"...But Not A Drop To Drink"

Being A Few Notes On The Status Of 3.2 In Birmingham

By ALLEN TENNY

"Two more, Shorty—and a couple sandwiches."

Shorty, a World War veteran, scuttles back to the bar which has been improvised out of a long picnic table, and another veteran, wearing a white apron and wellwhen that was the only law enforcement office the community boasted, was 81 years old last July 4.

He had lived in Birmingham since he was six years old, coming from Byron, Mich., his birthplace, and had resided at the Hamilton street address for the past 23 years. He had been in ill health for about three years.

Mr. Mills was a cooper by trade, conducting his own shop on Maple avenue for 19 years, and afterwards serving in the employ of the old Wilson-railway gate factory which stood opposite the site of the present First Methodist Church. He was in charge of the factory for about 20 years.

He was married 51 years ago last June to Zina Barrett, of Grand Lodge, who survives him. Surviving also is a daughter, Mrs. Grace Piper, of Lansing.

Mr. Mills was a member of P. and A. M. Lodge No. 44, and of K. of P. Lodge No. 149. The services Saturday were held from the S. O. Wylie Bell Home for Funerals, with the Rev. Russell D. Hopkins, pastor of the First Methodist Church, officiating. Masonic rites were held at the grave in Greenwood Cemetery.

ing a thin wooden paddle, draws two more.

While coins clink into a cash register at one end of the "bar," a third veteran cuts off a few slices of well-cooked beef, and the order is ready.

Birmingham is said to be the only town of its size in Michigan where the consumption of 3.2 beer is taboo except in the home, but this would be among the last things to occur to anybody who walked into the American Legion home on South Woodchuck street any Saturday between 2 P. M. and midnight.

For while the City Commission was for the support of the information it as to whether it must approve the applications of restaurants for licenses, to sell beer, the Charles Edwards Post of the American Legion has taken upon itself to please through some what stupendous task of sipping the thirst of Birmingham's beer drinkers. He was in charge a week-at 10 cents a slice.

The discharge of this function is made possible through a Liquor Control Commission a "picnic permit," issued by the city without reference to the local governing body, which enables the organization securing the drink, the fast-approaching picnic time, and not knowing the circumstances, would decide that it was just to better their lot.

And it doesn't appear likely, either, that they will come to a halt with the fast-approaching picnic season. There is no reason why they shouldn't continue to prove popular right through the fall and winter months, for they have several advantages over regulation permits. There are no beach sand in the sandwiches, and you never get rained out.

The other day two men walked into a Birmingham restaurant. They were from out-of-town, looking for tourists. They wanted lunch, but stood hesitatingly beside a table before sitting down, and inquired whether they could have beer which they felt they could have beer along with it.

The proprietor paused. The prospective customers appeared to be getting ready to move on to Royal Oak or Bloomfield Hills—and beer. But the pause was short.

"Sure," the proprietor said, "sit right down."

When he went next door to a food market and returned with two bottles of a famous St. Louis product, lunch was served—with beer.

Sometimes patrons of the restaurant prefer to bring in their own beer and drink it along with their meal. And sometimes even that isn't necessary.

Only Tuesday a patron was sitting at the counter in the midst of a hot beef sandwich and coffee. A waiter advanced towards him.

"Would you like," he asked, "a bottle of beer—on me, sir?"

The patron would—and did.

Just 25 years ago, Editors Whitehead and Mitchell published in The Eclectic the statement that, "according to official reports, there are no blind pigs in Birmingham." The record still holds, at least to the best knowledge of the police.

And even long before 25 years ago, Birmingham was known as "Pietty Hill."

SCALP IS INJURED
Stanley Clark, Jr., 7-year-old, of 311 Bates street has recovered from a scalp wound received early this afternoon when he was struck by an automobile while crossing West Maple avenue at First street. The car was driven by Herbert Boice, 777 Bates street, who was not held.

Boice was arrested at the office of Dr. O. O. Beck for treatment.

Library Issues 6,936 Books During August

A total of 6,936 books were issued from Baldwin Public Library during August, according to the monthly report of Mrs. Nancy B. Thomas, librarian. During the corresponding month last year, when the library was open on a full-time basis, 8,938 books were issued.

New registrations received last month totalled 39, bringing the complete registration to 5,332 readers, Mrs. Thomas said. Of 57 new books added to the library's shelves, 31 were new.

The library now owns a total of 15,490 books. A well-equipped library should have a minimum of 1 1/2 books for each resident of the community it serves, Mrs. Thomas said. On this basis the Birmingham library should have at least 14,250 volumes, she pointed out.

CITY'S JULY COST EXCEEDS BUDGET

Actual Outlay Was $464 Above Allowance, Treasurer's Statement Shows

Actual expenditures of all city departments except the water department for July exceeded the budget estimate by $464, according to a statement of expense submitted to the Commission Monday by the City Treasurer, Harold H. Corson.

Expenditures for the month totaled $12,478.88, as compared with a budget allowance of $12,014.18, the statement showed. The excess was due to an allowance of $5,750.55, against a budget estimate for the month of $4,103.76, according to the statement.

The amount spent for equipment was only $14.42, as against a budget allowance of $120.84, and that for general expense was $5,823.07, as compared with an allowance of $5,750.55.

Expenses of individual departments were kept near or below the budget figures except those for welfare, general administration and street lighting, the report showed. The welfare department costs for the month were $2,953.73, of which $749.07 was for wages and medical services.

The budget had allowed $1,016.67 for welfare expenses in July, plus $175 for wages in the department.

General administration cost the city $1,144.77, as compared with a budget allowance of $608.32. Street lighting costs were $1,404 or $404 in excess of the budget.

The report showed the total expense of all departments from Jan. 1 to July 31, including the water department, to be $87,167.81. Exclusive of the water department, the total cost has been $78,758.13.

REVOLVER AND CLOCK STOLEN FROM HOME

NEW D'MOLAY BOARD NAMED

Fleming Succeeds Meirov As "Dad" Of Hasseberg Chapter

Formal presentation of the members of the new advisory board of Hasseberg Chapter, Order of DeMolay, was made to the chapter at its first meeting of the new season Tuesday night by E. J. Meirov, retiring "dad" of the organization.

After being associated with the chapter for 8 1/2 years, Mr. Meirov was forced to resign Sept. 1 to assume his new duties as a member of the Advisory Board of Master Masons, and as deputy of the Metropolitan DeMolay District of Detroit. He was appointed to those two offices at the second annual State Councils Conference last night at Camp Radamaker, near Bear Lake.

Frank Fleming, former chairman of the advisory board, succeeds Mr. Meirov as "dad" of the chapter. Mr. Fleming has been a member of the board for four years.

William Spence was re-elected secretary, in charge of the initiatory degree team. Three new members of the board are Dr. John F. Wood, Russell W. Hardman and Edward H. Laird.

Dr. Wood will be in charge of the DeMolay degree team. Mr. Hardman will supervise the chapter's athletic program, and Mr. Laird will assist Mr. Spence in supervising the offices of scribe and treasurer.

Inflation Rumors Gain President Turning To Hull's Views? Money Glut Worries Bankers

By LESLIE EICHELE
Central Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—New York hears that inflation is due about December.

That is gossip—and must be taken for what it is worth.

New York—which hears something that it desires to hear—bears further that the Roosevelt administration will have to admit that NRA and its Blue Eagles have failed to accomplish all that was claimed for them.

He believes further, contrary to New York (the New York financial district) that the spirit of NRA never can be turned back. NRA may be termed unsuccessful by many, some months hence, for employment and purchasing power may be low, but, as that may be, but, if so, there need no rejoicing by New York financiers.

Even if President Roosevelt himself desired to turn back the path which he chose, the juggernaut which the started would bring him aside, and continue on.

ROOSEVELT POLICY
The resignation of Professor Raymond Moley from his position as assistant secretary of state was a much for financial reasons as otherwise. A professor catapulted into the office of Washington has no reserves on which to draw for living expenses.

Thus, when one may claim $15,000 a year instead of $8,000, and get when one pleases besides, there is an inclination to take the $15,000.

And Professor Moley may be depended on to say what he pleases.

There is a question among those who know Professor Moley that he saw eye-to-eye with President Roosevelt.

One need not be surprised if the president sees, rather, eye-to-eye.
