NOTE: The Eccentric is pleased to publish stories of events which have news value and which are written by persons not connected with the editorial staff of the paper. All copy must be received before noon on Wednesday. The staff is not responsible, however, to make such superficial changes in the writing as are necessary to the style of the paper and as are required by laws of the state. Because of a limited space in the newspaper, the editor reserves the right to use or omit any material. The character, style or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may be mentioned in the paper is not to be construed as advertising copy being brought to the attention of the publisher.

Our "Optical Senses"

We cannot conceive of any time to come when there will be more people upon earth than the earth can materially support. For generations to come, though, we can see that each will have its particular problems and that we will not be able to have the greatest obstacle to human happiness is human laziness. If each of us would take the trouble to improve ourselves without ceasing—as just automobile engineers and designers have improved the horseless carriage—we could revolutionize our own generation.

Most of us spend most of our time fearing what we do not know, and refusing to try to know that fear which is the greatest of all. Just as astronomers, aided by optical experts, produce larger telescopes to peer into the celestial universe, so can each of us improve our "optical senses" to such a degree that the night of ignorance will give way to the light of stars of truth that right now are not even seen because of the lack of development of our "optical senses."

War's Weapons

The United States Navy is holding secret maneuvers in the Pacific Ocean, and most of the "civilized" world watches the thing from afar. There are those who conscientiously argue that the United States should only to inflame other nations, and will eventually result in another war. This may be so. While we join with those who bitterly condemn war and all that leads up to it and after it, we will take our side in this as yet barbaric arrangement of humans and hold that an adequate army and navy is our best material defense.
But we can keep on improving our material defense and we who populate this earth may rapidly acquire clearer visions of a kind of Love that will make war unnecessary—that will enable each of us to comprehend better the real meaning of "brotherhood."

"As A Man Thinketh . . ."

When man was given "dominion over all things" that dominion included his inside world as well as his outside world. You have a right to a sense of mastery over the inner realm of thought and emotion. In fact a good authority says "be that ruler, his spirit is greater than that that taketh a city." You have the right to be master over your temper, your blue moods, your tendency to let things slide or whatever it is which is keeping you from a full-cherished enjoyment of life. You can practice the mastery of calmness in the presence of turmoil. You too have the right to be able to say, "I am the prince of peace seated on the throne of peace."

By holding this thought that by nature you have the right to this sense of mastery and by gradually acting as master in smaller mental conflicts and then in larger and greater you can gradually attain your heart's desire in these things. A mood is a fleeting, ill-mannered caller. You are master in your own house.

When you become more habitually master in your thought household you can better command forces and conditions which contribute to your physical health. For in nature you have the right to glowing good health. The perfect panther is the king of the perfect panther in each pawsy seed. The pattern drawn for you on the tressle board of nature is for perfect health. Claim your right. Science and common sense are ever ready to help you. You have the right to health and where you cannot at once gain your right you can still be master. When Marie crushed the tip of her finger in the car door she showed wisdom beyond her eight years when she explained to her alarmed mother, "Finger hurt, not Marie." It's worth more than a passing thought.

Furthermore, just as you have a right to inner peace, and physical health, so you have a right to financial security. Here also there is a right to be met. Some folks always carry around a bitter lecture stick of pessimism to nibble on now and then.
Their faces and minds take on a pucker that does not attract friends or helpful thoughts. Negative thought waves, individual and collective, repel positive thoughts which might otherwise get through to our minds and spiritual receiving centers. We are all individuals and groups weary of broadcasting pessimism after a time.

Many are swinging back to normal now. Join the positive believers and doers. Nature still produces plenty, sleep still refreshes. Seeds still produce their kind. Claim your right to life's good things by setting in motion right thoughts and actions. Life is adaptation. You are still alive. Then be on the lookout for new ways of claiming your right to peace, health, and success.

Remember what was said of Wagner: "If he had not attempted the impossible he would not have achieved so much."

TRYING TO "PRIME THE PUMP" of business, the government is pouring billions of dollars into the well —but the trouble is that too many of the nuggets are grafted on to the pump's strainer, and tend to clog it up.

THE ONLY REAL DIFFERENCE between one kind of "chisel" and another is that some are more blunt than others.

The Art Of Getting Along

Sooner or later, a man if he is wise, discovers that business life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take.

He learns that it doesn't pay to be a sensitive soul —that he should let some things go over his head like water off a duck's back.

He learns that he who loses his temper usually loses.
He learns that all men have burnt toast for breakfast now and then and that he shouldn't take the other fellow's grump too seriously.

He learns that carrying a chip on his shoulder is the easiest way to get into a fight.

He learns that the quickest way to become unpopular is to carry tales and gossip about others.

He learns that it doesn't matter so much who gets the credit so long as the business itself always turns out to be a boomerang, and that it never pays.

He comes to realize that the business could run along perfectly well without him.

He learns that most of the other fellows are as ambitious as he is, that they have brains that are as good or better, and that hard work and not cleverness is the secret of success.

He learns to sympathize with the youngster coming into the business because he remembers how he was when he first started out.

He learns that the gang if not any harder to get along with in one place than another, and that "getting along" after all, is about 98 per cent on the basis of his own behavior.—(Friendly Advertiser)

A Man For The Ages

Aiding mother touching with loving fingers the tear-streaked face of her boy and whispering "Be strong, Alby."

A lady, lonely, laid stretched out on the floor before the open fire, reading, thinking, far into the night.

A splutter of rails; a champion wrestler; a farmer;
store-keeper;

A funny story telling away from the grave of his youngest son, lying in the arms of his mother.

A melancholy dreamer who never carried a pen knife for fear he might take his own life;

A candidate for office whose first speech was "as short and as sweet as the old woman's."

A man who was found down on his knees playing marbles with a group of boys when news came that he had been elected President of the United States;

A gaunt, tired man on the rear platform of his train in a drizzling rain, bidding goodbye to the neighbors he loved;

A man of destiny at the helm of the ship of state with black clouds, high seas, and the lightning flashes and the thunder of war;

A man with one desperate idea: To save the Union.
A writer of tender letters to widowed mothers who gave their sons for the cause;

A pardoner of boys who could not be blamed if their legs were cowardly;

A man of infinite patience, "who held on through blame and faltered not at praise."

A man so humble he said he would hold a general's horse if that general would win victories;

A man who loved all men and lived and preached "charity for all and peace to all";

A man who signed with steady hand a proclamation that struck the shackles from the slaves;

A man who lived to see his cause triumph; A man whose death set free for all mankind a GREAT SOUL that shall bless, and benefit, inspire and encourage, until time shall be no more.—The Philosophy of a Human Being—Jagua.

DR. PRICE'S Practical Paragraphs

By John Edwin Price

MAN-BUILDING BRIEF

Lyman Alcott, the great, used to tell the following story: "The flower got into a debate one morning as to which of them was the flower of God; and the rose said 'I am the flower of God, for I am the fairest and the most beautiful and the variety of form and delicacy of fragrance of all the flowers.' And the crocus said: 'No, you are not the flower of God. Why, I was blooming long before you bloomed. I am the primitive flower; I am the first one.'"

And the trailing arbutus said: 'Before any of you came forth I was blooming under the leaves and under the flowers of the forest. I was the first flower of the forest. I was the first flower of the forest. I was the first flower of the forest. I was the first flower of the forest. I was the first flower of the forest. I was the first flower of the forest. I
