day. Harry Allen held out for less than that.

By the time the deliberations had ended, however, conflicting views had been brought into harmony, and each of the seven commissions was at last ready for the compromise schedule. The schedule was transmitted to department heads and employees with the following notation signed by the seven commissioners:

Commends Employes

"Due to the exigencies consequent upon the financial and economic situation in which we are all involved, the Commission has found it necessary to make a drastic downward revision of the city payroll. The Commission wishes you all to appreciate that the reason for this does not spring from any dissatisfaction with either the personnel of the city organization or the character of the services rendered by general officers and employees. On the contrary, the Commission takes no inconsiderable pride in the character of the personnel and the high standard of services rendered by the members of the city organization.

"The Commission has no doubt but that each officer and employee appreciates the seriousness of the conditions which confront the municipality and each and all of its inhabitants. It is the hope of the Commission that each officer and employee will accept these reductions in the spirit with which they are made and will continue to carry on the various services with that same high devotion to the public welfare that has characterized their efforts in the past."

To extract fines from spenders in depression times you've got to get only hard-boiled, but a good poker player as well, Justice of the Peace H. Augustus O'Dell told the Bloomfield Hills City Commission Tuesday night.

"They practically always insist they haven't any money," Judge O'Dell said, "and you just have to wait them out. Like one fellow I'm other day, for instance. He swore up and down that he was broke, but when I told him I was sorry but that he'd have to go to jail and the officers started examining him out of the door, he leaned down, took off his shoe and produced his fine from under his left heel."

Exhibited for the first time in competition, Harry W. Potter's Broad Knoll Chieftain was judged the male winner in the parti-color division of Cocker Spaniels at the 34th annual Detroit Kennel Club dog show last week-end at Convention Hall, Detroit. Mr. Potter, who lives on Long Lake road, says he intends to enter the dog in a show in Cleveland this week-end.

Mrs. Joseph S. Robinson of South Adams road entered four St. Bernard dogs in the Detroit show, and came out the victorious winner of 14 ribbons; the Detroit Kennel Club cup, won by a nine-months' old pup, and a $20 cash prize.

Mrs. Nancy B. Thomas, librarian of Baldwin Public Library, is at a loss to account for a notable increase during the past month in the circulation of magazines for home use, and of the use of reading rooms and reference books at the Library. The circulation of magazines jumped to 308 in February, and the reading rooms were well filled and reference libraries in use a majority of the time the Library was open, she said. The circulation of books totalled 7,376 volumes, 6,852 of which were issued from the central Library, and 524 from the Pierce School branch which is being conducted by the Present Day Club. The circulation in February 1932, when the library was open twice as many hours as it now is, was 8,696 volumes. The new library hours are 2 to 6 P. M. daily except Sunday, and 7 to 9 P. M. Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

BLOOMFIELD BOARD OF REVIEW NAMED

Hamilton H. Patterson, Goodhue road, and Justice H. Augustus O'Dell, Tiverton road, were appointed members of the Bloomfield Hills Board of Review by the City Commission Tuesday night. They have not yet been sworn in.

The Board of Review, with City Assessor Harry S. Starr as the third member, will meet on the second and third Saturdays of May to review the assessment rolls and hear objections. Mr. Starr said he expected to complete the 1933 valuation by the middle of April.
