Life's Little Laughs

Wall Street Conversation
Jack—Have you quit speculating?
Bill—No. At present I'm speculating as to how I shall avoid bankruptcy.

Question Marks
Lawyer (to lady witness)—Married?
Witness—Yes; twice.
Lawyer—Your age?
Witness—Twenty-eight years.
Lawyer—Also twice?

Judge—Amos, do you want a lawyer to do your job?
Amos—No, sah, judge, but Ah could use a couple of good witnesses.

Possibly
"Can you tell me how to wa h speech to go to get all the road out of it?"
"Sure. Tie it on the end of a fish ne pole and hold it under Niagara Falls."—Florida Times Union.

Insurance Agent—What did your grandparents die of?
Ezra Hoskins—I don't rightly recollect, but wasn't nothing serious.

The Easiest Way
"How do you usually die you get Tommy to take that medicine—tell him it was candy."
"Certainly not, I put it on the highest shelf in the house and told him that was deadly poison."

Meribon—Doctor, what would you call this fever of mine?
Fady Doctor—I'd call it a bargain. Yesterday it was 104 and today it is reduced to 98.

Reasonable
Customer—I shouldn't have to pay so much for a haircut. I'm just about bald.
Barber—Yes, I know it, but I charge for having to search for it in your case.—Chelsea Record.

Triumph of Civilization
The Homebody—How were the Bureau head hunters induced to give up that awful creature?
The Missionary—We persuaded them that imitation ivory was just as good as what they were getting.

Witty
Jimmy—So Elsie told you I was witty, did she?
Elsie—Well, she didn't express it exactly that way. She said she had to laugh every time you opened your mouth.

Not Interested
"How's business?" asked the customer.
"Very bad," replied the clerk.
"You don't seem to be working much about it."
"I'm not, I don't own the store."

Wow!
A physician presented his bill to the executor of the estate of a deceased patient.
"This you wish to have my bill sworn to?" he asked.
"No," answered the executor, "the death of the patient is sufficient evidence of your services."
—Burt Both Morgan.

A Caddy's a Caddy
He was explaining golf.
"The driver and brasser are good clubs, but the others are rams. Now, of course, in driving off the tee, the driver is used. The brasser is similar to the driver, only I use it in lifting the ball over a hill on a long shot. The putter is used on the green. The mallet."
"That's a mallet, Mr. Linneght," and the caddy's young boss said, "there's something I've always wanted to know, can you tell me."
"I'll do my best," smiled the instructor. "What?"
"What kind of a club is a caddy, and how do you hold them?"

Proof
"That new box in the block says he's related to you. He says he can prove it, too."
"Yeah, but that may be only a coincidence."

Off the Gold Standard
Find Mother—I hope my little darling has been as good as gold all day.
Nurs—No, ma'am. He went off the gold standard about four o'clock.

Fit For A King
Stir in about two-thirds of the buttered and floured muffin pans and bake 25 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) Washington (D. C.) paper.

The Mystery of Mascara
The accompanying article concerns Dr. A. C. C. C.'s explorations in the field of the cosmetic ray.—Booster (O.) paper.

Oil Right
Customer—I want some oil to use on my chair castor. What do you recommend?
Hardware Man—Castor oil.
