SOCIETY WILL GIVE 1ST CONCERT OF '35

Haydn's 'Creation' To Be Sung By Local Oratorio Group In Opening Recital

The Birmingham Oratorio Society will sing Haydn's "Creation" as the first offering of its second season, at a concert to be given in the First Baptist Church Tuesday evening, Feb. 19.

The Society, which was organized about a year ago under the direction of Frederick A. Protheroe, now numbers 50 voices. Soloists for the opening concert this year will be Miss Lois Johnston, soprano; Thomas Evans, tenor, and John Renton, bass soloist of St. Paul's Cathedral in Detroit. Miss Johnston and Mr. Evans will be remembered by Birmingham audiences for their solo performances with the Society a year ago.

Miss Elizabeth Heck and A. Shanley Rosso will be the accompanists, and Mr. Protheroe will conduct.

"Creation" is considered one of the three masterpieces in this field of composition, ranking with Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and Handel's "Messiah."

As its name implies, the text of "Creation" deals with the first chapters of the Old Testament, giving the composer unlimited opportunity for expressive and descriptive composition. "Creation" was completed by Haydn in 1798.
