Detroit Soprano To Sing As Soloist In 'Creation'

Miss Johnston

When the Birmingham Oratorio Society presents Josef Haydn's "Creation" at its first performance this year, to be given Tuesday evening in the First Baptist Church, 1145 East Johnston, prominent Detroit soprano, will sing the feminine solo part.

Miss Johnston received a portion of her musical education at the University of Michigan as a pupil of Theodore Harrison, a former member of the faculty. She has participated in the May Recitals at various times, and has sung as soloist with the Detroit Cleveland and Cincinnati Symphonic Orchestras. She has also sung the soprano role in the oratorio, "Phaethon," with the Apollo Club of Chicago.

In Detroit, for the past 10 years, she has been prominent in musical circles, both in both concert and church work.

Thomas C. Evans and John D. Benton, both of Detroit, will sing the tenor and bass solo parts, respectively, in the Tuesday evening performance.

Frederick A. Probst will direct the orchestra and the vocal soloists will be Miss Elizabeth Heck and A. Stanley Brown.

The concert will begin at 7:15 P. M.
