

BLOOMFIELD GARAGE IMPROVEMENT TABLED

A recommendation that the Bloomfield Township Garage on East Long Lake road, which is now the property of Bloomfield Hills City and in which the Bloomfield city offices are located, be insulated was temporarily tabled by the Bloomfield Commission Tuesday night.

The recommendation was made by Justice H. A. O'Dell, who drew the original plans for the remodeling of the building more than a year ago. He said that provision had been made for insulation in the plans, and that the work could be done for about $195.

Commissioner Luther Allen, city treasurer, said he believed the expenditure should not be approved until after it is known what the percentage of current tax collections will be. It was also agreed that the matter should have the consideration of the full Commission, and Commissioners Clarence E. Otter and Frank W. Atkinson were absent.

While over 17,000,000 coins were produced at the British mint in 12 months, only four pennies were made.

Baldwin Public Library Notes

Football fans will want to read the new book, "Intercollegiate Football, 1880-1934," which the library has just received. It gives a complete record of the gridiron sport from the original Rutgers-Princeton game up to the end of the 1933 season.

Each football-playing college and university has a section in the volume, giving the names of the coaches, captains, and letter men, and also the schedules of every football season.

"Cavali to Cordial," the new cook book by Eleanor and Vincent Dwyer, of Detroit, is also among the new books at the library. Another new cook book recently added to the shelves is "Tried Temptations, Old and New" by Edith Key Haines.

"The League of Frightened Men" is another Nero Wolfe detective novel by Rex Stout, the author of "Fer-de-lance."

"The Man Without a Home," by Rupert Hughes, is a historical novel telling the love story of John Howard Payne, composer of "Home, Sweet Home," and Mary Godwin Shelley, former wife of Percy Bysshe Shelley.

"Honour Come Back," by Naomi Jacobs, is the story of a boy who, having the sight of pain, was drawn into the war and became a prisoner of war. He was being kept alive to wait for the day when he would be able to return to his home.

"Three Plays," by Clifford Odets, includes "Awake and Sing," which was produced successfully by the Group Theatre; "Waiting for Lefty," which was produced on Broadway in conjunction with the third play of the group; "Till the Day I Die," a powerful picture of life in Germany under Hitler.

district left in the tournament as the result of his fine one up win over Ken Johnson of Bloomfield. Ill. Warren shot the first nine in 33, two strokes below perfect figures to turn three up. The Illinois boy came in strong to square the match on the 14th, but lost the decision on the final green when his second shot caught a trap just to the right of the carpet. He downed his par five, but Warren came back a six-footer to win with a birdie.

After winning his morning round from James Goldsmith, of Chicago, 3 and 2, Louis Slater, 16-year-old Birmingham boy in the tournament, lost by a 4 and 3 count to Walter Burkemo of Detroit. Burkemo, one of the tournament favorites, remains with Warren as the only Michigan boys still in the running.

Schwartz, after setting the pace on the opening day of the tournament with a 71, one below par, had a game in bowling to lamb in the morning round. Neither boy putted with any degree of consistency, but Lamb came through with the win, 4 and 3.

In the second round matches Wednesday, Charles Smead of Chicago defeated Jim March, also of Chicago, 6 and 5, and Joe Franco of Chicago defeated Geo. Victor, Chicago, 3 and 2.

Haas, judging by his fine showing yesterday, runs a slight favorite to defeat Doering in the other upper bracket match. Bill Warren's quarter final tilt with Castellan in the lower bracket is a deadlock, both boys being capable of steady golf in the clutch. Burkemo, however, should have little difficulty in beating Franco to enter the semi-final against the winner of the Warren-Castellan match.

stirrings and out launches and planes were more useful in looking for the two members of the crew that were still lost.

by tax sale without even being conscious of the fact that laws are in existence which, in many instances, would enable them to save their property by the payment now of a much smaller amount of their total tax than they had dreamed possible.

Just the other day I ran across a Birmingham resident who fully believed that there was no possibility of saving his home from tax sale. He had not heard of the deferred payment plan nor of the penalty and interest waiver, and was astonished to learn that he could prevent his property from going to sale next spring by paying only about $200 now.

Taxpayers seeking information regarding the new tax provisions and what effect they have on their own property are urged to come to his office, Mr. Corson said, for that of Scott A. Hersey, special treasurer, assistant in charge of stimulating delinquent tax collections. Both offices are in the Municipal Building.

As a further aid in the tax collection effort, the city started work Monday on the making up of records which will show exactly how much each taxpayer owes in delinquent taxes of 1932 and prior years. This information for school, county and state taxes of 1933 and subsequent years, and for all village and city taxes, is already available at the Municipal Building.

When the new records are complete, it is hoped any taxpayer in the city will be able to learn just what his delinquency is without being forced to make a trip to Pontiac. The City Commission has appropriated $800 for the work, and two clerks, Kenneth Stokes and Esther Boughner, are now mapping out a plan of procedure for copying the records from the books of the county treasurer. Other clerks will be added later, according to City Manager James W. Parry, who estimates the job will require 10 weeks for completion.

can't the camp will be quarantined. Children returning to their homes will be kept under observation as provided by the regulations of the State Department of Health.

No definite stand was taken as to the value of the several vaccines that have been devised, as they are still in the experimental stage. Until more is known concerning their value, their use should be confined to experienced research workers.

Dr. Kemp, who attended the meeting, said he concurred in this statement. Asked to amplify the fifth paragraph, he said:

"While some interesting and, in a sense, promising work is being done in several centers, the whole matter is yet in an experimental stage; most of the work has been with monkeys and not with humans. The value of vaccine prophylaxis has not been proven sufficiently to justify its general use."

"At present, the most effective weapons we have with which to fight this disease are first, early detection—that is, an awakened public consciousness, which will lead to the early recognition of suspicious symptoms and signs—and, second, a thorough diagnostic study by a physician. Don't let your own diagnosis, but turn that responsibility over to your physician."

Of the two cases of poliomyelitis reported in Birmingham, one, that of Millard Plumstead, 16-year-old son of Mrs. Charles E. Plumstead, 843 South Bates street, has resulted in the quarantining of the Oakland County Y. M. C. Camp at Leon Lake, near Hale.

The boy was a junior counselor at the camp until he came home Wednesday of last week. He showed no symptoms of the disease until the following Saturday, however, and there is no definite indication that he contracted it at the camp, according to Dr. Kemp.

Not Closed

The camp is not closed, except in the sense that no new registrations will be accepted. John E. Martin, a Birmingham resident and a couldn't make him understand that he had been informed all boys now at the camp had decided to stay there, although they are privileged to leave if they desire. Instead of closing Aug. 23, as had been planned, the camp will remain open an additional week, by which time it is expected the quarantine will have no more effect.

Mr. Martin said, Boys who left the camp while it was under quarantine would be quarantined at their homes.

Birmingham's second case of the disease was reported yesterday. The patient is a nine-year-old girl, Dr. J. B. Hassberger said yesterday the case was light, with no signs of paralysis. The Millard Plumstead case is also light, although there is some paralysis, according to Dr. Kemp.

Joe joined the navy for several reasons, "I wanted to build myself up better physically and I wanted to get material for writing that I plan to do later on."

Joe has to be in San Diego Aug. 29 and doesn't expect to be home again for two years. After his four years in the Navy are over, Joe is planning to go to college.
