Charles de Secondat Montesquieu was one of the most celebrated politico-philosophical writers of France.

WE HEARD IT SAID DBY.— S. S. Skelton, Oakland County relief administrator: "The increased welfare load of the past few months and the tremendous demand for sheets and pillow cases, together with the reduction in relief funds available from the federal and state governments, leads us to appeal to the citizens of Oakland county for the loan of 20 sewing machines. We will require the machines for only a short time, and while we are permitted to make repairs and maintain the machines, we are not allowed to purchase or rent them."

KIT'S REPERTORY

Katharine Cornell will give New York its ritziest repertory theater this winter. . . . She writes: "One of the serious problems confronting the repertory is the understandable unwillingness of playwrights to permit their new work to be put into repertory before it has had the opportunity to reap whatever benefit it might have in a 'run' if successful."

Columbus, O., is getting to be one of my favorite haunts, although I have never been there. . . . Such grand, intelligent letters that a narcotic raid was in progress. . . . One beneficent lady sends eight pages of tips on what out-of-towners are interested in around New York. . . . That's a reader after a typewriter-tapper's heart."

DOPE Strolling in the old Hell's Kitchen neighborhood I saw a commotion about the steps of a tenement and inquiry of a cop revealed that a narcotic raid was in progress. . . . I have come little in contact with this phase of the city's drug scene since early reportorial days when I compiled a series on the dope traffic, escorted on gloomy nocturnal tours by Joseph J. "Two Gun" Murphy, a former slouch. . . . I recall my dismay in failure to uncover pretentious dens hung with slimy silks and frequented by jet-setters in the evening. . . . The dope traffic is carried on around corners furtively and in dark cellars and if detected is lacking in color. . . . Any veter-

WE HEARD IT SAID BY—

Rev. W. H. Aulenbach, assistant rector, Christ Church Cranbrook: "It is axiomatic today, as always, that no matter how reckless one or both parents may be, they generally want their children to receive the best of life's influences for good."

Harlem "muggles" parties—at which marijuana cigarettes were puffed bravely by emphysemated adolescents of all ages—have faded into the limbo of the golden and giddy Twenties. . . . And that, by the way, seems to be a significant fact in the mores of the city: It is no longer considered rakish and jaunty even in Bohemian circles to be depraved.
