Porteous, Minting Lead Attack in 35 to 12 Victory For Baldwin

By DEAN BEIER

Unable to get a regular volley of shots at their basket, the Rochester High School basketball team had an easy victim before the Maroon and White casters of Baldwin High School Friday night on the Rochester court. The staples took the lead early in the first chapter, and when the final whistle blew on the long end of a 35 to 12 count, the Maroons were victorious.

Not only were the Rochester boys unable to check Baldwin's strong attack, but they also found it hard to break through the Maroon defense to do any scoring of their own. On both offense and defense the Maples showed vast improvement over their performance the week before against Dearborn.

Their passing was fast and accurate, and they rarely fumbled the ball. Their shooting, however, still showed the lack of considerable practice. The number of shots that found their mark constituted only a small percentage of those that were thrown, and less than half of the free throws awarded the Maroons were converted into points.

Porteous, Minting Star

Had it not been for Don Porteous and the two Balmings, the Maroon guards, it is quite likely that the score would have been slightly different. Porteous, especially, proved a thorn in the side of the Rochester team by virtue of his accurate shooting in the second half. These two boys, both playing their first year on the varsity, accounted for 21 points between them. Porteous netted seven points, six in the last two periods, and Minting scored seven points on three free throws and one from the field. Warren Forester and Franklin Phillips each scored four points.

At no time did the Rochester threat. The Maples nearly beat their opponents in the first half, allowing them only three points while the Maple score mounted to 11. Three more points were the last the Rochester players could do in the third stanza, but they doubled their count in the last period. Baldwin scored 10 points in the third chapter and 14 in the last.

2 Teams Used

Coach Frank Whitney used nearly two complete teams, and each performed as well as the other. At the close of the first period, the coach placed four new men on the floor, and at the end of the half he sent his starting lineup back into the game. The final chapter again saw four new men on the floor. The starting lineup, composed of Phillips, Forester, Minting, Porteous and Minting, proved to be the heavy scorers of the tilt, but the distance squad of "Red" McBride, George Guckelberg, Bob Harris, Forester and one of the substitutes played the best defensive football. This strong reserve list will greatly aid Whitney's team this season, and Harris will be only one of the players who will be lost by mid-year graduation. The Baldwin reserves also were valuable in their tilt against the Rochester second stringers. Showing almost the same strength and some weaknesses as the varsity, the reserves toppled their opponent by a 26 to 8 score. McCann was high scorer with 11 points.

Old Customs To Be Revived In Cranbrook Yule Pageant

Providing a setting for the annual Cranbrook Christmas pageant, the dining room at Cranbrook School today night will hold the opening of the great hall of a seasonal feast.

The pageant combines the religious significance of Christmas with the pagan customs of water feasts in medieval England, and is based upon centuries of tradition. It is one of the most interesting of the Cranbrook customs, and is an outstanding event of the school year.

The first part of the program is religious, set in a manger scene at one end of the hall. The Bible story of the birth of Christ is followed by a procession of shepherds and of the Three Wise Men, bearing gifts, and singing traditional hymns.

From that point on, the festivities bear the character of a medieval feast. Several processions enter, bearing the boys' head, the plan program, the Yule log, each accompanied by a stirring old song. Finally come the dancers in the old days of a company of traveling actors, presenting the drama of St. George and the Dragon, all dressed in grotesque costumes. To cap the evening, Santa Claus enters in an ornate sleigh, accompanied by several members of the faculty.

Vernon Kellest, director of the Cranbrook Glee Club, is in charge of the program. Principal parts in the program will be taken by John Gilray, as the jester; Webster McKinley, as leader of the boys' chorus; and Oldie Anderson, Robert Bari, and Henry Smith as the Three Wise Men.

The first form, according to Cranbrook tradition, will give the "mummers" play, while members of the Cranbrook Glee Club will form the various processions.

HOLY NAME STUDENTS PLAN YULE PROGRAM

A Christmas program, featuring "A Strike in Santa Claus Land," a dramatic two-act play, will be presented by the students of Holy Name School in the school auditorium at 8 P. M. Friday. The program will also include selections by an orchestra and glee club, and several songs, recitations and dances by individual students and groups.

Students of the third and fourth grades will offer a play entitled "The Fairies' Christmas," and girls of the seventh and eighth grades will present a hoop dance.
