Baldwin Public Library Notes

Better known for his wood cuts, Rockwell Kent has written and illustrated the story of his trip through Greenland. The title of the book is "Salamina" and it is one of the new arrivals at the library.

The Atlantic five thousand dollar prize book for 1935, "Old Jules" is on the library pay shelf. Its author, Mari Sandoz, is associate editor of the Nebraska History Magazine. She is the second child by Old Jules' fourth wife.

Two more new books are "Valiant" is the name for "Carrie" by Barry Benefield, and "Edna, his Wife" by Margaret Ayer Barnes. "This Book of the Earth" is the new novel by Paul Green, whom most readers know better as the winner of the 1928 Pulitzer Drama award for his play, "In Abraham's Bosom" and as the author of many one-act plays.

John Rathbone Oliver, whose book on "Fate" has solved many problems for his readers, has written "The Difficulties of Everyday People." The title explains itself.
