Trip To National Capital Thrills Birmingham Group

(A group of 32 Baldwin High School students and alumni returned last Thursday from a four-day trip to Washington, D. C., on a nearby boat. Highlights of the trip are described in the following article by one of the members of the group.)

By DAVID CURRY, JR.

Another link was added to the chain of Washington Group members who have endeavored to this traditional trip when 32 Birmingham Washingtonians embarked on the "Ambassador" at 4:30 P. M. Sunday for our great national capital. Four days of fun, fellowship and education began to be written into our lives when we reached the Union Station and bade farewell to our friends and our friends, friends.

A few minutes after the train left the station, W. S. Tothacker, who accompanied us, introduced G. C. Westcott, a representative of the railroad, who gave us a most courteous and valuable aid to us on the train and in Washington. To show our appreciation to Mr. Tothacker, who devoted much of his time and energy to make the trip so enjoyable, we elected him honorary "Dad" of the 1934 Washingtonians.

That memorable train trip was occupied with games, some delicious train dinner, and a night which proved to be almost sleepless because of our curious adventures. We wanted to see all the scenery between Detroit and Washington. Morning brought another day and a 7:30 walk a quarter of a mile uphill at Harper's Ferry to the "White House" for breakfast.

After breakfast, a Dr. MacDonald, president of Storck College, gave us a most vivid history of Harper's Ferry and its many heroic adventures. Before we again boarded the train, we stopped at the rock upon which Thomas Jefferson stood and said it was worth the trip across the ocean to witness such a view. We then caught our train that brought us into Washington at 11:30 A. M. Our hotel accommodations greatly exceeded our expectations. We were divided into groups of four and given a suite that included living-room, bedroom, kitchenette, breakfast room and bath. We were quite able to appreciate these luxuries after our long train trip. After refreshing bath we assembled in our private dining room for our first luncheon in Washington.

In the afternoon we visited the Capitol and the Smithsonian Institute. The guide at the Capitol illustrated the acoustic properties of the dome by leaving us in one spot and walking 50 feet away and whispering to us.

During our dinner, Mr. Tothacker and Mr. Westcott pointed out a few of the educational features of the trip. We spent our first evening admiring the exquisite Congressional Library.

As a special courtesy to the group, the driver for the Capitol Transit Company voluntarily took us to the Lincoln Memorial so that we might see it by night. One of the most striking sights of the trip was the reflection of the Washington Monument and the Capitol in the mirror-like pool between the monument and the Lincoln Memorial.

After an 8 o'clock breakfast, we saw the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, where government money and seals are printed.

Then we visited the Washington Monument, which is 555 feet, 8 inches in height, or 98 feet tall, and seems even farther down when you walk. It is a beautiful and complete view of Washington that this structure affords.

We will always hold in memory the striking personality of the hospitable and courteous old guide at the Pan-American Building.

Science is very simply revealed to the students in the National Hall of Science where the latest experiments are so adjusted that one may operate them by simply pushing a button.

In the afternoon at Mt. Vernon we paid tribute to the father of our country in a very sincere ceremony in which we placed a wreath bearing the name of our city upon his tomb. Miss Maude Curry, one of our group, sang the verses of "Mt. Vernon Bells," and the rest of the group united in the chorus, after which Kenneth Jones sounded taps to complete the ceremony. We spent many interesting minutes admiring George Washington's home at Mt. Vernon.

We stopped at Christ's Church in Alexandria and sat in Washington's pew. We also visited the Masonic Lodge No. 20, which preserves many of Washington's personal belongings and meets under the charter granted to the lodge when he was its worshipful master.

At the Arlington Cemetery we visited the Custus-Lee mansion and the National Amphitheater where the President makes his Memorial Day address. It is here at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier that a soldier is stationed from sunrise to sunset to pay respect to the World War's unknown heroes.

Coming in from Arlington, we stopped at the great Lincoln Memorial in which a 16-ton statue of Abraham Lincoln is being placed. After dinner, our last stop was at the National Cathedral, which has been under construction 21 years and is built without steel—each piece being so shaped that it supports the adjoining pieces. It is estimated that it will take at least 20 years more to complete this cathedral.

After a party was held in the Hotel Roosevelt that was planned for the group by a committee before leaving Washington, Wednesday morning we took bus trip to Annapolis, Md. We went through the Naval Academy and saw the crypt of John Paul Jones—Father of the American Navy. We also saw the sailing vessel that won the Thomas Edison trophy for America.

After returning to our hotel for luncheon, we had an afternoon

SALESMAN, 23, FINED AS DRUNK DRIVER

Frank Greenweir, 23-year-old salesman of 16184 Inverness avenue, Detroit, paid a $50 fine in lieu of serving a 60-day jail sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of drunk driving before Justice H. Augustus O'Dell of Bloomfield Hills Monday morning.

When arrested early Sunday, Greenweir made the excuse to officers that a girl who was riding with him was suffering from appendicitis and that he was hurrying her to a hospital. She was taken by the officers to the hospital, where it was reported she was under the influence of liquor, but otherwise her condition was normal. She was not held.

An Industry with 100 Years of Public Service endorses this refrigerator!

The gas industry recommends Electrolux to you—your own gas company stands back of every one it sells

You have probably heard many amazing things about the new Air-Cooled Electrolux and its performance. These things are all true. Every claim we make for Electrolux has been tested and verified.

All results agree. Laboratory tests substantiate the experiences of owners in regard to the remarkably low operating cost of Electrolux.

Electrolux is silent, too—permanently silent. It has no moving parts to wear and become noisy.

"No moving parts" gives Electrolux still another unmatched advantage... freedom from costly repairs. It's the moving parts of a refrigerator that wear and need repairing. Electrolux has none.

We claim, and tests have proved, that Electrolux is the most economical refrigerator you can own. It costs no more than other leading refrigerators—costs considerably less over a period of years.

See the beautiful new models at our showrooms. Examine their many modern advantages... split shelves for tall bottles... cold control that speeds freezing... trays that release at the trip of a trigger.

NEVER A NOISE—"All my friends are amazed that any refrigerator can be as silent as Electrolux."

FREE FROM COSTLY REPAIRS—"No magic to it. Electrolux simply has no moving parts to wear and need costly repairs."
