AT SEA—It was the first time at sea I've ever had the sensation of really streaking along. It was wonderful. I think, who complained that the trouble with getting on a ship is the sense of waking up in the morning and finding you are exactly the same spot where you were the night before.

But the Bremen never lets you lose the certainty of getting on a ship where you feel that a monster is harrying you home, a monster almost as potent and incalculable as the sea.

CLASSES AND MASSES

Passengers ever learn much about the essential character of the bark they inhabit for the simple reason that they stay in one class—first, second, tourist, or third—either through probability, indifference or the vigilance of deck stewards.

THE REASON

The difference is not due to the effective refinement of the well-heeled first-classers. It is due, I am convinced, to the wearing of what used to be called "class" and now referred to as dinner jackets.

Richard Harvey of East Maple avenue left Wednesday to spend a week as the guest of Robert Kimber of Rivard boulevard, Chicago, Pointe.

Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Thomas of Westwood drive had as their guests for the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. John Goldsworthy and their daughter, Jean, of Detroit.

Miss Martha Stoll of Bloomfield Court entertained a group of friends at bridge Wednesday evening, including the Misses Laura and Betty Baber, Mary Lee Cole, Virginia Thompson, Effreda Craun, Alice Bull and Harriet Brewster.

Mrs. Albert Stoll, Jr., of Bloomfield Court with her daughters, Betty and Albertine, will return Friday from Tannisville, Ont., where she has been a guest.
