

There is, within each normal human being, the latent wealth of great ideas and great inventions. As long as one has the faculty, thought, one can change his environment, his position, his habits. An honest, earnest mind will find its needs met through prayerful search.

FIFTY-NINTH YEAR—NO. 1

THE S and THAT

By G. R. A.

Requests by numerous friends for more information on the subject of Henry George's Single Tax philosophy, suggests that it is some timely comments on the part of my friend Floyd J. Miller, publisher of the nearby Post. (I am Mr. Miller and I have been studying this problem together this winter, the following is an article written and published by him in his newspaper a few days ago.)

Not only have the single tax movement more cur-all plans for the United States than during the previous hundred years. The reason is easily understood. More persons are out of work than ever before. More are in dire need, more had lost or nearly all of their worldly possessions. So plants got busy trying to figure out what we should do.

In general, the plans which attracted most attention were those which were the most novel and most radical. The most novel were in dire need, more had lost or nearly all of their worldly possessions. So plants got busy trying to figure out what we should do.

Not only have the amateurs staged a field day in presenting economic acrobatics, but trained economists, social workers, business men and other experts have put their minds to this task as never before. So we have many splendid ideas, along with the impossible ones.

But while all of these new plans have had considerable attention, it is remarkable that a proposal made thirty or forty years ago, that is the Single Tax.

Do you know what this is or how it would work?

I confess for myself that I had never heard of the idea until recently. Then I decided that I had better familiarize myself with it. I went to the library and found a book which was studying Henry George's book, "Progress and Poverty." It was a very interesting book, and I read it with great interest.

I thought I knew that the Single Tax was an idea to wipe out all other taxes and have just one. That one was to be on land.

I didn't bother. "That won't do. Our real estate is too tall, an engineer, and a couple of newspapermen were in the crowd. Here are some of the things we learned about the Single Tax plan.

It proposes to abolish all taxes except one levied on the value of land, regardless of the value of improvements on it. (Don't worry until you know you are hurt. Read on and be sure you read it.)

This would not be just a tax on real estate, for real estate includes land and buildings. It would be a tax on the value of the land, and improvements were added; and the land would be taxed in proportion to that value.

The argument in favor of this (Turn to Page 2, No. 1)

WE HEARD IT SAID BY— Dr. O. O. Beck, local physician and surgeon, who served as a doctor for the Russian people in the Crimea during the war.

It was a doctor for the Russian people in the Crimea during the war. He was a doctor for the Russian people in the Crimea during the war. He was a doctor for the Russian people in the Crimea during the war.
