BITS OF BIRMINGHAM

Five-year-old Elizabeth Miller, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Miller of Fairfax road, was bitten by a black scotty dog Saturday morning in front of Mulholland's store, on South Woodward avenue. While the bite was not serious, Elizabeth's parents are anxious to learn the owner of the scotty in order to discover if there is any danger of rabies.

Members of the Haysberg Chapter, Order of DeMolay, are planning an Educational Day program, to be given at the Masonic Temple next Tuesday evening. F. Morse Cooke, principal of Adams school, will be the chief speaker, while a discussion group of students is included on the program. A pancake supper will precede the program.

University of Michigan Extension classes will begin next Tuesday. A Sociology course is offered at 7 P. M. at the high school. Miss Mildred A. Valentine is instructor, while a discussion group of students is included on the program. A pancake supper will precede the program.

Harry S. Starr, Bloomfield Hills city engineer, Tuesday night reported to the Hills commission in special session that the Detroit Edison company will install about ten light bulbs along the dark stretch of Woodward avenue between Brady Lane and Chestnut field avenue. The 100-candle-power lamps are expected to lessen the hazard to pedestrians and motorists. It was the opinion of the commission that immediate action be taken on the matter. Mr. Starr assured them the lights would be put in without delay.

Sombrero Too Big; Green 'Lid' Solves Hat Problem

City Manager James W. Parr has a new hat—a very simple green hat it is, with skin lining, handsome band, and everything. Fortunately, he was in possession of the hat Monday night, and was able to produce it at the City Commission meeting. Otherwise, he might have been faced with serious charges today.

It seems that the hat Jim used to have didn't measure up to some people's idea of what a city manager ought to be wearing. So on day last week, after being out of his office for a few minutes, Jim returned to find his hat gone. In its place was a huge, brown, wide-brimmed affair of the type which is sometimes construed as head gear by people in the West. In the words of City Treasurer Harold H. Cornon, it was an 1896 edition of the kind of hat somebody gave to President Coolidge when he visited South Dakota.

Most people of Jim's position and standing in the community could have been fairly horrified by the sight of such a thing hanging on his hat rack—but not Jim. Nothing daunted, he plopped the affair squarely on his head, marched out of his office, and headed for a meeting of the Michigan Municipal League in Ann Arbor.

A grizzly bear "as big as a house" was rumored to have been seen in the Canon River country of central British Columbia. The rumor interested G. L. Pop of Vancouver, B. C., and lured him into that territory with his gun. The rumor proved to be correct, for Pop found and bagged the huge silvertip, a magnificent nine-foot trophy, shown above.

SYRINGE IS THEIR CAFETERIA

A medicine dropper proved a synthetic mother to these two waifs—a sparrow and a monkey. The sparrow, which made its nest in a Seattle, Wash., schoolroom, to which it returns regularly after its outdoor flights, is shown being fed by a schoolboy. A syringe, and the patient care of an Atlantic City zoo proprietor, saved the life of the baby monkey, when its mother fell ill.
