... were hit in years, precipitating stones almost as big as golf ball. Did this to an auto top in San Antonio, Tex., houses causing damage estimated at half a million dollars.

My New York by JAMES ASWELL

By Central Press
NEW YORK—Little things in the sudden scent of roses in the south of the Union Square subway cave and a copy of "Katie" of "Pure Reason" on the back beside the young man sell by the penny. The night clerk in Empire State tower, with the diamond-tipped wand of a wand-strung out for miles for a gas, begging me to pull any one I could get him a police man so he could attend first. The sad old gentleman with the shrewd and boyed eyes, buying penny's worth of peanuts from an elevated platform vending machine. A lovers, high school kids beside them, holding hands the lambent glow of the Radio City Music Hall lounge, a little boy with a modernistic, and a man, but happy and still, two hours later when I pass him.

Rare Disease

in Manhattan. . . . A remark which haunts the memory only because it is so utterly inept. The reflection that no cabaret singer girl has offered me a $10 stuffed teddy bear since 1932. A troop of Campfire Girls busily inspecting the waterfront along Riverside drive, learning woodcraft there where they must raise their voices above the incessant hum of traffic. The midwife who babbles a downtown burlesque house, buying a packet of Easter greeting cards from a corner novelty shop. Percy Hammond's remark that he'd rather review a seed catalogue than George Bernard Shaw's new play, "The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles."

Obituary

DR. JAMES C. TRIMBY
Dr. James C. Trimby, physician and friend to a large number of Birmingham residents, died Friday at his home, 1225 Fourth Street, after a long illness. He was 62 years old. Funeral services were held in Detroit Saturday evening. Surviving are the wife, Mrs. J. C. Trimby; a son, Robert H.; two brothers and six sisters.

Andrew Kimmins

Andrew Kimmins, father of Maurice Kimmins of 1225 Fourth Street, died at Birmingham, Ala., Monday morning in Revere Hospital, Detroit, after a week's illness. He was 62 years old. Services were held Wednesday afternoon from Kimmins' funeral home, 1225 Fourth Street, with burial in Oak Hill Cemetery, Pontiac. He was a member of the Methodist Church, officiated by R. D. Hopkins, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Detroit.

MUSIC

By CAROLINE REILLY
Last week brought to a close the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's season. Tuesday's pop concert found everybody on stage, ranging from the very young to the very old. The hour at row on the program was a most interesting waiting-through almost half the program for the first act.
