

ALLIED YOUTH HEAR WEIMAN

Princeton's Famous Line
Coach Is Guest At Meeting Here

The Oakland County posts of Allied Youth, meeting in joint session at the Birmingham Community House Friday evening, had as their guests, Lewis C. Reimann, former University of Michigan football star and the new field secretary of Allied Youth, and Ted Weiman, football line coach at Princeton.

Mr. Weiman, formally known as D. E. Elton Weiman, former head coach at the Universities of Michigan and Minnesota, built up for Princeton this year one of the strongest lines in collegiate football history. Speaking to the members of Allied Youth, he likened the ethics of athletics and especially of football, his favorite subject, to those of the organization of which he was a guest.

The get-together idea of sharing feelings and convictions, which means so much to the players on a football team just before a game, arouses the "ready-for-the-game" feeling which grows and becomes stronger, he said. This same feeling is gained through meetings and makes for the success of an organization.

The famous coach emphasized the importance of training, both in athletics and life. The strength necessary to carry a player through a full game depends not only on the perfection of his condition, he pointed out. The condition of his parents before him is a vital factor in enabling him to make good. Future generations, Mr. Weiman concluded, will have a better chance because of the work of Allied Youth stands for.

Mr. Reimann spoke of the far-reaching extent of Allied Youth, the scientific manner in which it is carrying on its work against intemperance, dirt and crime. Following the meeting, entertainment was provided by an Allied Youth orchestra from Rochester. George Winborn, of Birmingham, chairman of Allied Youth for Oakland County, was in charge of the meeting.

Teacher, 5 Others Uninjured In Crash

Mervyn H. Smiley, 548 Purdy street, manual arts teacher at Adams School, and five passengers in his car were unhurt Saturday night in a collision at Greenfield and Ten Mile roads, but four of six persons riding in the other car were injured.

The accident occurred when Smiley's car collided at the intersection with another driven by Floyd H. Bradshaw, 609 North Fifth street, Ann Arbor. Smiley's car plunged into a ditch and was almost completely wrecked. Bradshaw's wife, Betty, suffered a fractured leg when his car hit a ditch and overturned in a field 300 feet from the scene of the collision. The driver's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Bradshaw, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. D. G. Bradshaw, also of Ann Arbor, all received minor injuries.

Slippery pavements were blamed for the accident. Smiley was traveling south on Greenfield road and Bradshaw east on Ten Mile road when it occurred.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

All three junior high schools are busy preparing for student council elections. With the prolonging of the present school semester into the first week of February, the dates for the elections are not definitely set in some cases, but will probably be held within the next two weeks.

The Baldwin Junior High assembly, originally scheduled for last Thursday, has been shifted to this afternoon. Miss Florence Ackley's Nature Study Club is in charge of the program.

Adams Junior High students will hold their next assembly program Tuesday afternoon. A short play, to be given by the Dramatic Club under the supervision of Mrs. Della Wilson, will constitute the entertainment.

Mrs. Ethel Waterman and her home economics class will present the next Barnum Junior High assembly. It will be given in the school auditorium next Wednesday.

Under the direction of its editor, Carol Giles, the Barnum Matron Leaf staff is conducting an intensive campaign for subscriptions during the present week. The staff is also planning for its annual spring issue of the Mapletonian, the school yearbook.

With all proceeds to be used for the Adams Milk Fund, Adams students held a benefit performance in their auditorium Tuesday afternoon. The program featured Markus Munk and his three trained dogs. Munk, who trained dogs for the World War, sent his animals through several antics that furnished endless entertainment for his audience.

The Barnum Builders home room went into the lead in Barnum inter-class sports last week when it topped first place in volleyball. This gave the Builders a total of 150 points, they having received 50 for second place in basketball earlier in the season. The Excelsior home room is in second place with 125 points, awarded for a first in basketball and a third in volleyball.

WE HEARD IT SAID BY—Charles J. Shain, draughtsman, member County Board of Supervisors: "The CWA program has done more than any other agency of the government to improve the morale of the people. It has furnished work for idle hands and brains, and has put real money into the pockets of persons who have scarcely felt its touch for two or three years. It has initiated many worthwhile projects which otherwise we must have waited years to realize."

URGES REFORM IN EDUCATION

U. Of M. Extension Division
Head Addresses Teachers'
Club Banquet

"How are you going to meet the educational situation in the next 10 years?" was the challenge thrown out by Dr. W. D. Henderson, director of the Extension Division of the University of Michigan, to the Birmingham Teachers' Club and members of the Board of Education and their wives, in his talk following a dinner given by the club at the Community House last Thursday evening. Dr. Henderson, who has had 12 years of glorious adventure as a schoolmaster, spoke on "Re-Vamping Our Schools."

"This is the beginning of a new era," stated Dr. Henderson. "We have turned the corner. The eyes of all Europe are upon us. We can set the pace for all the world if we can change the existing order of things and do it calmly. We have ahead of us either chaos or cosmos."

Dr. Henderson expressed the belief that we Americans, of pioneer stock, have the resources, the initiative and the courage to keep our feet in times of disaster. "We know now what it is to be bunched together by a dominant interest," he said. "I should want to be reformed if I failed to realize the blessings of the past depression."

Foresees Changes
Dr. Henderson predicted a complete reorganization of the school system in the next 10 years. Forces which are at work now, he believes, have been working all through the depression to bring this about.

Indications of this changing order are to be seen in such manifestations as the recently organized Civilian Conservation Corps camps which have taken 300,000 boys off the streets and which Dr. Henderson termed one of the "biggest educational stunts" we have ever known.

Among the faults of the present educational system, Dr. Henderson listed the grading methods now in use, the over-abundance of 12-grade schools, the social pressure placed upon the teacher to "push Johnny through," and the lack of sufficient flexibility in the first 10 years of schooling.

The speaker recommended a system that would be a cross between the junior high-school and the old-fashioned country school, wherein five fundamental subjects would be taught to children between the ages of six to 16. The children should be capable of caring for her children until they reach the age of six, he said.

Fundamentals
Fundamentals taught would include reading, writing and arithmetic. "Twenty-five per cent of the errors made today," Dr. Henderson stated, "are found in the use of written words, and 50 per cent of these in the use of the dependent clause. I would teach a child to write a letter beginning with a capital letter and ending with a period."

"Americans use more patent medicine per capita than any other nation on earth," he continued. "I would teach health so that a child would know that soda used on a toothbrush is sufficient cleanser." The elementary sciences would be included in Dr. Henderson's system, that a child might be taught the amount of light needed to adequately light a room. Economics and sociology would be taught with the purpose of making clear to the child the fact that "a tax is something we pay for something we want, and of differentiating for him, between our needs and our wants. The humanistic subjects, poetry, the arts and music, would also be taught, inasmuch as man is an 'aesthetic being,' he said.

Following 10 years of such training, a glorious commencement would be held for any child having done good work. "When this training had been completed," declared Dr. Henderson, "all those students who wished to go on to the academic school could do so—all others would be sent to vocational schools where they would be taught useful things."

Academic Curriculum
The curriculum of Dr. Henderson's academic school would include English, the reading of books, two years of Latin, and two years of mathematics, algebra and geometry—"not for every student," he added, "but for those who wished it."

"To be correctly informed of things, to be prepared," stated Dr. Henderson, "is the best way to be patriotic. Are you going to sit with a complacent smile on your face waiting for these changes, or are you going to be prepared to help bring them about?"

Preceding Dr. Henderson's talk, Robert Zeigler played two clarinet solos, accompanied by Mrs. Arnold W. Bernz.
