So far as this newspaper in concerned, we shall argue to our fast breath that, in times of stress, the agency of government must mobilize the resources of our antion to assist in releving the unemployed. No finer opportunity for the manifestation of brotherhood chasts in hungan relationships than that of being a Good Samafitan. But, as we review the frenzied efforts of certain Democrats in playing upon human misery to gain votes, we cannot refrain from admitting our diaguat.

A Modern Prayer

e's a modern thought upon the subject of prayer, in from "The Man of the Hour," a sermon by ik S. Beard, and appearing in the Christian Herald aken from "The Man or the Frour, a sermon, or each S. Beard, and appearing in the Christian Heral or August:

" " Father in Heaven, give us, for this sad hour, men of moral integrity! Give us men who hour, men of moral integrity! Give us men who will seek first the Kingdom of God, second the kingdom of man. Give us leaders who understand that religion is not a pastime but an art of life; of all life, every day. The time is gone when we can expect God to hear our prayers no Sunday when we are liars and blasphemers and thieves on Monday, when men can steal millions by unethical, un-Christian business methods and then attempt to bribe their way into heaven by building a church, college or a hospital. This generation will not stand for that. They are insisting, thee younger Christians, that we practice in the office and the mill what we pract in the church. If Jesus is locked in the sanctuary and locked out of the office, then there is something wrong with the office, not with Jesus. Never mind Milton's baxen or Dante's hell beyond the gravet what are you doing to rid the earth of its man-made hell, here and now?

Quacks In Government

This little old world mores hither and yon like the slender trunk of a palm tree swaying in the tropical breeze. People, moist people, bend in the direction of the most glowing promises. Because most people fail to realize that politicians make promises because they seldom do anything else, most people therefore follow the greatest spell-binder—and especially if he promises plenty of this earth to those who support him on election day.

You can take a fairly able orator today, make him acquainted with a few of the age-old political nos-trums, fan him into a bit of flame with a sort of fan-atical zeal, give him sufficient time and a chance to get
