GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

ALEX. J. MORRISON

Alex Morrison says: A closed stance where the right foot is closer than the left to the line of play practically forces the player to tee too much right hand in his swing.

The chief reason most players use this stance is because they seek to overcome their tendency to hit from the outside in. That is, they try to allow for it.

They can never overcome the tendency to make the wrong swing in this way. They must stand around with the left foot closer than the right to the line of play.

This will help the action of the left side of the body and in time bring about the proper use of both hands in the swing.

ALLEGED SWINDLER HELD AFTER CHASE

Detroit Police Quis Man Captured In Dash by Bloomfield Hills Officer

Lyle Gearhard, 36 years old, of Detroit has been turned over to Detroit police for investigation in connection with the recent change operations, following his capture Sunday morning by Sergeant Delbert Anderson of the Bloomfield Hills department after a thrilling chase on Telegraph road.

Anderson said he was returning home after his night shift when he noticed a car which appeared to have been in an accident, and which was being driven at a rapid pace north on Telegraph road. He chased the car to Huron street, in Pontiac, before overtaking it.

Gearhard, the driver, was held in the vicinity north of the wheel of the truck. He was taken to the trucking lot, where he was arrested. He is suspected of being implicated with a woman and another man in a swindle game reported to have been operated in Detroit and Roseville, Anderson said.

If the suspicion proves unfounded, Gearhard will be brought back to Bloomfield Hills to face a careless driving charge. He was driving on the wrong side of the highway when arrested, Anderson said, and told the officer his car had up and rolled over three times in an accident that morning. The front of the car was badly damaged.
