Bits O' Birmingham

By THE WANDERER

Arrangements are complete for the re-opening next Tuesday of the Community House, following two months during which it was closed, according to Mrs. L. N. Pyle, president of the Community House Association.

William Metz, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Metz, 274 Southfield road, is home nursing painful injuries to his back, contending that glider flying sometimes isn't so hot.

Although his body has been turned over to medical authorities at the University of Michigan for laboratory purposes, the identity of a man who leaped to his death last week from the viaduct over the Grand Trunk tracks at Eight Mile road in Ferndale may yet be revealed at some future date.

that about four of the remaining members of the Commission, and certainly a majority of three, would be opposed to the appointment of either Lowman or Tugger, and perhaps also of Ellery.

Actually, therefore, the situation presents an opportunity for this status quo to be rigidly maintained, inasmuch as it offers no opening for the appointment of two men to succeed two others who were not more than big warm air in their attitude toward the manner in which the city's governmental affairs are being handled.

Who the candidates actually will be, however, is still a matter of pure speculation.

An Announcement By The Birmingham National Bank

In the interest of sound banking, and in line with the established practice of practically all other banks in this and other localities, the Board of Directors of THE BIRMINGHAM NATIONAL BANK has found it to be advisable to install the Measured Service Charge on all of its checking accounts, to be effective October 1, 1933.

A careful analysis of our business discloses the fact that a portion of our checking accounts are being carried at an actual loss.

The charges to be made are described in the chart below:

Table with columns for Average Letter Balance, Basic Charge Per Month, Number of Free Checks Allowed, and Each Check in Excess of the Number of Free Checks Allowed is Charged.

In view of the fact that interest is paid on savings accounts that will not be considered in computing checking account charges.

We believe this new plan will be favored by the small depositor, for he will then know that his account, regardless of size, is paying its way and is a valued account.

This bank welcomes small accounts. We are glad to have them, for we realize that some of the best accounts in banks originally started in a modest way, however, until the account is self-supporting, it is only fair to make this charge.

Any of our officers or employees will be glad to tell you more about these Measured Charges. Their adoption by your bank is only another step forward in sound banking—for it is, and should be, generally recognized that any bank, in order to be sound, must derive a reasonable profit from services rendered. We believe that you will heartily approve this new step, and will give us your cordial cooperation in making it mutually beneficial.
