FAGAN DISCUSSES STATUS OF LABOR

Speaker Says A Modified Capitalism Will Aid Present Problem

Dr. Harrison B. Fagan of Wayne University addressed last night's meeting of the Open Forum, gathered at the Baldwin Library auditorium, on the subject, "The Status of Labor. What is it and what it should be." John E. Martz served as program chairman and introduced the speaker.

Remarking on wage statistics, the speaker pointed out that the average income for white collar jobs today was about $1200, while that for manual labor amounted to approximately $900. Such a ratio, he said, is inadequate, he stated, that a minimum wage of $2000 annually should be maintained in this country or our standard of living must inevitably fall off.

Dr. Fagan claimed that 12 million persons were unemployed at present while a shortage of two million homes existed. He asserts that while production was increasing, unemployment was rising because of increased factors non-cooperation of others.

He suggested a system of economics that will make the great earth's storehouse accessible to all.

MEN'S FORUM ENDS SUNDAY

Dr. Lesseiger, Dean of Wayne University, Speaks On Teacher Training

Dr. Waldo E. Lesseiger, Dean of the College of Education, Wayne University, will conclude the Men's Forum series of weekly educational talks this Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in the Community House.

The non-secular group presenting the forum have offered the people of this community outstanding thinking and lectures every Sunday since early presented at the program originated.

It was announced that the Men's Forum would be resumed in September.

"Problems in Teacher Training" will be the subject of Dean Lesseiger's address this evening. He declares that experience in the field of teacher training as a superintendent of public schools is followed by 11 years with Detroit Teacher's College, in addition to experience gained in his present position.

Throughout all of the previous discussions dealing with education and the adjustment of adults to youth to the change of social order, it has been evident that the training of teachers is the starting point from which progress can be made most rapidly.

At the last forum, Secretary I. L. Carter, in a letter from School Superintendent C. W. Crandall, complimented the forum on the excellent group of speakers presented and the effort which is being made to render a community-wide service through a better understanding of some of the problems faced by those charged with the conduct of our schools.

Through increased attendance and the interest shown in discussion and questions, the program committee of the forum has been able to determine what type of activity should be presented for next Fall and Winter.

It was stated that the meeting Sunday will start promptly at 10 o'clock. Lectures are cordially invited to attend this closing session of the forum.

(Continued 3 from Page 1) take a few pulls at our bottle of water, then fall asleep. But not so easily. He stays awake. He drinks his to the last drop.

Then, of course, he has a stomachache and wakes the rest of us up again by his crying.

"Now this lad on the other side of me is a blue-blooded aristocrat. His name is Cabot—that is, John Bradford Cabot. And believe it or not," Napoleon continued with a wink, "that guy still thinks he came here on the Mayflower!"

"By the way, Neighbor," he said, "you haven't told me what your first name is."

"I don't know myself," I admitted, "I haven't met my family yet. So I don't know what they're all me."

"Oh, I see. You're still a Freshman, I suppose. I ought to teach you our Napsery Yell."

"You don't have to teach me to yell," I told him, "I know I will do it all right." "Good, Napoleon," I heard you coming down the hall. What I mean is, that at least once in all the habits you pick up and give the same cheer to either. It gives like this: "Wha! Wha! Wha! Wha!"

"Sit! Boom! Woa!" We went. "Fod! Woa!" "Well, I wouldn't worry. You'll be back in time enough. We'll do. But it seems to me it's about time they took you into your mother's room to see your family."

"I remember the day I came, why my folks—" "Napoleon," he whispered, "here's the nurse."

I looked up and there was the same nurse who had fucked me in her arms, and carried the out of the nursery and along the hall. Finally, she turned in at another door.

"Here's your lady, Mrs. Jones," she said sweetly. "I was soon to know so well as my Mother's."

I exclaimed, "My head, anxious to see her face."

"Why, he's looking at me, right at my face," she cried with tears in her eyes. "He knows I'm his mother! Please put him down here, Miss Gray."

I nestled close to Mother and felt very safe and happy. "You're all the world wasn't going to be a hard place to live in!" "Look at him, Harry," she whispered, "two little, and so nice!"

"Harry"—Then it all came back to me. This "Harry" person must be the Harrington Weatherly Jones, Jr., who was my Dad. He opened my eyes wide, I wanted to get a good look at this Dad of mine.

"He's not my Dad," he said, his voice was husky and deep. "Going to play football sometime and make the Old Man proud!"

He was smiling at me. A big, wide smile. I liked him, and knew from the start. Dad and I were going to get along.
