Follow Exemption Statute, City Asks

Resolution Requests Auditor General to Provide For Claims Of Soldiers, Sailors

A resolution demanding the state auditor general to make provision for a $2,000 homestead exemption for any soldier or sailor in the state who served three months or more in the Philippine Insurrection, the China Relief Expedition, the Spanish American Civil War, the Mexican Revolution, or in any other war, was adopted by the City Commission Monday night.

A similar resolution has been adopted by the Flint City Commission, which requested the action were. The resolution points out that the exemption is already provided for by state law, but that the auditor general has refused to issue a warrant on the state treasurer for the amount of the exemption on the 1933 roll, claiming that there has been no law set up in the budget to take care of them.

Action on two other resolutions urged by Commissions in other cities was deferred. One was a resolution forwarding money to Fern Dale, calling on the state to assume full responsibility for the payment of mother's pensions. The resolution argues that the country unit system of payment has collapsed because of tax delinquencies.

The other was a resolution forwarded by Jackson recommending the allocation of what are now the sales tax, beer tax and liquor tax to be used to remove the entire operating cost of education from real estate and establish a more practical standard of education for every child in the state, regardless of location or environment. "To remove competition among local units in construction of school buildings by establishing a uniform state code with a limit, and to establish a uniform system of text books to be furnished by the state at cost."

The Commission looked with disfavor upon the latter resolution because of the uncertainty of the situation in Michigan, especially in regard to the continuance of the sales tax.

mileage to expect from the various cars.

Our second night was spent at Jellicoe, at the foot of the Cambrian Mountains, just in Tennessee a few miles. It is at Jellicoe that the famous gorge of the day before begins. Ice, resulting from the heavy snowfall that much ice on certain shaded portions of the gorge road. Several cars had met with accidents in trying to negotiate the slippery grades, so I engaged a towing car to see me over the dangerous places. Result was for 17 miles, three of which were anxious ones, and I was glad to have this help—for a strange, slippery mountain road with a trailer behind you is not a very nice thing to do.

Which reminds me that about the only confounding thing about pulling a trailer is that when you start backing it, you can't exactly determine where you will complete your maneuver, which is the chief reason why I engaged a towing car for the icy gorge road from Jellicoe toward Knoxville.

The next night we stayed at the Cherokee Tourist Camp to visit my wife's father, who lives in Los Angeles. It has been so cold in Florida that he has returned to Port Huron Times-Herald, A. L. Miller of the Battle Creek Enquirer, Bert Peabody, my brother-in-law, Stanley Peabody, and just glimpsed Senator A. L. Moore while driving downtown.

P. S.—I neglected to tell you from a next door neighbor to visit my wife's father, who lives in Los Angeles. It has been so cold in Florida that he has returned to Port Huron Times-Herald, A. L. ing to make it beautiful, run to the door, unlock it and go proudly to your friends and parents. Then when you really know your picture, don't be afraid to appreciate yourself."

Mr. Booth related several humorous incidents from his experiences as a member of a high school football team to illustrate his doctrine of "giving oneself."

He told of one instance when his team was leading by a 6 to 0 score. Booth was the last of the season and the opponent was his team's most bitter foe. With only a few seconds left to play, the opposing team had only 10 yards to go for a touchdown. Booth saw a burly half-back running towards him with the ball. He was the only man between the runner and the goal line. Booth missed his tackle, the opponents scored a touchdown and then

What The Women Think About It

Each week, The Eccentric asks several women, chosen at random, to send us a telephone book, to answer a question of general interest in Birmingham.

The question this week: If the United States should declare war on you, how do you, a young woman, what would your attitude be?

Mrs. L. E. Tremper, 235 Poppleton avenue: "I would go to war in this country, but I would never allow my son to go abroad to fight. We have sent many men in our family to war, but it isn't right that the United States should have to send its youth abroad to fight. In any event, the United States should be prepared. I believe that a strong defense is the best prevention for war."

Mrs. Thomas J. Ward, 619 West Frank street: "I am not in favor of war. I certainly wouldn't want my boy to go to war, but I think that my boy should be prepared. I believe that a strong defense is the best prevention for war."

Mrs. Lorraine Wilson, 251 North Bates street: "My son is a Boy Scout and we are very patriotic, but I don't believe he would go to service with arms. This country won't be any better until we do away with firearms."

Mrs. E. E. Daniels, 1128 Pierce street: "Sending a boy to war seems very unnecessary. So many who go never come back."

Mrs. J. H. Wallace, 247 North Bates street: "I wouldn't want my boy to go to war. My husband was a signaller in the last war and never carried arms. We have learned a lot since then. War doesn't do a bit of good."

Mrs. William W. Barber, 767 1/2 Adams street: "I would certainly like to see my son go to war just as every other mother would. Let the United States take care of its own problems and let other countries take care of theirs."

Mrs. Henry Herz, 785 Pierce street: "I would like to see him go. When the last war broke out on my son wasn't old enough to go and I was troubled to death."

Mrs. N. C. Foss, Charming Cross street: "I have a boy very nearly that age and I would say no, of course."

Mrs. Leonard E. Brown, 656 Bloomfield Court: "I don't think I would want him to go."

Mrs. Willard Brown, 868 Hazel street: "I would not want my son to go. I don't like war and I would object strenuously."

Mrs. A. J. Diebel, 592 Brown street: "I wouldn't be very keen on his going but if the cause was right it would be a different matter."

Mrs. Arthur W. Fowler, 144 East Bannville avenue: "I would not want my son to go. I think war is unnecessary."

Mrs. C. F. Harper, 643 Purdy street: "I believe that young men would be considered cowards if they refuse to go to the next war. They will have more right to make up their own minds than they had in the last war. I wouldn't be ashamed of my son if he didn't want to go."
Mrs. Gordon E. Green, 1117 East Lincoln avenue: "I wouldn't want to part with my son on account of another war. I think that war is unnecessary and all for no good."
Mrs. Robert A. Groves, 364 Greenwood avenue: "I feel that I would have to send him, but I certainly wouldn't want to."

Obituary

MRS. ELIZA TODD
Following an illness of a month, Mrs. Eliza Todd, 72-year-old, native of Southfield Township and a former resident of Birmingham, died Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mabel I. Porteous, of Royal Oak.

Mrs. Todd was the wife of Albert M. Todd, who was born in Troy Township. They were married Mar. 28, 1883, and would have celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary next month.

Mrs. Todd moved to Crooks and Fourteen Mile roads with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Reid, in 1875, coming from Southfield Township. After her marriage to Mr. Todd, the couple took up their residence at Crooks and Fifteen Mile roads, where they lived until moving to Birmingham. They remained here for eight years before moving to their daughter's home, Surviving, besides the husband and daughter, are a sister, Mrs. Mary Hartsig of Ann Arbor, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the Calvinist Methodist Episcopal Church, residence of Mrs. Todd was a charter member. She was also a member of the Clawson Women's Club. The Rev. James Chapman, pastor of the church, officiated, assisted by the Rev. John E. Somers of Royal Oak. Burial was in Crooks Cemetery.

Ward continued. "I looked down beside me and saw Jack Heston. He was crying, too."
"You gotta go today, Jack," I told him," Ward recalled. "Heston looked up at me and said, 'Yes, I gotta go—for my old man.'"

Father Helps
It was one of several illustrations Ward gave of the importance of the relationship of officers-players in the performance of a college athlete. In his own case, he said, it was the fact that his father was watching him from the sidelines for the first time at his highest jumping 6 feet 6 inches.

"I'm not saying the father is the most important factor in a boy's career, nor yet the least important," Ward said. "It's there, but it should be recognized and cultivated."

Elley also urged his listeners to strengthen their father-son relationships rather than weaken them. This is especially necessary when the boy goes away to school, he said.

"The father-son spirit is the same spirit found in every winning athletic team," he declared. "It is the spirit of sacrifice and co-operation."

Ward's Case Cited
As an illustration, Elley pointed to his teammate, Ward. The latter, when he came to Michigan, was one of the greatest high school hurdlers ever turned out, and might have become the national champion by concentrating in the two hurdle events, Elley said.

Instead he followed the wishes of his coach who saw in him other possibilities, and worked him into a fine all-around track athlete, capable of winning two Big Ten titles and setting no world's records in any.

"Willis sacrificed national aspirations for the greater glory of the Michigan track team," Elley declared.

The service was sponsored by the Methodist Men's Club. E. Morse Cooke, president of the club, presided. Music was furnished by the Baldwin High School Orchestra under the direction of Arnold W. Bernitt.

last fall for funds to finance these two projects, but the applications have never been either orally rejected or approved. If they should happen to be approved before the election, the issuance of the bonds would be put up to a popular vote at the time, according to City Manager James W. Darry.

CWA Worker's Truck Is Destroyed By Fire

A truck which Glenn Moore, 1677 Henric street, had been using on a CWA job, was destroyed, along with the garage in which it was stored, by fire early Saturday morning which is believed to have been caused by a short circuit in the motor.

The fire was first noticed when Moore, who is himself a volunteer fireman, member of Company 3, was awakened by the blowing of the horn on the truck. He looked out the window to see the garage in flames already in flames. Lack of a telephone caused delay in summoning firemen, and the truck was beyond saving when they arrived.

The garage, which Moore rented from a next door neighbor, was valued at about $50. The truck was not insured.
