Who is the girl who stands ace high with her pals and the boy friend? Not the one who orders her gown from a high priced modiste. No, siree, she is not in the picture. The one who says, "I made it myself," when her gown is praised. Pictured are four co-eds of Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., who dance in dresses of their own manufacture. At the left is Mary Lyde Duff, Lebanon, Ind., whose gown is pale turquoise crepe with pleated tea rose organza ruffles. Seated is Betty Congdon, Chicago, who led the junior prom down at school. Her gown is of heavy white lace over satin. Dorothy Anspach, next, Maplewood, N. J., fashioned a rough crinkled crepe in pink, and Miriam Kellenberger, chose an imported rose colored organdie with a wide green taffeta sash.
