County was adopted unanimously Tuesday night by the Pontiac Real Estate Board at its regular monthly meeting. The resolution maintained the work of the court is now being done "properly, efficiently and promptly", and that a second judgement would only add to the "already disastrously burdensome county taxes."

Bishop To Preach At Dedication Of Community Center

A week of celebration and rededication of the new community center growing out of the remodelling of the basement of the Embury Methodist Church on Bennaville avenue into a Sunday School room and banquet hall, will come to a climax Sunday morning with special services in the church at which Bishop Thomas Nicholson of the Detroit area will preach.

The community center was made possible through the combined efforts of scores of persons all over the village, some members of the church and some non-members, who donated labor and money to the undertaking.

The first observance of completion of the project was held Tuesday night when children of the neighborhood were entertained with a moving picture show and refreshments in the new basement.

A community banquet to which everyone is invited wil be held Friday night under the auspices of the Fellowship Club. Dr. Walter R. Frutt, district superintendent of the Methodist Church in the Detroit area, will be the speaker.

Bishop Nicholson, whose sermon at the services Sunday will be the principal attraction of the rededication ceremonies, has recently returned from a trip to Porto Rico, where Methodist Churches are also in his charge.

Lenten Thoughts

(Reprinted from the Hastings Banner)

THIS article is not "news" in the usual sense; but we believe it deals with the highest values in life.

This is the Lenten season, so it is very appropriate for all of us to be thinking of right relationships with all mankind and with our Maker.

Our world is suffering the inevitable reaction from a horrible war, caused by human selfishness and greed, in which 7,000,000 human beings were slain, 10,000,000 wounded or physically harmed, and $300,000,000,000 of property destroyed.

For a time after that titanic struggle America lived in a "Fool's Paradise," enjoying great material prosperity. Our people lost their heads in a feverish scramble for material things. This craze with its wild speculation, brought on the depression from which we are now beginning to emerge.

What better can we do at such a time as this than seek the real things and the real values of life? What could help us and our country more right now than to have every American have faith in God, and a serene inner life, seeking "first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness," in return for which the Master has promised the needful things of life? By faithful seeking we will grow a helpful personality, strength of character, a more hopeful outlook and greater courage. Roger Babson, the highest authority on this nation's business affairs, has recently declared that nothing would do so much to restore normal economic conditions in the United States as a sweeping revival of the Christian religion.

How shall we go about it?

Not by hysterical emotionalism, which would soon vanish, but by reasonable, sincere seeking to know what we owe to God and man, asking the promised guidance of the Spirit, and persistently and patiently following on, true to the light as it is revealed to us. Whatever our influence, it should be used for the community good, with special emphasis on having our lives and examples help the young.

We urge no creed. If we follow in the Master's footsteps we will help our day and generation. We suggest no particular church. Go to the church of your choice. If not a member now, unite with it on Easter Day, and make your life contribute its utmost to the good of the community and the church. Live so faithfully, sincerely and charitably that you may help to usher in that glad day when all denominational barriers shall be broken, and there shall be "One Flock" and One Shepherd.

GARNER MILLER WINS IN TROY

Majority Of 24 Votes Assures Supervisor Of Re-election

By a majority of only 24 votes, Garner Miller, Troy Township supervisor, was nominated for re-election to that office in the spring primaries Monday.

Miller received 432 votes to 408 for Morris A. Wattles, his closest opponent. William J. Burns, a third candidate, polled

156. Since the Republican was the only ticket in the field, nomination was tantamout to election for each office.

Large majorities ruled in every other contest except that for clerk in which Glenn W. Ladd, unopposed incumbent, received 814 votes.

Martin Stumpf, who was defeated for highway commissioner by one vote last year, led a field of three candidates by a big margin for the same office in Monday's primary, polling 408 votes to 205 for Charles Fox and 241 for Harry Grant, the incumbent.

John Truesdale of Birmingham was nominated treasurer, receiving 453 votes. His opponents, William R. Breyfogle and Robert Dorris, polled 292 and 208 respectively.

Harrison D. Carr was elected justice of the peace for a full term in another decisive victory. He polled 378 votes to 229 for William Mancour and 226 for Henry C. Cousins.

Jay Chatfield, with 566 votes, more than doubled the pace set by his lone opponent, Gordon Cash, for the office of justice of peace to fill a vacancy. Cash polled 252.

With the four highest candidates nominated, the vote for constable was as follows:

Edward Winters, 589; William J. Renshaw, 525; H. E. Pearsall, 393; Chaney Newton, 353; George Balden, 289; Anthony Lodato, 214.

WE HEARD IT SAID BY—

B. J. Meirow: "Naturally, it was a disappointment not to have been elected clerk of Bloomfield Township; nevertheless, the final results were most gratifying. To my opponent I offer my heartiest congratulations, and express my appreciation to those who gave their support in my campaign."

1st National Bank Enlarges Quarters

Enlarged quarters were taken over Monday of this week when the First National Bank here moved its bookkeeping department upstairs to a newly finished fireproof room, thus eliminating the noise of various bookkeeping and adding machines in the main lobby. The new quarters were necessary because of the constant growth of the institution, felt over a year ago.

"The new bookkeeping department is located on the second floor of our office building next door to the bank itself, and relieves the main banking offices of crowded conditions as well as noise," stated Elmer C. Huston, president. "The quarters are constructed of fireproof and noise-proof materials, and greatly improve the efficiency of our banking organization."

A large room in the basement of the bank building has been decorated and equipped as a rest room for the bank's girl employees.

Lack of Funds To Delay Wider Woodward Paving

Construction Through Village In 1932 Impossible, Ziegler Says

Lack of available funds will undoubtedly delay the actual construction of Wider Woodward avenue through Birmingham until after 1932, it was definitely announced yesterday by C. M. Ziegler, deputy state highway commissioner, in answer to a query sent to Mr. Ziegler by The Eccentric last week.

There is some doubt that the right-of-way will be cleared for several months, the statement indicates, but even if that were completed before the end of 1932, actual paving could not be begun before the following year.

Mr. Ziegler's statement, which gives a complete picture of the status of the project to date, shows that a grade crossing at the intersection of the new highway with Maple road is under consideration, but that a definite agreement as to whether or not it will be constructed has not been made.

Deal With Industries

The statement follows:

"As you know, the construction of Woodward avenue is now complete south of Birmingham both as to the east and west slabs. North of Birmingham there is a short, stretch of pavement on the east slab which is not yet completed. This project is now under contract, how-
