Support The Church

Easter Sunday has again brought to the world are rewed consciousness of the Nazarene and His great place in the heart of civilization. Throughout the Christian world various church organizations seek to present Jesus life and teachings to contemporary luman beings, It costs money to operate these church organizations; without them the world we live in would, indeed, be little better than a savage jungle. Are you doing your part to maintain this Christian would, indeed, be little better than a savage jungle. Are you doing your part to maintain this Christian movement? Are you making a little sacrifice of time and money so that the world you shall leave behind will have been made a bit better because you aided your preacher in his effort to reveal Christ to you? Some day you will lie, cold and lifeless in body, as some preacher in his effort to reveal Christ to you?

now engaged in, working under the CWA. They apply their skill in many ways, much of it in painting pic-tures on the walls of public buildings. Some of them now earn as little as one per cent of prosperity remun-eration days. When people are able to have more money at some later date, the artists will fare better. It take, a depression to prove that people pay more attention to their bellies than their heads.

Man's Storehouse Of Go

Man's Storehouse Of Good
In our youth a season and a year is a very, very long time—specially if it keep us from the eternal play-privilege of childhood. As we grow older, and tasks mulciply, a season or a year runs its course more rapidly. And our tiny world does, after all, too often become a limited thing, a frightening and sometimes terrifying location.

But when we lift our gaze and our thought skyward in the vening; when we marvel at the infinite pattern of life that unfolds before us in worlds at our very feet, but over which we seem to have little or no control; when we listen to an inspired choir of voices, a synchronized symphonic orchestra, and are deeply moved as these created harmonics make captive our searing thoughts; when we stand uplifted before some beautiful blending of paint and oil, in which an artist has skillfully portrayed a fragment of life for us; or when we stand humble before an act of sacrifice all love another has made—when we do these things in our thinking we begin to peer over the tiny mortal world that so occupies us, and we are glimpning Eternality.

Are We Going Socialistic?

It is becoming more evident to people in this country that so-called material wealth may become one' property' only by sufferance of government. When government decides that too few people have too much, and thereby seek to re-distribute more evenly that wealth, then the individual's ability to obtain and that wealth, then the individual's ability to obtain and keep huge forturies is diminished and curtailed. In such an era are we in the United States today. Of course we shall not pe "all the way" socialistically. But we shall go quite a distance in that direction and, if it be handled and manipulated fairly, the great majority of Americans will favor it. (Please remember that "government is only the reflected combination of energy and or apathy of its'sovereign citizens.")

Many famous artists throughout America, unable to find persons with money to spend on their wares, are now engaged in, working under the CWA. They apply their skill in many ways, much of it in painting pietures on the walls of public buildings. Some of them now carn as little as one per cent of prosperity remunerance.

could be mad; they would then live only one-half mile-part.

That was pretty good as fas as it went, but it would still take them a half hour to walk the distrace be-tween the house. They then worked out the idea that if the hour was 120 minutes instead of 60 minutes (and why should it not be), they could walk the distance in a quarter of an hour. Then instead of being separated by one mile or one-half hour they would be separated by only one-half mile and one-quarter of an hour.

We are asked this question many times daily. For people have missed the convenience and protec-tion of telephone service. They have missed both the social and business advantages of having a telephone in their homes.

They have found it inconvenient, and often barrassing, to use a neighbor's telephone. They have learned that the extra carfare, driving ex-pense and cost of public telephone calls would more than pay for a telephone of their own.
