Davis of Battle Creek and George Lambrecht, son of Richard O. Lambrecht, stood to speak their nuptial vows Saturday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Keller of Beverly Hills.

Garden Forms Background For Colorful Ceremony

The brilliance of an August garden formed the background for a rustic affair, banked with baskets of gladioli, before which Miss Eleanor Jane Quail and Rudolph John Zabel, son of Richard O. Lambrecht, stood to speak their nuptial vows Saturday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Keller of Beverly Hills.

The service was read by the Rev. John McWilliam of the Redford Presbyterian Church at 4:30 o'clock. Mrs. William C. Davis of Battle Creek attended her sister as matron of honor. Harry Haft-bach was best man, and the ushers were William C. Davis, Jr. of Battle Creek and Earl Martin of Detroit.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white organza over white satin, fashioned with a white shawl collar and sleeves puffed to the elbow and tight to the wrist. An unusual feature was the long white tulle train ending in a fan-shaped train.

The lining of the veil was held from a halo of points d'esprit, adorned with a spray of orange blossoms across the front. She carried a bouquet of white roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Davis wore a gown of yellow organza, made with a waist-length cape, and a garden hat of brown horsehair. In her bouquet were yellow and white gladioli and blue delphinium. Mrs. Keller chose a plain colored lace gown, with which she wore a black velvet hat and a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies.

A reception at the Birmingham Golf Club followed the ceremony. A cloth of Alencon lace covered the bride's table, which was centered with the bride's cake. On either end of the table were crystal bowls containing yellow and white garden flowers.

In her journey to Torch Lake, where the bridegroom's family has a summer home, Mrs. Zabel, who is traveling constantly, carried a black and white checked suit trimmed in black fox, with black accessories.
