J. Mark Hardin

YES, I REALLY LIKE COLD WEATHER!

FOR 17 YRS. WAS A SCHOOL TEACHER

TAUGHT IN OKLAHOMA KENTUCKY AND MICHIGAN

GARDENING IS HIS PASSION!

J. M. Hardin is one person who appears to have worked out a solution for that most difficult of all problems—how to be satisfied with the weather.

For while most of us are wishing for warm weather when it's cold, and cold weather when it's warm, Mr. Hardin finds that both kinds have their advantages. Summer gives him an opportunity to carry on his favorite recreation of cultivating his lawn and garden, while the winter—such a fine, old-fashioned winter as this one especially—finds him happy taking down orders as manager of the Parks Coal Company. It's a practically unbeatable combination.

Mark was a school teacher and an industrialist before entering the coal business nearly seven years ago. Born in Kentucky, he attended the public schools of that state and was graduated from Valparaiso (Ind.) University. Then followed 12 years of teaching in the rural schools of Kentucky, Oklahoma and Michigan.

Following this, he was employed for six months in the production department and two and a half years in the disbursement department of the Ford Motor Car Company, but returned again to teaching and for five years was superintendent of the Big Beaver School.

Then it was that Mark got a step ahead of the fellows who marry the boss's daughter. He married the daughter of C. G. Parks, even before the latter was his boss, and his father-in-law induced him to quit the school room for the coal business in July, 1927.

Mark is one of Birmingham's loyal Democrats, with an inexhaustible supply of Roosevelt photographs for free distribution. He was held up one night about a year ago in his home by three bandits who forced him to accompany them to his office and back to his home again before he turned over $377 to them—but that was before the Democrats were in complete control of the situation.
