First 'In-Gathering' For Guild Brings Generous Response

Birmingham's response to the appeal of the newly organized unit of the Ladies' Aid Guild here in its first chairman-gathering in the Community House and Community House resulted in donations of 1,200 new garments to provide warmth for the men of Pontiac.

In the morning, 1,000 garments were given, with 200 more contributions in the afternoon. According to a rule of the Guild, which has recently observed, all garments must be new and must be pairs.

Displayed on long tables which had been set up in the auditorium in the Community House, the garments were on public exhibition, beginning with household needs, including bunting or sofa covers and lighter weight items such as curtains, which consisted of virtually all necessary articles of clothing, for men, women, boys and girls, from soft, warm undergarments to coats, dresses, suits and sweaters for school.

In the center of the auditorium were two tables of particular interest, one being what was known as "the small garment table," one and white to provide a warm welcome for the new baby.

On the other table were spread 3D or more hand-knitted articles which were the property of the Birmingham Guild, by Miss Florence Brooks of Boston the sister of Mrs. William R. Elcock of Willis Street, and Miss Marian Clegg of Franklin.
