Beer Goes On Sale Today
But For Home Use Only
Commission, Over Protests, Bans Drinking In Public, And Sales By Chain Stores

The new 3.2 beer will go on sale in Birmingham at 6 P. M. today as in other cities of Michigan, but only for home use and will be narrowly limited so all drinking will be done at home.

Only four places have succeeded in qualifying for licenses under the regulatory resolution adopted by the City Commission Monday night, the principal features of which prohibit consumption of the beverage on the premises where it is sold, and prevent chain stores from engaging in the trade.

Six Applications Denied
 The four places whose applications for licenses were approved and which will take the lead in quenching Birmingham's 13-year thirst with the new beverage—in package lots only—are the Birmingham Fruit Company, 1307 Broadway, Woodward, Stroup's Market, 264 West Maple avenue, McBride's Tea Room, West 12th avenue, and the Wilson Distic Company, 159 North Woodward avenue.

Bloomfield Hills Bars Drinking In Public Places, Too
 Consumption of the new 3.2 beer will also be frowned upon in Bloomfield Hills, at least for the time being.

The City Commission Tuesday night approved four applications for licenses to sell the beverage, but tabled two requests for permits to allow drinking on the premises.

The Bloomfield Hills Country Club and the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club were given permits to sell beer for consumption in their clubhouses, but requests for permission to sell beer for consumption in the Bloomfield Hills Grocery and the Fox and Hounds Inn were tabled.

Package permits were granted the grocery store, however, and the Bloomfield Market. No resolution or ordinance was adopted to regulate the beer situation in general, but each application was considered separately.

The Bloomfield Township Board has granted club permits to the Oakland Hills Country Club and the Devon Gables Tea Room. Two applications for licenses to sell beer for consumption on the premises in barbecue stands have been tabled, pending further investigation of the applicants, according to Supervisor Perry A. Vaughan.

SEEK TO CUT TAX LEVY $8,000
$37,955 Budget To Be Discussed At Public Hearing Wednesday
18-MONTH PLAN VOIDED

A public hearing will be held at the Bloomfield Hills Country Club next Wednesday night on a proposed 1933 budget of $37,955 for the City of Bloomfield Hills.

The budget, calling for a tax levy of about $29,500, or about $8,100 less than last year's levy, was approved by the City Commission Tuesday night, but cannot be adopted until after a possible objection has been heard from the public. Last year's budget provided for expenditures of $68,700, and a tax levy of $78,600.

Salaries On Present Scale
 The reduction was effected through salary cuts and curtailment of services, including road work, street lighting and postoffice expenses, most of which were put on a "pay-as-you-go" basis. Salaries in the new budget are figured on the present salary scale, which has been effective since the last cut was made several weeks ago.

Members of the Commission decided to postpone a further increase in the new budget for fear the current inflationary movement, begun in Washington might make Birmingham, who died late Monday afternoon at a home in Mt. Clemens. He had been ill with heart trouble for some time.

 Funeral services will be held at 2 P. M. today for Albert E. Rosso, well known as a former resident of Birmingham, who died late Monday afternoon at a home in Mt. Clemens. He had been ill with heart trouble for some time.

Plan Abandoned
 This plan was abandoned, however, the city committee will not be taken up until some future year when property owners have a greater ability, the committee decided. The present charter, which expires July 1, 1934, means that the city will continue to operate financially as it did under the village charter when it collected taxes only and was forced to borrow during the six months from Jan. 1 to July 1, it was explained by Harry S. Ewing, city clerk.

White Urges State Property Seizure Law Be Enforced Against 'Tax Strikers'
 Brando Municipal Treasurers Lax In Not Securing Delinquent Payments

"So long as city and township trustees view themselves as tax collectors rather than tax collectors, we may expect to witness the deplorable spectacles of the past few months."

Declares Individuals And Corporations Are Deliberately Not Paying
 "But the tragedy is that, at a time when it has been found that sympathy was not always justified, that it was not always placed. There is not one who has not observed some abuse of the law, some violation of the law, some extension of it. It has become the problem of the public as well as of the individual creditor who has been wronged by the debtor who seems incapable of solving his complicated economic problems."

Rumor Has Reid As Next Manager
Company Will Buy With $7,215 of Quota in Bank Stock Drive
$44,700 Sold, $8,085 More Pledged, Bissett Reports; Oakland County's Subscription To Be Sought Today

A total of $44,700 for stock in the proposed new Birmingham National Bank has been definitely subscribed up to a late hour last night, with an additional $8,085 spoken for but not yet signed for, it was announced by Harry E. Bissett, chairman of the stock sales committee.

This leaves a balance of $7,215 not yet either sold or spoken for in the $60,000 quota which must be subscribed before the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will furnish an equal amount to make establishment of the institution possible.

CLEAN UP THE RUBBISH
 Harry Announces Schedule For City-Wide Rubbish Collection

Arrangements were being completed today by City Manager James W. Parry for the city's annual clean-up week campaign, which will begin Monday and continue through the following Saturday.

Approach County Today
 Possibility that the remainder may be subscribed today was indicated by the announcement that Mr. Bissett and Charles E. James, co-manager of the old Birmingham National Bank, would appear before the Board of Supervisors in Pontiac this morning to ask the county to participate in the proposed institution as it did in the Community National Bank of Pontiac, Oakland County, which was organized $200,000 in deposit in the old First National here. The organization committee of the new bank had originally intended to ask the county to subscribe between $12,000 and $15,000 of the new institution. This large amount will not be needed now, however, since only slightly more than $7,000 of the stock remains to be sold or spoken for.

Local Subscriptions Have Been Numerous
 The number of subscriptions for county money has been considerably reduced," Mr. Bissett said. "This is exactly what the committee desired. We wanted to secure as many different individual subscriptions in Birmingham as possible, in order to make the new institution a real community bank. The less a few are required to contribute, the more the public will be pleased we will be."

Neither does the subscription meet the needs of the county schools districts. Mr. Bissett said. Several school districts included in the subscription are asked to participate, but their funds will not be needed, he declared.
