Governor, Please Tell Us About Frank D. McKay

everyone of which will must the cause of occurs by the standard McKay is the most powerful dustide economic interest in state government in Laming.

Readers of The Eccentric will recall how this newspaper, during the present Governor's primary campaign in 1934, addressed him an "open letter," revealing our personal friendship for him, but—in the interest of the taxpayers—asking him just how friendly he was and would be to McKay, were be (Fritzgerald) elected Governor. And you recall, too, the rebuttal that candidate Fritzgerald set back, in which he said that our letter was like "being assistated in the bouse of a friend."

Personally, and at this time, we still like Governor Fritzgerald. We credit him with having done some fine things since he took over his gubernatorial duties. We been always to continue this personal neighboring City of Bloomfield Hills, disliking an unfair tax equalization from the Oakland Gounty and the product of the continuence of the continuen

Dear Raders, may we be unorthodox enough at this time to step out of the editorial "we" position, and address a personal note to Governor Fitzgerald's hanks. Here goes:
Dear Frank:
For the sake of the trusting people of Michigan, for the sake of your own political future, for the sake of the Republican Party, both State and national, won't you please come out with a fract, innevasive, direct statement regarding McKay's influence in your administration? If McKay's to you is, as you stated in a lefter to me during the primary election, only "a voter in Grand Rapids," will you not have the courage unequivocally to you so, as you stated in a lefter to me during the primary election, only "a voter in Grand Rapids," will you not have the courage unequivocally to be cleare McKay's preent status with you? Won't you please silence Mr. Engel right now? I am note alone, Frank, in asking you this question. And you know it, Sir, you know it and you had you had

Sincerely yours.

THE ROLLING ANTIQUE

By DAVID R. INRES
Oh, she goes down the street with the greatest of wheeze
While all the pedestrians mutter and sneeze.
She smokes and she spatters, she drinks ktrosene...
The staggering, rolling antique.

She's rusty and crusty, she coughs as she struts, She's minus a bumpet, some bolts and some nuts. She's squeaky and creaky, her eyes have grown dim The staggering, rolling antique.

Her lines are ungraceful, her chassis too high. Her front view or profile a pain to the eye— A danger to drivers, a menace to life. The staggering, rolling antique.

She once was a pippin, all shiny and new. She served well her purpose but now she is through. Her owner should imk her for other folks' sake—
The staggering, rolling antique. There should be a law that denies them our streets. These ancient old Lizzies of twelve winters' sleets. They're bad for the schnozzle, the eye and the _ar-To the junk heap with rolling antiques!

Oh, she sees down the street with the greatest of wheeze, While all the pedestrians mutter and sneeze. She smokes and she sputters, she drinks kerosene—The staggering, rolling antique. (Copyright, 1935)
